Truckers scrambling for parking space

By Frank Ryan

The lack of parking space for trucks is causing some major concerns in town.

It's not a new problem. Councillor Howard Olsen has discussed the problem at the council level on a number of occasions.

And now, with the loss of the IGA (new store) lot, truckers staying at the Black Gold Inn are scrambling for a place to park their rigs.

Most of the truckers staying at the Black Gold have been able to find space in the vacant lot north of the hotel.

But Olsen firmly believes the problem will only get worse once the logging trucks start rolling. He has a suggestion.

In order to accommodate the increasing number of trucks, Olsen has been looking at the idea of a truck parking lot. This area would be fenced and include a security guard. A mini-bus service would be needed to transport the drivers back and forth to local hotels and motels.

Trucks lined up behind the Black Gold Inn

Olsen also says the truck problem goes a lot further than the loss of the lot across the street from the Black Gold.

He says council and fire chief Sheldon Fuson have always been concerned about the contents of some of the trucks parked in town. Another concern is the number of trucks that park on the street, south of the Black Gold, and leave their units running all night. Some residents have expressed their concerns about the noise generated from the trucks.

Although the problem has been getting worse, council had suggested a couple of years ago the trucks could park on the west side of 50 Street. However, that has never materialized.

The lack of truck parking around the hotels is not the only problem.

Olsen also has some concerns about big trucks parking in residential areas.

He hopes to raise the issue once again when town council meets next Thursday.

New car give-away Winner will be 'selfish'

Eleanor Harris of Drayton Valley was this week's key winner in the car give-away contest.

Harris says if she is the big winner of the car, it will not be shared with her six children or eight grandchildren.

"It will be all mine. I'll be selfish with it," she says, laughing.

Eleanor and her husband Leonard have been in the area for years and in Drayton Valley since the 1950s.

"We've been transferred here and there with my husband's job but we've always come back to Drayton," she says.

Eleanor's choice in a car would be a little Nissan, something to just get her back and forth to Sears where she works part time.

She won the key from Blocks and says she entered the contest about six times in total.

Hack Hamdon, manager of Block's with key winner Eleanor Harris and chamber of commerce representative Linda Bennett.

Pilot can't Initial proposal refused advanced North American-made fighter jet and a North American pilot fly a similar Soviet Bloc fighter.

The U.S. and Canada refused this proposal, but Wade stressed the offer to fly the MiG-29 came from the Soviet company Mikoyan which builds the MiGs.

Wade said the invitation to fly the MiGs was totally unexpected as "confirmation of their (the MiG-29s) attendance was only made a month ago."

Major Wade has been in the air force for a total of 22 years and currently holds the position of combat operations officer with the 441 tactical fighter squadron based in Comox.

Wade resides in Cold Lake and has the distinction of being the first pilot to enrol in the Canadian Armed Forces when he joined Feb. 28, 1968.

He was born in Saskatoon in 1946 and moved to Evansburg with his family in 1951. His parents, Glen and Anne, still reside in Evansburg.

Sale of Lynard newspapers won't have any direct effect on operation, president says

The sale of Lynard Publishers Ltd. newspapers to Toronto Sun Publishing Corporation will have no direct effect on the operation of the Western Review, says company president Hiwani Bowes.

An agreement was concluded last week with the Toronto-based newspaper group to sell the Western Review and six other Alberta community newspapers and two shuppers.

"The agreement calls for the purchasers to continue the employment of all staff members at the time of the take-over," says Bowes, adding that the Sun group expressed the hope that all management and staff would want to remain.

Just over one year ago, Sun Publishing purchased a majority interest in Bowes Publishers Ltd., an organization that publishes daily and weekly newspapers in Alberta, British Columbia and Ontario.

In a press release, Sun officials stated: "The company feels that various synergies exist between Lynard Publishers and Bowes Publishers which should lead to more economical operations and future growth opportunities."

In addition to the Western Review, Lynard produces The Representative and Penny Power in Leduc, The Reporter in Stony Plain, the Examiner in Spruce Grove, the Grand Trunk in Whitecourt, and the Freelancer in Mayerthorpe and the Parkland Consumer.

Public assistance needed to curb senseless vandalism

An increase in vandalism in town has a lot of people concerned.

Several buildings and signs have been sprayed with black paint.

Tennis nets at the Rotary Park courts were ripped off and destroyed.

Broken glass has been found at the reservoir tennis courts near the hospital.

And, the skylights at the reservoir have also been tampered with.

The town is currently looking at cleaning up the sign at the south entrance to Drayton Valley that was sprayed with black paint. Original cost of the sign was between $4,000 and $5,000.

The Twin Rivers school division is looking at repainting sections of Frank Maddock high and H.W. Pickup junior high schools which were also targets of paint spraying.

All these senseless acts of vandalism are being investigated by the RCMP. Unfortunately, they can't do it alone. Public assistance is needed.

If someone, who has been affected by this rash of vandalism, was to post a reward that led to the arrest and conviction, it might aid the RCMP in solving the mysteries.

Vandalism can be costly. Besides repairing the obvious, it can lead to the loss of facilities.

A perfect example is the old outdoor skating rink west of the junior high school. Because of continued vandalism, the town decided the cost wasn't worth the effort and, the rink was torn down.

The tennis courts could be next.

Taxpayers' money used

Town distributing 5,000 copies of own publication

The worst part of holidays is the first day back on the job.

It's disappointing that I have to wait another 12 months for another vacation.

My first day back after a trip south to Waterton and Montana certainly wasn't dull.

It included killing several bats who had made a home in the eaves, changing some lights (I was careful not to fall this time) and work around a power failure.

Our holiday south included a side trip into Nanton to see former Drayton Valley golf pro Howard Vickers and a brief stop in Cardston to see Chris Lee, who heads up their RCMP detachment.

Did You Know that the town spent $700 of taxpayers' money last month producing 5,000 copies of their own Around Town publication?

It was distributed to households and businesses.

The town hopes to produce two or three of these yearly.

The province continues to do things that are impossible to understand.

First they come out and announce they are taking a strong stand against impaired drivers.

Then, they allow the ALCB to permit the use of credit cards to purchase booze.

IBEW picketers ordered to cease and desist

By Susan Mosciak

Electrical union members picketing PCL Construction and the Esso gas plant near Cynthia last week were given a cease and desist order by the Labor Relations Board.

Business manager Vair Clendenning said that won't stop them from getting their point across.

"We complied, but we'll find some other way to talk to them (non-union employees at the plant)," insisted Clendenning, of IBEW (International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers) Local 424 in Edmonton.

IBEW members picketed the plant at least twice last week in an attempt to talk to non-union employees on site about the advantages of being union, he said.

"They're getting ripped off on wages and they get no benefits," Clendenning alleged. "When that job is complete, those people will be laid off."

"Anybody joining the union would be looking at quite a good future — employment opportunity," he promised.

PCL project manager Gary Truhn said (prior to the cease and desist order), "We didn't have a collective agreement with the electricians and they're actively putting up an illegal picket."

Esso construction superintendent at the plant Allan Ellard said the injunction was being served so the union members would not interfere with people going to work at the plant.

Need to divest means layoffs

By Susan Mosciak

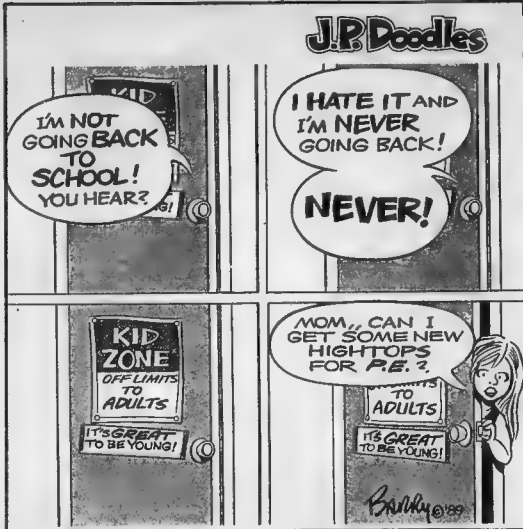

Fifty Mobil Oil employees will be pouncing the pavement looking for new jobs after being told they have been laid off.

"In Drayton Valley, this involves less than half a dozen employees," said public affairs manager Tom Cooney.

The reason for the layoffs is, according to Cooney, "Because we have been in a process of examining the assets and we have determined a need to divest." This will result in the need for changes, he said.

Another change planned for Drayton Valley is that about half a dozen employees will be moving to the Olds office, Cooney informed.

"We are in the process of restructuring and reorganizing," he said. "But there will be no significant change."

Roll-over kills one, injures another

One man is dead and another in stable condition in hospital following a single vehicle roll-over on Highway 31 near Seba Beach last Wednesday.

Don Hostyn, 31, of Thorby, was killed when the northbound vehicle he was travelling in entered the east ditch and rolled. Gordon Johnson, of Spruce Grove, was taken to Stony Plain hospital.

Cpl. Bob Bilodeau of the Evanburg RCMP said the police are not releasing who was driving the vehicle.

Scam draws term

By Susan Miners

A man who "convince[s] elderly homeowners they require home repairs, does a small amount of work and charges grossly inflated prices," according to Breton RCMP Const. Steve Shamber, has been sentenced to three months in a provincial correction centre.

Edward Alexander Stewart, 24, of the Edmonton area, was convicted of three counts of fraud in relation to victimizing the elderly (in Breton, Rocky Mountain House and Camrose) for home repairs.

"Some of these scams are not criminal in nature and are in fact civil. Breton RCMP are recommending extreme caution when dealing with home repairs," Shamber said.

He suggested using a local contractor you know or asking to see a business licence, getting two written estimates and guarantees for the work, and checking with the Better Business Bureau.

Local hospital compares well with B.C.

By Sue Kenyon
That the Drayton Valley Health Complex may be far more up to date than some B.C. hospitals, is at least one man's opinion.

Pat Tidman, the local lab supervisor, toured a few of the British Columbia hospital labs while vacationing in the province recently and is happy he is working in Drayton Valley.

"In my opinion, in terms of equipment, we are ahead," he said.

Looking specifically at lab equipment, he found a Revelstoke hospital with a relatively old model centrifuge counter, and yet a much smaller hospital in Golden with a newer model.

"Hospital staff right now are asking for more money (in B.C.) but I don't think money is the only issue. I think it is a shortage of staff," he says.

After seeing some B.C. labs, Tidman feels Alberta isn't in too bad a situation.

"Alberta is doing okay; it is only my view but I don't think we have any reason to complain," he says.

Bats invading area won't be around for long, says Humphrey

Several reports of bats have surfaced in Drayton Valley.

RCMP Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey says there were about 50 bats on the outside walls of the detachment early last week. That number dwindled to less than a dozen by the end of the week.

Bats have also been sighted in the downtown area and on the cement walls by The Western Review.

A spokesman at the MD office also reports receiving a number of calls from concerned residents.

However, Bob Booth, health inspector with the Alberta West Central Health Unit, said last Thursday he hadn't received any complaints.

The invasion of bats was investigated by Humphrey.

He found out they were migrating to South America and were expected to leave the local area once it got cold.

It's not known why the bats all of a sudden appeared locally.

According to information supplied by Alberta Agriculture, bats found in the province are generally beneficial because they eat insects.

Bats have historically inhabited natural roosting sites such as caves, logs, crevices, cracks and holes in trees.

Bats can become a nuisance when they use man-made structures rather than natural rooves in trees, logs and caves.

Many bat complaints arise from peoples' fears and not from real damage.

They are nocturnal, flying at night in search of insects.

Brown bats, both big and small, are common in Alberta.

Rabies is a serious viral disease often associated with bats. But according to information supplied by Alberta Agriculture, less than one per cent of all bats in the province normally carry the disease.

Potential exposure to bat rabies will be prevented if the bats are left alone.

Bats on the ground, resting in direct sunlight or demonstrating other abnormal behavior such as daytime flight should be avoided.

Do not allow children or pets to play with them.

If you are bitten by a bat, quickly and thoroughly wash all bite or scratch wounds with soap and water and seek prompt medical attention. If possible, capture the bat that has bitten a person or pet. Wear gloves to handle all suspected rabid animals.

Ten-year auxiliary shown appreciation

One of Drayton Valley RCMP's original auxiliary members was honored last Wednesday for 10 years of volunteer service to the province of Alberta and the RCMP auxiliary police program.

Glen Wood said he is the last of the three original auxiliary constables still involved in the program.

For his many years of dedicated service, he received a framed certificate of appreciation from staff sergeant Jim Humphrey.

Wood said the program gives auxiliaries a better insight into what happens in the community — good and bad — and it gives a perspective of police work.

"I think you see the other side — the policeman's side that I don't think people understand."

An auxiliary's duties are not like those of an actual RCMP officer, according to Wood. "Our involvement is mainly just back-up. Although we have the powers of arrest, we don't usually use them."

"Perseverance" is what kept Wood volunteering for the program for the past 10 years, he chuckled.

"It's something you start doing and you keep doing it," he added more seriously.

Wood has no immediate plans to stop volunteering his time. He said he'll be involved in the auxiliary program "for a while."

$6,000 reward for oil theft information

Over $150,000 worth of oilfield equipment thefts in June and July has prompted the three companies involved to put up a $6,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible.

"For us to sit by idly is negligent," says John Danko, drilling superintendent at Spartan Drilling in Niakwa.

He said the Spartan and Kenting. Drilling thefts occurred at sites around the Cynthia area and thefts from an Altec rig occurred in Drayton Valley.

"Theft is a real problem in the oilfield," says Danko. "You can't hire someone to sit there and watch. There is no profit margin to be able to do that."

Offering a reward is a unique approach for Spartan, Danko said.

"We got together with a couple of different contractors who had thefts occur on their rigs. It's an inexpensive way to get some publicity on it."

"The frequency (of theft) is not going down, it's going up, and it's virtually impossible to arrest and convict these people."

"Perhaps someone (who has overheard or noticed something) will come forward and shed some light and supply information to the RCMP that might be the missing link," says Danko.

Staff sergeant Jim Humphrey of the Drayton Valley RCMP said, "We do have a problem with our clearance (solved) rate.

There are charges resulting (in some cases) but not nearly as many as we'd like."

Neptunes take second overall at regional meet

By Paul Cudla
The Neptune Swim Club finished second at the much-anticipated regional swim meet in Hinton on the weekend.

St. Albert won the regional meet by finishing with a total aggregate point score of 600 points, as the Neptune club placed second with 455 points.

"It was a pretty good meet. The kids seemed a bit slow in qualifying on Saturday. But today (Sunday) a lot of them dropped times and swam better. They were pumped up today," Loren Regnier, head coach of the Neptune club, said.

Regnier added he believed more swimmers had qualified for the provincials from the Neptune club this season than any other season. They took a total of 65 swimmers to the meet.

The regionals at Hinton are set up as a qualifying meet for the provincials Aug. 26 and 27 in Edmonton.

The Neptune club prepares for the regionals all season and deem it as their most important meet.

St. Albert, the Neptunes, Stony Plain, Hinton, Spruce Grove, Westlock, Devon, Whitecourt, Edson and Jasper all participated in the regionals.

Neptune swimmers who have qualified for the provincials thus far are: 8 and under girls - Tara Brigley, Kori Samis, Amanda Smashnuk, and Marcie Regnier; 8 and under boys - David Rurka, Ryan Judson, Jeffrey Maclock, Nathan Edwards; 9 and 10 boys - Tim Regnier, Travis McGinn, Gregory Mulligan, Vijay Dosi; 11 and 12 girls - Kareen Hutzal, Kerri Meston, Carla Hutzal, Carrie Champagne, Tanya Sprague; 11 and 12 boys - Kevin Oscar, Troy McGinn, John Satterlund, Travis Brigley, Chris MacLure, Russell MacKenzie, Fletcher Bredin, and David Regnier; 13 and 14 boys - Ryan Unterschultz, Michael Swec, Danny Wilson, and Scott Maclock; 15 and 16 girls - Georgianne Rurka, and Shannon Bredin; 17 and up girls - Andrea Groulx; senior girls - Angela Groulx.

Tara Brigley (8 and under), and Andrea Groulx (17 and over) were most outstanding swimmers in their classes.

More Neptune swimmers are expected to make the provincials after a wild-card system, which is based on times, is used to fill out the remaining lanes for the provincial meet.

The Neptune swimmers listed above include both individual and relay team provincial qualifiers.

Last Chance wins tourney

Last Chance Trucking downed Doug N The Slugs 3-1 last Sunday afternoon to win the Lodgepole slow-pitch tournament.

Last Chance qualified for the final with an 11-4 win over host Shock Squad while Doug N The Slugs edged the Hi Flyers 5-4.

Both 'A' division semi-final games were played despite pouring rain.

Swan Hills captured the 'B' final as they defeated the M&D Fowl Balls. The Fowl Balls moved into the final with a 9-5 semi-final victory over the Grin Reapers.

Cesars' Bulldogs defeated the Scruffs to win the 'C' final and Family Ties had a big first inning as they downed the Breton Outlaws in the 'D' final.

"We didn't hit the ball," was how Doug Boliannatz described his team's loss to Last Chance Trucking in the final.

Organizers had to scramble to get other diamonds when rain both Saturday and Sunday made their main field unplayable.

Sixteen teams participated in the two-day event.

Yes I Can, Sir

By Frank Pavlick
Canada's Sports Poet
It started in May of 1988, Southpaw Dave Dravecky was tested by fate.

A quality pitcher, he suffered a fall,
There's never a good time for cancer to call.

The doctors were certain Dravecky was through,
But if dreams can survive,
why not miracles too.

In the gym worked the heart of this Giant each day,
And 18 months later he showed up to play.

Upset Cincinnati amid tears and noise,
It's said this was one of baseball's greatest joys.

He picked himself up and gave cancer a whack.

We ALL won the day Dave
Dravecky came back.

Local youth takes 10th at motorcross despite difficulties

By Paul Cudla
Matt Hunter, 16, finished 10th overall at the Canadian Expert Motorcross Championships held Aug. 6 at Antler Lake in Ardrossan.

About 30 riders congregated at the Antler Lake course from all over Canada ranging from Vancouver to Quebec. The race enjoyed a large spectator turnout of between 1,000 and 1,500 people.

Although Hunter, who lives in Rocky Rapids, finished well in the motorcross he was not totally satisfied with his performance.

"I didn't feel that good that day. I started having pains in my back and the motorcycle wasn't running that well," Hunter said.

Hunter's 125 cc bike was experiencing problems with a sparkplug during the Antler Lake race.

"I blame a lot on my bike but I think it's more of a mental attitude thing where you have to go out and give it everything you've got," Hunter said.

The Canadian Championship motorcross was an open race, which meant bike racers could use any size of bike. So as Hunter finished 10th overall he was beaten by a lot of riders who had more powerful bikes with 250 cc or 500 cc engines. He actually finished third overall out of the 14 competing 125 cc bikes.

Matt Hunter

Hunter said the Antler Lake track is, "probably the most demanding track in Alberta."

The track includes a 'hell drop' which is a 70-foot hill which Hunter said, "separates the men from the boys."

Hunter began riding when he was about 12. He races about 18 times a year and will next ride in Camrose Aug. 26-27.

So far this season, Hunter's best finish was a seventh overall in Lethbridge. He was actually leading a race in Medicine Hat but crashed with only nine laps remaining.

"I guess that shows that the race isn't over until it's over; until that checkered flag comes out."

Hunter is hoping to catch on with a sponsorship for next season which would help him cover his racing expenses.

Pieces for Junior B puzzle fitting together

By Frank Ryan

The pieces of the puzzle that will form Drayton Valley's new junior hockey team are finally coming together.

The team, one of seven to play in the Heritage Junior 'B' Hockey League, will be known as the Oil Caps.

They have adopted the colors red, white and blue of the NHL's Washington Capitals for both their home and away uniforms.

Rita Ashton designed the Caps' crest that will be displayed on the front of their jerseys.

The Oil Caps will open the 1989-90 hockey season on home ice with a weekend doubleheader.

Olds will be the visitors Friday, Oct. 27 followed by Carstairs the following evening.

Teams from Rocky Mountain House, Hobbema, Lacombe, Red Deer, Olds, Carstairs and Drayton Valley will play a 36-game schedule starting the weekend of Oct. 27-28. The league was notified at a scheduling meeting in Red Deer last Wednesday that Cochrane had decided not to enter the loop.

Due to the lateness of the league opener, Oil Caps president Bill Ballas expects to see the local club play a number of pre-season games.

Grant MacDonald, the Oil Caps assistant coach, will join Ballas at an ice users meeting Thursday. The team is not satisfied with the 75-minute practice time they have been offered once a week.

Two major areas of concerns are finances and a manager.

The team says they will need about $35,000 to operate.

So far only two sponsors have stepped forward to have their names on the Oil Caps' sweaters. This is considered a major fundraiser for the team.

The vacant manager's position is another concern. Anyone interested in the position is asked to call Bill Ballas at 542-2340.

Hot demand for ice time

There's a real demand for ice time in the Drayton Sports Centre this winter.

Recreation director Paul Nielsen says the return of a junior team will result in less ice time for most of the groups.

Men's recreation hockey will lose about two games per week while minor hockey will be cut back about 45 minutes a week.

"All the groups would like more time. However, there's only so much to go around," Nielsen says.

The recreation director hopes to settle all the ice time requests at a users meeting this Thursday.

In order to get all the ice time they need, minor hockey is expected to utilize the outdoor rink again this winter.

Coach teaches skills, emphasizes team play

In appreciation

Featured coach — Vern Bartlett

By Paul Cudla

Vern Bartlett has been coaching baseball for six years and tries not only to teach baseball skills, but emphasizes team play.

"As far as coaching is concerned you hope you can teach the kids a lot; not only about baseball but about basic living and dealing with other people; that's where the team sport comes in," Bartlett says.

Bartlett has been coaching with the Stony Plain Cubs for two years. He was outfield and hitting coach this season.

This season the Cubs, who had eight Drayton Valley players, successfully defended their provincial title and finished second to Team Saskatchewan at the Prairie Regionals in Fort Saskatchewan Aug. 13.

"It was a different kind of year as far as a coach is concerned because we had such a good team it was hard to decide what nine you want out there," Bartlett says.

Bartlett and Ed Hutzal, who was in charge of infielders and hitting, were the two Drayton Valley assistants working with the Cubs. Bartlett said he has learned a lot from Hutzal and will miss his baseball input next season as Hutzal will not be returning to coach the Cubs.

"Ed is probably the most knowledgeable baseball coach I've ever worked with. I'm going to miss his technical expertise," Bartlett says.

Bartlett, on the other hand, will be returning to coach the Stony Plain Cubs and said he looks forward to one more season with the team.

After another year with the Cubs, Bartlett plans on returning to coach bantam age players.

"I enjoy young people. Dealing with the boys is the fun part.

"You learn an awful lot from the kids as well. It's an honor to work with this bunch of good kids," he says with enthusiasm.

Bartlett added the success of the Cubs was buoyed by the parental support the team received.

"I'd like to thank the parents of Drayton Valley for their dedication to the kids and the Stony Plain Cubs," Bartlett says.

Other coaches with the Stony Plain Cubs who deserve thanks for a successful year are Pete Saisney, manager and head coach; Randy Penny, pitching and catching coach; and Ed Hutzal, infielding and hitting coach.

Concession bid expected at arena

Minor hockey is expected to submit a bid to operate the concession in the Drayton Sports Centre.

Recreation director Paul Nielsen says minor hockey has indicated an interest in the concession as a major fundraiser.

The town is currently accepting bids from interested groups. The deadline to make application to run the arena concession is Sept. 1.

Disappointment reigns at chuck/chariot races

Disappointing was the operative word at Lions Park this weekend as the Wildrose Circuit chariot and chuck races were cancelled on Sunday.

A ten-minute downpour of hail and rain flooded the track and caused the Sunday cancellation.

A fairly small crowd attended pony races on Saturday and organizers were hoping for a larger turnout to Sunday's races.

The races were being organized and sponsored by the Derrick Boxing Club.

On Saturday, Clayton Rowan from Buck Lake, took the chariot race with a time of 113.67 seconds to edge out Jackie Mackinaw, 113.71 seconds, also from Buck Lake, who finished second. Gordon Lappin of Sanguo placed third with 114.24 seconds.

In the ever-popular chuckwagons, Chris Spreen of Whitescourt, captured first-place with a lightning fast time of 115.78 seconds. Frank Nash of Drayton Valley took second in 119.55 seconds. Third place finisher Darryl Clayton of Fox Creek was timed at 120.0 seconds.

Jackie Mackinaw took second on Saturday.

DV Oldtimers take 'B' side at Castor tourney

The Drayton Valley Oldtimers continue to defy age and be a force to be reckoned with on the slow-pitch tournament circuit.

This weekend the team travelled to Castor to play in a tournament and ended up capturing the 'B'-side final.

The D.V. Oldtimers got off to a shaky beginning as they lost their first game to Power Laden (who lived up to their name)

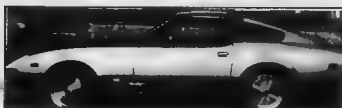

15-7. The Oldtimers bounced back quickly to beat Calgary 13-8, and Hanna 19-2.

In the 'B' final, Drayton Valley clobbered their opponents 15-3 and claimed the 'B' championship.

The D.V. Oldtimers can be seen weekly in the local slow-pitch tournament at Lion's Park.

Several celebrities expected at annual Golf Classic

The Battle River Tourist Association has been receiving some good feedback to their golf tour.

However, tourist manager Sylvia Clemens says she won't know just how successful the first-year promotion has been until the end of September.

To be eligible for several cash and merchandise prizes, golfers had to play a number of the area golf courses.

"It certainly has created interest," Clemens says.

A preliminary survey was sent out to all the participating golf courses to see if they wanted to go in the brochure next year.

Four area courses: Alder Flats, Breton, Birchwood Village Greens and Drayton Valley, participated in the program.

Amoco safety train makes debut

By John Switzer
Leduc Representative
The Amoco safety train, a unique railroad gas rail car emergency prevention and safety, made a debut in Edmonton recently.
In Canada for the first time, the Amox 911 owned by Amoco Oil Company of Chicago, Ill., was viewed by oil company and emergency response personnel throughout Alberta, including representatives from fire and police departments, CN and CP railway and Alberta public safety services.

Over 150 representatives attended a four-hour introductory safety training session.

Amoco has for years trained its employees and community emergency response agencies in the proper handling of tank cars during loading, unloading and when responding to leaks and other emergencies, says Dennis Lese, manager of Safety Regulatory Compliance for Amoco Oil.

He says until 1987, training was conducted mainly in a class room environment using audio-visual presentations and static displays of valves and other tank car fittings. While this method of training was time tested and effective, it did not provide the realism and improved understanding possible with a "hands on" approach.

Since safety and logistics concerns preclude using tank cars in product service for training purposes, it was decided to dedicate a tank car solely to training and to equip it in such a way as to be able to simulate any tank car in the Amoco fleet and most other tank cars in service today. The result was Amox 911, the Amoco safety train.

Built in 1972, as a two-compartment, 99,980-litre general service tank car, Amox 911 was redesigned to Amoco's specifications in 1987 and further modified last year by Rescar Inc., at their shop in Lingview, Texas.

Lese says, "We want to have a full fledged rail car so we can keep it a real life situation."

Training is tailored to the requirements of the sponsoring organization or facility and can provide an overall view of tank car fittings or can concentrate on one type of fitting or situation, he says.

In two years, the safety train has been used to train over 5,000 company and emergency response personnel.

Amoco plans to have the train and truck return to Canada in the next couple of years to make the training more available to additional company and response personnel.

The sign which is all the controversy is about.

Evergreen clutters tourism battle

By Frank Ryan
The Evergreen Tourist Association has thrown an unexpected curve into the local membership situation.

The Edson-based tourist association recently erected a large sign just north of town on Highway 22.

It appeared unknowingly, in the middle of a membership tug-of-war between Evergreen and the Battle River Tourist Association. That issue will hopefully be settled at a provincial tourist meeting next month in Calgary.

At the present time, the MD is situated in both tourist associations.

The Battle River association recently approached the MD about seeking permission to leave Evergreen for their side.

John Erickson, MD manager, says the erection of the sign was a total surprise — especially in the middle of a boundary issue.

Terri Tymchyshyn, marketing manager for Evergreen, says the sign shouldn't have come as any surprise. It's just one of several the tourist association has been putting up in the past year.

According to Tymchyshyn, Evergreen received a permit to put up the sign from Vacuator becoming common on farms

The labor-saving grain vacuator is becoming a more common piece of equipment on Prairie farms.

Besides reducing the awkwardness of removing and cleaning grain from bins, the device also improves the farmer's working environment by cutting back on exposure to grain dust.

"While the farmer may know about the advantages of this type of equipment, he still has to ensure the equipment is a practical and necessary investment for his operation," says Garth Nickorick, an Alberta Agriculture farm business management economist.

Fair loan rate?

"Some farmers might make an arrangement to use a neighbor's machine on a trial basis. A common question we're getting is what is a fair rate for that use," he says.

A good neighbor rate, says Nickorick, is in the four- to five-cent per-bushel rate for the use of the vacuator, or an hourly rate of between $20 and $25 for a vacuator with a 500-bushel capacity. The borrower would supply the tractor power, fuel and labor, he adds.

Full custom service rates would be considerably higher on a per-hour basis. The full service would include the tractor, vacuator, fuel and labor at a rate of $70 to $80 per hour.

Farmers looking for extra storage might try renting bins

By Garth Nickorick

A good yield at harvest may pose a problem for farmers who need extra storage capacity during and after harvest. For farmers who don't want to invest in new bins, renting is a practical alternative.

A rental charge of 12 to 16 cents per-bushel capacity of the bin for the six months to a year the bin may be needed is a reasonable rate. The rate is based on current prices for metal bins set on a wood floor and current interest rates.

Older wooden bins in the last part of their useful life may be rented for considerably less.

Grain storage should be a consideration of any land leasing agreement. Landlords aren't required to provide grain storage. Be sure to discuss the use of buildings when negotiating a lease. Grain storage may be included in the land lease agreement, or it may be a separate item.

Nickorick is a farm business management economist with Alberta Agriculture in Olds.

Disease outbreak hits local trees

An outbreak of birch leaf miner has surfaced in Drayton Valley.

Darren Urkevich, facility foreman with the town, says he has spotted the disease in several areas.

Urkevich says most of the affected birch trees are on private property.

Damage by the insects (fenusa pusilla) are confined to the leaves.

The first signs of attack are small light green areas on the leaf surface. As these spots develop they turn into brown blotches, usually several per leaf.

Larvae feeding between the upper and lower surfaces of the leaf are the cause of these blotches, which slowly increase in size and merge. Eventually, most of the leaf turns brown.

This brown-blister effect is characteristic of damage caused by birch leaf miners.

Although most of the inner leaf tissue where the food for tree growth is manufactured may be destroyed, this need not cause serious damage. A healthy tree should be able to withstand several years of light to moderate attack without being killed.

Birch leaf miners do cause stress that, combined with the lack of adequate moisture and attack by tree borers, may cause branch dieback.

Because the insects feed inside the leaf, special treatment is required for control.

Most of the recommended insecticides are systemic, which means they are absorbed by the plant, and carried to the leaves, where they kill the feeding larvae.

This takes time (about one week), so the blotches may continue to expand in size for a while after treatment.

Make the first application of the recommended insecticide to the soil, bark or leaves as soon as the damage is noticed.

If the tree was attacked the year before, which is the case in several instances in Drayton Valley, apply the insecticide as soon as the leaves are fully open, without waiting for the damage to become noticeable.

According to information supplied by the town, a soil drench with dimethoate EC is the most effective method of control, killing the larvae in the leaves.

Birch leaf miner is affecting many of the birch trees in town.

Negotiations with various oil firms underway

By Marilyn Thugland
Leduc Representative

Negotiations are underway with oil firms in Edmonton and Calgary to find sponsors for segments of the $48-million Leduc tourist project. Tourism committee member Don Baruer says he is unable to reveal names of companies involved during the preliminary stage of discussion however, officials from several companies enthusiastically expressed interest.

Members are seeking oil industry sponsorship of the oil interpretive centre and golf course to be located on 188 hectares (470 acres) of airport property.

The project, intended to expose Alberta's oil industry to the world, was initiated by Bauer and Brian Hughes, both familiar with the oil industry.

A recent feasibility study predicts the project, once built, will be self-sufficient, generating the $2.3 million annual operating cost and a surplus of about $170,000 annually. Total taxation revenue is expected to yield $1.5 million yearly.

The centre, which includes a ride simulating an oil rig blowout and 24 outdoor exhibits, is expected to attract 350,000 visitors yearly.

Nichols gets step up with position in city

Bruce Nichols will be leaving the Drayton Valley Association for Community Living (previously Drayton Valley Association for the Developmentally Handicapped) next month.

Nichols, who was on the association's executive for the past year and also spent a year as program coordinator, is taking a job in Edmonton with Arch Enterprises and Training.

"It's a step up for me," is how Nichols described the move.

He starts the new job Sept. 11.

The association has formed a selection committee in an effort to fill the unexpected vacancy.

In other association news, Nichols says expansion plans are still on hold.

Prior to the provincial election, the association had made application to the province for $190,000 in capital funding. But since the election, Nichols says nothing has happened.

As a result, a move into a 9,000-square-foot facility east of Woodland Chrysler is on hold.

Liberal ag critic blasts gov't

Liberal agriculture critic Nick Taylor has blasted the Alberta government for its failure to preserve and protect prime agricultural land.

Taylor pointed to the impending construction of the Norcen Carbondale sour gas processing plant just north of Edmonton as evidence of the government's neglect.

"This plant is being built on prime Alberta farmland, when there is plenty of more suitable, less productive land nearby. Why are we wasting some of the most productive farmland in the world by putting a gas plant on it?"

The Liberal MLA criticized the Alberta government for its complete failure in responding to this matter.

"The minister of agriculture locates gas plants virtually anywhere because the government needs the money, while the minister of environment states he is only responsible for reclaiming the land after it has already been ruined," says Taylor.

"Meanwhile," Taylor continued, "the local council has refused to accept a petition from local concerned citizens calling for a plebiscite on the rezoning of this land for industrial purposes, and now a development permit has been issued, and construction activity has begun in spite of a pending court decision. The minister of municipal affairs claims he is unable to intervene in this matter on behalf of the local citizenry."

Taylor decried the fact at least four ministers of the Crown have failed to deal with this problem in any meaningful way. "The concerns of local citizens have been thwarted while this government twiddles its thumbs," claims Taylor.

Leduc kicking off 90th birthday bash Sept. 9 with pancake breakfast

By Bill Ingles
Leduc Representative

The schedule is finalized for Leduc's 90th anniversary. But there's still one secret...the flavor of the birthday cake. "It's a surprise, you'll just have to line up to find out the flavor," says Ald. Arlene Hamilton.

From a Saturday morning pancake breakfast to a Sunday afternoon concert in the park, Sept. 9-10 will mark the anniversary.

The birthday bash starts with a pancake breakfast Sept. 9 from 7:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. It will be held under a tent on the east side of the Black Gold Centre.

At lunch the Leduc Merchants' Association will host a hot dog barbecue in the vacant lot at 50 Ave. and 60 St. It will feature a hog dog on a bun, drink and ice cream cone for 25 cents.

In the evening, a beef-on-a-bun supper at the curling rink will lead into Leduc Mayor Oscar Klak cutting the birthday cake for dessert served by the aldermen.

A dance featuring L.A. Freeway starts at 8 p.m.

After dark, a fireworks display will cap Saturday's activities.

A church service will begin the events on Sunday and later in the day a musical presentation will be offered at the Civic Centre.

Pulling together

The town's theme of "pulling together" is depicted in a large mural in the lobby of the town office building. The unidentified youngsters in the photo, taken from the files of The Western Review, are shown pulling together on a real rope. The picture was the town's submission to a large photo collection displayed at the recent Winter Games.

Alberta government feels partial settlement offer is fair

On Friday, July 28, in a speech to the legislature, Premier Getty presented the government's response to the Code report.

He has acknowledged the general findings of the Code report and responded with some very difficult, but fair, decisions. We believe they are the right decisions balancing a number of responsibilities and obligations.

The response came one week after the Code report was received and two years after the Principal Group's investment contract companies collapsed.

Alberta will provide a settlement offer to all investors of First Investors Corporation (FIC) and Associated Investors of Canada (AIC) of 18 cents and 15 cents on the dollar respectively. This offer, together with sums already distributed, means investors can now expect a total return of 75 cents on the dollar, representing principal, interest and credits to June 30, 1987.

The total cost of the government settlement offer to contract holders will be between $65 and $85 million. This settlement will be handled within the 1989-90 budget.

Given the complex and unique circumstances of this affair, the government believes this partial settlement offer is warranted. It is important the government ensure by its actions that Canadians have confidence in financial institutions regulated by Alberta.

This is not an unprecedented action. There are other instances where governments have made payments to depositors or

Vandalism a problem

Several town sites have been hit by vandalism lately. Black paint was sprayed on the entrance sign south of the town limits and also the sanitary landfill sign.

Tennis nets at the Rotary Park courts near the indoor swimming pool have been ripped off and destroyed.

Broken glass had to be cleaned up at the reservoir courts near the hospital.

And, the skylights at the reservoir have been tampered with.

The town is hoping the black paint sprayed on the entrance sign can be cleared off without too much trouble. If not, the sign which originally cost between $4,000 and $5,000 will have to be sandblasted.

A peek at the life of the RCMP

By Susan Mosecicki

I didn't get to wear a uniform, I didn't get to carry a gun, and I wasn't given an opportunity to drive the patrol car — but for one night I was allowed a glimpse into the life of a Drayton Valley RCMP officer.

I was first taken on a tour of the detachment by Const. Art Servante. He introduced me to CPIC (Canadian Police Information Centre), a miraculous computer that contains data the police use on a daily basis.

To ensure I wasn't at the top of the Ten Most Wanted list, I asked Servante to open up my file. To my relief, I am not a wanted felon. I mean, it would have been so handy if I was, being already in the police station and most certainly not a fast runner.

I also saw the room where the police do the fingerprinting, take flatterer mug shots and where the breathalyzer instrument is located.

My next steps took me through the cells which, thanks to CPIC information, I was not inside of.

The next two rooms were more my style: the ping-pong room and the coffee/video room. The latter, I was told, is used for videos to keep the police up to date on the latest in crime prevention.

Servante and I then went out to the unmarked car, better known in some circles as the ghost car, and started out on our evening patrol.

Among my many questions directed at Servante was, "What is the most satisfying aspect of police work?"

"In a lot of cases, it's getting the wrongdoers before the courts," he answered.

The most dreaded thing an officer is responsible for is, according to Servante, "Notifying somebody of a death in the family — the next of kin of somebody who has died as a result of a highway accident."

While stopped getting gas, Servante explained how the radar instrument works. Two tuning forks set to two different frequencies are used to test it. If the frequencies are correct on the radar instrument, it is working.

One unfortunate young lady found out how well it was working when she was stopped and given a speeding ticket.

Our travels took us to a rural bar where we waited outside while another RCMP officer checked inside for a person he wanted to see (if you know what I mean). The search was unsuccessful, and after returning to Drayton Valley and patrolling the town streets a little longer, we did a check stop in town.

The check stop resulted in no charges and the police chatted amicably with people passing through it.

Const. Servante went off shift, shaking his head at some of my questions I'm sure. I then joined Const. Grant MacDonald and auxiliary constable Danny Vanucci in a regular patrol car. I was in the back seat this time which appeared to arouse the curiosity of many, who I hope will read this and know I have not been punched into CPIC's memory bank.

Free room and board?

While I was with MacDonald and Vannucci, two people were stopped and requested to blow into the Alert, a roadside screening device; both passed and were allowed to proceed.

The constables also drove a man to a local hotel, stopped to push a tractor tire off the road and stopped to check a local bar.

A young man stopped to pick flowers from the front of a building in town, and lucky for him, he pulled the roots up with them.

"Picking flowers for the lady?" MacDonald asked him. "What a gentleman."

Drayton Valley, I'm going to leave policing to the experts — the RCMP.

Smile...you're in a check stop

CheckStop promotes 'firm is fair'

"Firm is fair" was the message Const. Dave Heaslip and Const. Peter Clark were trying to promote in a random check stop approximately one kilometre east of Alsike on Highway 39 recently.

More than 100 vehicles were stopped and checked by the two officers who were looking for various violations including impaired driving, liquor in vehicles, unsafe vehicles, etc.

The check stop resulted in only one written warning and three verbal warnings. The two officers used the opportunity to hand out CheckStop information pamphlets.

Approximately half a million vehicles are stopped at over 20,000 CheckStop locations each year. Through this program, as well as other enforcement practices, more 28,000 Alberta drivers are charged with an impaired driving offence each year.

Part of the "firm is fair" message is that people who drink and drive will get caught, will be charged, will pay a price (licence suspension), and might end up dead.

According to statistics, almost 27 per cent of drivers in fatal collisions, and another 12 per cent involved in injury accidents have consumed alcohol.

It is a criminal offence to be driving or have care and control of a vehicle while your blood alcohol concentration (BAC) is over .08 (80 milligrams per 100 millilitres of blood), although drivers can be unsafe with a BAC as low as .05.

Top 4-H judges to have chance to compete at regional roundup

Alberta's top 4-H judges have the opportunity to travel and compete at two of the largest agricultural shows in the world through the sponsorship of Uniblok Canada and the Alberta Canada All Breeds Association (ACABA).

Eight senior members and once coach will attend the Canadian Western Agribition in Regina in late November and a four-member judging team plus their coach will go to the United States Western Regional 4-H Roundup in Denver, Colorado in late October.

The ACABA sponsors a trip for the top Alberta 4-H judge to the Denver National Western Stock Show in January.

Judging teams will be selected at the provincial 4-H judging school Nov. 3-5 at Edmonton Northlands. Participants learn about judging all types of livestock. Seventy 4-H members from across the province are invited to attend. They qualify to attend by competing at regional judging competitions.

Oct. 15 is the application deadline. Regional 4-H specialists can tell 4-H members about selection procedures in their region.

Hard-line policies should be avoided

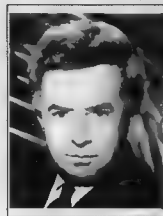

Some recent commentary in the press has suggested the recent Export Development Corporation loan to Northern Telecom in support of their sales to China represents a deviation from Canada's previously announced policy response to the tragic events of June 30 in Beijing. This is not the case.

My statement of June 30 stated the existing links between Canada and China forged by government, industry and academics should be preserved to the extent possible; that new elements in the relationship should focus on people-to-people exchanges, and programs which benefit or lend prestige to the hard-line policies of the Chinese government should be avoided.

We see no gain to the cause of reform in China to be had from a policy which is "anti-China." A poorer and more isolated China is not in the broad interest of the Chinese people. The equipment being sold by Northern Telecom will enhance the ability of the Chinese populace to outside China to communicate amongst themselves, and with the outside world.

Yellowhead Report

with

In reviewing this loan proposal we took into consideration whether the military or state propaganda apparatus could make use of this telephone switching equipment. We think it is a minimal risk and are conscious of the important role telecommunications played and plays, as it allows Canadians and others communicate directly with people in China as events unfold.

This equipment's function is to improve telephone links in the interior of China and with the outside world. It is my view the spread of modern communications and transport has generally served to advance the opportunities for populations to exchange information and to compare views.

We have seen elsewhere in the socialist world that the modernization of these societies can serve to advance political change.

$200,000 earmarked for projects

Family and Social Services Minister John Oldring has announced that new funding has been approved for community-based family violence prevention projects.

A total of $200,000 has been earmarked for educational and demonstration projects in the 1989-90 fiscal year. "This fund will respond to community needs, allowing agencies and individuals to mobilize their resources and use their creativity in responding to local family violence issues," says Oldring.

The community-based family violence prevention project fund is designed to encourage public education and demonstration projects to test the feasibility and effectiveness of innovative approaches to preventing family violence. Prevention projects will attempt to eliminate factors contributing to family violence, or at least lessen their impact. These factors are evident in individuals, families, communities and society as a whole.

Deadline comes

The first submission deadline for educational initiatives commencing prior to April 1990, is Sept. 15. The submission deadline for educational starting in the 1990-91 fiscal year is May 15, 1990. The deadline for demonstration projects beginning in either the current fiscal year or the 1990-91 fiscal year is Dec. 1, 1989.

Assistance available to greenhouse producers

An initiative aimed at promoting technological development and diversification in the province's commercial greenhouse industry has been announced by Agriculture Minister Ernie Isley.

The program will run until March 31, 1993. In the 1989-90 fiscal year $200,000 will be available to assist greenhouse producers. Qualifying producers may receive up to $40,000 over the four-year course of the program for assistance in eligible projects.

The greenhouse industry assistance program is designed to help producers with the adoption of new technology, the upgrading of production systems and crop diversification.

Assistance is available to both new and existing greenhouse producers. Where projects involve the construction of new greenhouses or replacement of existing greenhouse structures, only those costs directly related to the introduction of new technology will be eligible for assistance under the program.

To be eligible for assistance, a producer must have a minimum of 6,000 square feet of space producing greenhouse crops for at least six months of the year. Funding will be based on half the total cost of eligible projects, to a maximum of $1 per square foot of production space, and will be paid to producers upon project completion.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Lenard Jones, a first-class firefighter for about eight years in Drayton Valley, says firefighting is not exactly what the average person would call an enjoyable pastime.

"It's mostly not fun but a good bunch of guys can make it fun," he explains.

"Being a shift worker, it's very difficult to belong to any club and firefighting fits in with shift work. I come to as many meetings as I can and I attend as many fires as I can."

Jones says the fire department is like a club. "I get to meet the guys at unplanned times and it allows me to have a social life beyond work."

He also volunteered his time on the Alix fire department for 10 years before coming to Drayton Valley.

Use of soft CFCs a stop-gap solution

By Samia Vallemand

Warning: Your old air conditioner is probably environmentally unfriendly.

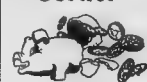

The refrigeration coolants most widely used in air conditioners have been chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs). When released to the air, these gases rise to the upper levels of the atmosphere punching holes in the ozone layer.

Production of CFCs must be cut in half by 1999 to meet the requirements of the Montreal Protocol, the international conference that sets goals for reversing the deterioration of the ozone layer. Meanwhile, manufacturers are endeavoring to find a substitute.

A stop-gap solution is the use of "soft CFCs." These are ones that delete less than five per cent of the ozone eaten by the nastier ones.

While CFCs may be released during the manufacture of cooling appliances, the main threat is from older appliances that break down and may lose coolant from damaged components. Codes are being proposed requiring refrigeration technicians to recover such gases from faulty appliances.

Unfortunately, the technician often arrives too late to contain the CFCs. This is because most consumers do not service their appliances until they break down. Regular servicing would help avoid some of the problem. Regular maintenance (keeping the coils and condenser dust-free and clean) would also be helpful.

If, sad to say, your refrigeration appliance bites the dust, check with your municipality for what steps can be taken for collection of the coolants for safe recycling.

OPPORTUNITY

Man N.A. Woodworking, Fort McMurray's largest custom kitchen cabinet maker, was on the verge of being closed in 1988. Now Gardner, who had been working as foreman, had the opportunity to buy out his former employer.

CHALLENGE

With Tim McElroy's economy as it was, getting financing for the buyout through conventional sources was difficult.

SOLUTION

Gardner approached AOC with his idea and received financing for the buyout. AOC also provided him with consulting services as a management company was being set up to suggest improvements. Since then the company has grown from a staff of four to ten and gross sales have increased from $400,000 in 1987 to $600,000 last year. Plans are underway to purchase completed drafting equipment that will be used in the new kitchen.

Volunteers welcome to help install playground equipment

The sound of hammers will be heard throughout Drayton Valley later this week.

Crews will spend Friday and Saturday erecting new playground equipment at Eldorado elementary and St. Anthony schools.

Volunteers are needed.

If you plan on helping, take a shovel, rake, hammer, or all of these.

Work at St. Anthony's gets underway at 9 a.m. Friday morning.

In-town bus fee up

Users of the in-town bus system are looking at a major increase.

The St. Anthony's school board heard last Thursday the in-town fee would be increasing from $30 to $100.

The board heard that the increase was needed to cover costs.

It is also hoped the $100 fee will discourage people who live within two or three blocks of school from using the system.

St. A's gets new curtains

New curtains have been okayed for seven front windows at St. Anthony school.

The board approved the curtains at a cost of approximately $1,000 at its meeting last Thursday.

Committee reviews crop insurance

Associate Agriculture Minister Shirley McClellan says excellent progress was made by the ministers of agriculture in taking steps to accommodate farmer needs for a more flexible and comprehensive crop insurance program at the federal-provincial agriculture ministers conference in Prince Albert, Sask.

"I am pleased to report there is agreement the federal Crop Insurance Act should be amended to provide flexibility in the calculation of average yield to allow for technology adjustment and to cushion the impact of disaster years," says McClellan. All Prairie agriculture ministers are in agreement spot loss hail insurance must remain a part of the basic crop insurance program.

Agreement was also reached on amending the federal Crop Insurance Act to permit higher coverage levels.

Other features discussed will permit greater flexibility in accommodating individual farmer's needs and include the development of methodologies and criteria to accommodate risk splitting. This could involve separate contracts for dryland and irrigated crops.

The establishment of criteria to allow for the insurance of new, non-traditional crops, for which historic yield information is unavailable, will be considered.

The federal/provincial review committee will give further consideration to these and other improvements and provide cost estimates by September 1989.

WORKING FOR ALBERTA

Let's be honest — use logic

By Glen Leale
DV Alliance Church
 "Now it is our preference that decides against Christianity, not arguments."

These words were written by the famous philosopher Friedrich Nietzsche. While he clearly did decide against Christianity, at least he had the honesty to admit his decision was based upon preference, not logic.

I have heard people say that believing in the God of the Bible does not make good sense. They argue the theory of evolution adequately explains man's origin, therefore there is no Creator. Or they say the Bible is full of errors and so is unreliable. I have even heard people argue that Jesus could not have performed miracles because miracles are impossible.

An honest investigation of the facts and an elementary understanding of logic would quickly point out the error in such reasoning.

Nietzsche was correct. If we decide against Christianity we do so because we want to: Christianity is too inconvenient; it is too demanding; it is too humbling; it is too restricting.

From the Pastor's Pen

If the truth were owned, we are far too busy building our own little kingdoms to pray "Thy Kingdom come." We enjoy the pleasure of wrong-doing for the moment and gamble we will escape the consequences of our actions. We may even have good intentions of making our peace with God someday — but not today.

If Jesus Christ is irrelevant to our lives today let us at least be honest as to why that is so.

It is not because God is absent. It is not because the Christian faith is unreasonable. It is not because science is in conflict with the Bible.

If Jesus Christ is irrelevant to our lives it is because we prefer it that way.

New church being built

The Alliance Church has announced plans to build in Drayton Valley.

Footings for the 62-by-26-foot church on property immediately south of the Coach Motel, will be poured during the Labor Day weekend.

Volunteers will erect the church the weekend of Sept. 15 and 16.

Meanwhile, the site is being cleared across from the Valley Inn (along Highway 22) for a new Jehovah's Witness building.

Father Carroll takes up position in city

Saint Anthony's Roman Catholic Church in Drayton Valley will get new priest next month.

Father Bob Cornell, currently a Canadian Armed Forces chaplain, is expected to arrive in mid-September.

He will replace Father Martin Carroll who left Drayton Valley last Monday for a position with the church in Edmonton.

Father Gordon Roebuck of Evansburg will handle the local services in the interim.

Former owner of Pelican Mills

New scholarship formed

A $1,500 scholarship has been set up by Al Owen, former owner of Pelican Spruce Mills in Drayton Valley and Edson.
Weyerhaeuser of Canada hosted a dinner for Owen in Edmonton last month, when the announcement was made.

Dave Keelan, spokesman for the scholarship program says actual documents must be drawn up with Owen's lawyer. He says nothing is yet legally finalized, but it looks like a $1,500 forestry scholarship.

"There may be a restriction; the scholarship must be awarded to a forestry student," Keelan said but did not confirm anything.

Keelan says as far as he knows the scholarship would be to the University of Alberta.

Alberta Transportation will not upgrade Highway 22

By Frank Ryan

Alberta Transportation doesn't have any immediate plans to upgrade Highway 22 north of Drayton Valley.

In fact, any major changes to the highway system in the area are 15 to 20 years down the road.

That was the message the municipal district and representatives of town council received last Wednesday from a four-member Alberta Transportation delegation.

Charles Lendzion, regional director, told the MD his department was looking at some twinning on Highway 22, but it wasn't part of their immediate plans.

The decision means there will be no changes at the airport, campgrounds, golf course or Northside Meadows intersections.

Lendzion told the MD traffic volume on that section of road doesn't warrant any immediate changes.

"The volume is not high enough to twin," he told the MD.

According to a recent survey about 4,000 vehicles pass the area per day now.

A minimum of 6,000 are needed before any changes would ever be considered.

That news didn't sit well with two members of the municipal district council.

"Another 50 per cent and it will be unreal on that stretch of highway," Reeve Henry Rondeau told the delegation.

"It's a minor miracle there hasn't been a bad accident on that road," Councillor Bob Both explained.

Because of the concerns,

Lendzion said there was a possibility some work may be done before twinning, but he didn't go into detail.

Some of Transportation's short-term improvements include relining the south entrance of 60th street, improving the access into Pelican Mills and redesigning a new roadway (to be known as 41 Ave.) into West Valley Park off Highway 22.

Abduction, robbery nets man five-year sentence

A 20-year-old man received a five-year jail term in Drayton Valley Provincial Court last Thursday following an abduction and armed robbery in Lodgepole.

Mark Allan Carlson of no fixed address, was given the five-year sentence following an Aug. 21 incident.

According to the RCMP, a lone male entered the home of an unidentified Lodgepole man, held him at knife point and forced him outside to a vehicle.

At that point the victim was forced to drive to Drayton Valley and ordered to withdraw $300 cash from an instant banking machine.

Then, the two men returned to Lodgepole.

The victim was released and threatened not to say anything of the incident.

Drayton Valley RCMP were called at 11:30 p.m. and had Carlson in custody an hour later.

Carlson, who has a lengthy criminal record, received five years on a charge of armed robbery and five years concurrent on a second charge of forceable confinement.

He will also have to serve an additional six months consecutive on a break and enter charge, following an incident at the curling rink in Lodgepole.

Driver pleads not guilty; trial set for December 11

A trial date has been set for a Fallis man involved in a two-vehicle accident that claimed the lives of three Drayton Valley residents.

A lawyer representing Edward Mark Borle appeared in Evansburg provincial court last Monday and pleaded not guilty on four charges.

The trial has been set for Monday, Dec. 11 in provincial court at Evansburg.

Borle is charged with impaired driving, refusing to provide a blood sample, operating a motor vehicle in a manner dangerous to the public (dangerous driving) and driving without due care and attention.

Margaret Doreen Henriksen, 32, six-year-old daughter Laura and four-month-old baby Dallin, were pronounced dead at the scene of the two-vehicle collision on Highway 22, about six and a half kilometres off Highway 16 on June 3.

Roller

Yes indeed, dreary sun-worshippers relief is in sight for the Drayton Valley area weather. While initially the same old cloud and rain will haunt our skies, sun is forecast starting in the middle of the week.

Tuesday: mostly cloudy with scattered showers; High 17, Low 6.

Wednesday: clearing and mostly sunny in the afternoon; High 18, Low 8.

Thursday: mainly sunny and warm; High 18, Low 8.

Friday: sunny and warm; High 22, Low 10.

Crown lands in flux

By Paul Cudla

Judge John Robbins's July 17 decision not to recognize lessees' rights to restrict access to Crown grazing land leaves approximately 24,000 acres of Drayton Valley district land in a state of flux.

The precedent-setting decision by Robbins gives unlimited access to Crown lands and gives lease holders no legal right to control access to the land.

The case started in High River when George Alexson was served a ticket for hunting without lessee's permission on Crown land.

Don Baker, land resource agrologist for the Public Lands Division, says the decision counteracts the previous status quo.

"For years it was taken that lessees have the right to limit access," Baker said, adding, "if somebody wanted to use the land base they would have to come to the lessee."

"The ruling as I understand it gives you (the lessee) the right to eat the grass and that's it."

Uniform has raised concern about the court decision as they have pledged support for an appeal of the decision.

Uniform charges that the decision might lead to violent confrontations between hunters who will now trespass without hesitation and lease holders who are trying to protect their leased land base.

Baker does not foresee hunters becoming a problem on the 150 quarter sections of land in the Drayton Valley district. The Drayton Valley district is a Public Lands boundary which includes parts of the MD Branson, county of Leduc, country of Parkland and the county of Lac St. Anne.

"In this area lessees haven't phoned me up to complain about hunters," Baker said, adding the area has an abundance of unowned forest on the outlying borders which are prime hunting grounds.

Baker said the decision leaves Public Lands in an awkward position.

"We've had a way of operating for a number of years, but now this decision throws it up for debate."

"The courts have ruled. Until such time it is appealed, that is the law. It has created a lot of grey areas," Baker says.

The Crown intends to appeal Judge Robbins's decision and has been backed by the Alberta Cattle Commission and Uniform.

Slush stop turns key

A trip to the Red Rooster for slushes for Lane Dunham's children turned into more than the usual stop.

"I consider them my good luck charm. We had to stop to get a slush and that was the reason behind it," Dunham said.

While at the Northend Red Rooster, Dunham filled out a car give-away entry form and he turned out to be a lucky token key winner.

Dunham hasn't won anything before but with the help of his two children Lindsay, 2 1/2, and Lincoln, 4, he now has a shot at a car.

He said he'll let his wife worry about what kind of car the Dunham family will get if their token key turns out to be the winner.

"I'll let my wife pick out the type. She can have whatever she wants," Dunham said.

Key winner Lane Dunham (middle) and his two children, Lincoln and Lindsay.

The car winner will be decided at the chamber car give-away dinner to be held Sept. 20.

Each key winner will be given two tickets to the dinner and participating businesses will also get two free dinner tickets. The dinner is open to the public.

MD bypasses bypass

Alberta Transportation doesn't have any plans for a highway bypass around Drayton Valley.

Charles Lendzion, Transportation's regional director told the MD last Wednesday that any thought of a bypass or another bridge across the North Saskatchewan River was only preliminary thinking at this time.

He indicated it was at least 10 or 15 years away.

However, at the same time, he cautioned the MD it could be sooner, if the town decided to expand across Highway 22.

Lighten up!

Crosswalk lights are being taken down along 50 Ave. at 47 St. New lights are going up at the intersection.

Annexation put on hold

It will be at least another month before anything is known about possible annexation.

John Eriksson, municipal manager of the MD isn't expecting any word until the end of September.

The final decision will be made by cabinet.

And, according to Eriksson, it could be the end of the year before the final decision is made.

In the meantime the waiting continues.

The fifth season... year rains came down, didn't quit

The weather is beginning to get people downright annoyed.

A lot of emphasis has been placed on thunderstorm and tornado warnings and watches this summer.

That has people looking more to the sky, to study the cloud formations.

There's been very little to 'summer' this year.

Call it the fifth season...the year the rains came and didn't know when to quit.

There's also been reports of a hail storm near Alder Flats measuring four inches deep.

And, of cars on Highway 16 between Evansburg and Wildwood driving into the ditch to avoid being blown off the road by high winds.

Anyone holding an outdoor event in the past couple of months always seem to be looking to the heavens for their weather report.

Sports teams have been hit especially hard. A recent example was the Lodgepole slow-pitch tourney, where games were played in pouring rain.

It's got to the point this year, that if you're planning to do something outdoors, go ahead and do it despite the weather report.

No one's too sure what all this unsettled weather means.

But because of the late spring, most people would like to see some summer weather around for at least another month.

U.S. tourist loves Canada but not our gas prices

It doesn't seem to matter where you travel that the subject of gasoline prices comes up.

During an overnight stay in Fort Macleod during holidays, we got talking to an American tourist from Kalamazoo, Michigan who had travelled up and down the Alaska Highway.

He said he just loved Canada. The one exception was the gas prices.

During his journey up the dusty Alaska Highway he paid 69 cents a litre.

Another couple we met from New Jersey while taking a scenic boat cruise on Waterton Lake, also said how much they liked Canada, but not the gas prices.

Frankly Speaking By Frank Ryan

At East Glacier Park, Montana we paid $1.21 per gallon at an Exxon station. In Whitefish this price dropped to $1.16.

Most of the prices we saw were around the 46.9 mark...which was the local price the last time we filled up.

Cardston had the lowest Canadian price at 43.9 while Vermilion Crossing, near Radium, was selling regular gasoline for 49.9 per litre.

Besides the gas prices, that Michigan traveller told us about a stopover he made in Edmonton.

He made reference to acres of parking, hundreds of stores, an indoor water park and roller coaster.

Of course our kids knew he was talking about West Edmonton Mall.

It's a small world isn't it?

'Only town kids will have to pay'

Dear Editor,
Re: 230 per cent hike in school bus rates

A conversation I had with Twin Rivers school division 65, Mr. Bill Weaver, has left me angrier than before I met him.

The way the school bus system is set up, the government subsidizes children in the rural community to within a one-and-a-half-mile radius of the town limits of Drayton Valley. Those children who are within that limit have no subsidy.

Yet Twin Rivers has deemed that those children who live in the rural community within that radius can travel on the school bus free. But the children of Drayton Valley must pay!

Mr. Weaver agrees with me that this is unfair, but the Twin Rivers school division has decided only the town kids will have to pay and that's that!

Seems to me the parents of Drayton Valley are subsidizing those parents with children within the one-and-a-half-mile radius in the rural community.

The last thing we need in this town is a child seriously hurt or killed walking to school, by the vast amounts of construction traffic that parades through our busy streets, because the parents could not come up with $100 per child up to a maximum $200 per family) by Sept. 11 to bus their children to school.

There is the option, of course, to pay monthly with Twin Rivers' interest rates higher than the banks' at 20 per cent.

We live with the ash from the mill because we had no choice; we should not have to live with this!

Tell the Twin Rivers bureaucrats to re-think on who travels for free and who has to pay!

Mike Sellwood

Forestry consultant approved

A Lodgepole resident has received permission to operate a forestry consulting service.

The MD approved the request from Dan Walton at a municipal planning commission meeting last week to operate the service in Lodgepole.

No heavy equipment storage will be allowed at the site and any buildings will have to be of a portable nature.

The permit will have to be renewed yearly.

Reader wants answers from Twin Rivers

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in regard to the Twin Rivers school board's decision to increase school busing fees in the town of Drayton Valley.

I don't understand why Twin Rivers school board had to raise busing from $30 per student to $100 or $200 per family. This is an increase of three-and-a-half times and a lot of people will not be able to afford it.

I feel the school board has made a terrible mistake concerning this issue.

Between instruction fees, bus fees, buying running shoes, school supplies, pictures, swimming and skating, you are looking at a family with two children spending $500 or more.

I feel that with all this money plus our school taxes we, as parents of children in this educational concern, deserve a statement of where all this money is going.

What do you say, school board — do we get some answers?

Increase hard on lower incomes

Dear Editor:

Re: new in-town busing fees:

We feel this increase is very unfair, especially to low income people.

Twin Rivers school division tells us they want to discourage people close to schools from taking the bus and that the number of kids wanting busing has increased. This may be true but it doesn't take a genius to see enrolment hasn't more than tripled to justify more than tripling busing fees.

We think it is wrong to discourage people from busing kids by putting fees out of the reach of some families — thus developing a system where families with higher incomes ride and those with low incomes don't.

As if this isn't bad enough, they have an installment plan for those who don't have the $200 (per family) now — but these people are once again penalized for being low income families and have to pay $40 more than those who can afford to pay now.

Would it be so terrible if they could pay the $200 in 10 equal $20-installments instead of having to put out $40 extra? The drivers don't get their full year's salary in September, the buses don't burn all their gas or require all their maintenance in September, so why do we have to pay the full shot in September — the month when we have all our other school expenses?

We also feel it's pretty sneaky to give no prior warning of these increases so people have little time to protest, make other transportation arrangements or try to budget to have the money available.

McGee to announce decision at conference

Tom McGee is expected to announce his decision to run for mayor at a press conference Thursday night.

McGee, who has been on council for six years, hinted earlier in the summer he would run for the position.

Incumbent Bob Mayhew has already announced he will seek another term as mayor.

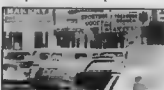

McGee's announcement will come at a 7:30 p.m. meeting scheduled for the Oak Room at the Black Gold Inn.

Several other members of council are expected to make their announcements shortly. The nomination deadline is Sept. 18.

Clark meets with ID

The first-ever meeting between Yellowhead MP Joe Clark and representatives of ID 14 was held recently.

A wide range of subjects were discussed. These included the federal government's new nine per cent goods and services tax, twinning of the Yellowhead Highway, the long- and short-term effect of coal usage and expansion of the Jasper/Hinton airport.

Mill accident hospitalizes man with broken wrist

A 28-year-old Drayton Valley man was injured in an accident at the mill last Monday night.

Greg Kulchisky, an equipment operator, suffered a broken wrist and numerous broken bones when his hand was crushed at the wrist.

He was taken to the local hospital and later transported to the University of Alberta hospital in Edmonton.

According to oriented straddleboard mill manager Percy Champagne, the injured worker will remain in hospital for a week to 10 days.

A representative from the Workman's Compensation Board visited the mill last Wednesday to carry out its investigation.

The accident took place at 8:15 p.m.

Alberta Occupational Health and Safety is not planning on taking any action in the mid-June explosion that rocked the Pembina Educational Consortium.

Thirty people who were attending classes in the consortium and the truck driver managed to get out of the building without serious injury.

Joe Miller says his department has talked to the truck driver, but other than that, they are not planning on taking any action.

"We don't have much more of a role to play," Miller added.

While Miller admitted there might be similar situations in Drayton Valley or across the province, his department didn't have the manpower to go door-to-door.

The powerful explosion the morning of the Evergreen rodeo parade was a result of a torch lighting vapors from sour water residue in a tank truck.

In-Town Bussing

Twin Rivers School Division No. 65 wishes to provide additional information regarding the recently announced in-town bussing fees.

The Board's operation of the in-town bussing system has been optional and also on a highly subsidized basis. Twin Rivers receives no grant monies for transportation of students within 2.4 km (1.5 miles) of the attended school. In reality, the per pupil cost last year was $152.00 or $30.400. In total. The $35.00 per student ($66.00 per family), formerly charged, simply was not sufficient in terms of recovering reasonable costs for the services.

We trust that Drayton Valley parents will appreciate the intent of the increase. The new rate for the yearly pass is $100. per student, to a maximum of $200. per family.

Local athletes contribute to Zone 5 win

Drayton Valley athletes did their part in helping Zone 5 win the overall medal count at the Alberta Summer Games in Brooks Aug. 9-13.

Zone 5 took the overall medal title with a count of 182 medals. Zone 6 finished second with 118 medals.

With a total population of about 300,000 Zone 5 has the largest population base of the eight zones. Zone 5 stretches as far north as Athabasca and includes Whitecourt and reaches as far west as Jasper and east to Elk Island Park. Southern-most points are Leduc and Drayton Valley.

Drayton Valley athletes won a total of six medals.

In volleyball, Chris Skinner and Cordell Skinner won golds as Zone 5 beat Scona 15-5, 10-15, and 15-9.

Track and field competitor Orest Trzaska (14 and 15 year-olds) won a gold in the 400 metre race and a bronze in the 4x400 metre relay.

Lisa-Marie Vowk (16 and 17) won a bronze in the 4x100 metre relay, placed sixth in long jump, fourth in discus, and fourth in javelin.

Shelly Ostapowich competed with the Z's 8 coxed four junior rowing team and won a gold.

Matt Hunter, 15, took his 125cc motocross out for a sunset ride last week. Hunter races competitively in motocross events.

Team Western looking for players

Team Western, an adult hockey team based in Winnipeg, is looking for players to participate in a recreational tour of Finland and Sweden this season.

Dave Springett organizes tours for players, regardless of ability, each year and hopes to find some interested area players to sign up for the trip.

All the players will have a great hockey experience, get to visit different countries and compete against Europeans, which few players get the chance to do.

Two Drayton Valley players, Bruce Rezewski and Jason Polk, who played with Chevron in the Oilmen's Commercial League, were part of Team Western last season.

They played five games in an 11-day span in mid-March.

Each player is responsible for their own travel expenses while the club provides uniforms, jackets, duffle bags and makes all the arrangements.

The entire team, which has included players from B.C. to Ontario in past years, is filled on a first come, first serve basis.

All area players are welcome and can get more information by calling Springett at (204) 632-1521.

Ice shortage causes scramble

Teams using the sports centre are busy scrambling for ice time.

Especially the new junior 'B' Oil Capitals and minor hockey.

Their demands may be met, if a complicated schedule of ice-swapping can be worked out.

The juniors are willing to give up their Friday/Saturday ice when they are out of town for games in lieu of practice time Thursday nights.

Grant MacDonald, assistant coach of the Oil Capitals told an ice users meeting last Thursday it would be difficult to run their team without 90-minutes practice per week.

"I don't think you'll find a junior team in Canada with one hour of practice ice per week," MacDonald told his fellow ice users.

"We need two practices a week in order to be competitive," he added.

MacDonald ruled out utilizing the outdoor rink for practices.

Like minor hockey and the recreation league, the Oil Capitals may have to look for additional ice in Evansburg and Warburg.

With the return of a junior team, most of the users are losing some time. And they would all like more.

Minor hockey for example, will have to find time in their limited schedule to fit a midweek team in. The time they used on Fridays last year for games has been lost to the juniors.

"I would love to say let's build another rink. That would solve everything," recreation director Paul Nielsen stated.

Simon Kelly, representing the recreation league, said he found the situation frustrating. "But, there's nothing we can do. There's good ice in Evansburg and Warburg," he explained.

Lanny Schultz, past president of minor hockey, said his group would have to use the outdoor ice or some kids won't get any ice time in a week.

Due to a shortage of ice minor hockey president Kevin Henry indicated an interest in 6:15 a.m. ice on Fridays.

The sports centre will officially open to the public Sept. 23 although some groups have already booked ice for the day before.

Lindhahl increases commitment to racing, and winning follows

By Paul Cudla

Todd Lindahl has made a more serious commitment to cross-country bike racing this season and that has led to wins in the national and provincial points series.

Lindhahl, who races in the expert over-200cc class, came from behind to win the national circuit by eight points, after a win July 16 at the Gloomy Creek trail in Rocky Mountain House. He was behind by two points in the overall standings going into the race.

The winner of a CMA (Canadian Motorcycle Association) sanctioned race receives 15 points in the cross-country standings.

He has been racing competitively for three years, experiencing his most successful season in 1989.

"It's just a matter of getting better. I'm a bit more serious about the racing this year, and I'm more financially set up," Lindahl says, adding, "It's (racing) quite expensive." Lindahl has a sponsorship from Cycle Works in Edmonton which covers the expense of his bike.

In 10 races so far this season, Lindahl has raced his 406cc ATK to seven firsts, one second, one third, and one DNF (did not finish).

Lindhahl, 19, was born and raised in Drayton Valley and is a graduate of Frank Maddock high school. He started riding when he was six.

The cross-country bike racing season stretches from May 22 to Oct. 1.

With one point race remaining in the provincial cross-country series, Lindahl leads the expert over-200 cc class by a wide margin of 70 points.

Lindhahl who already has wrapped up the provincial points championship will sit out the last race on Labor Day weekend to give himself a rest.

His next race will be at the second race of the Prairie Dog Challenge which is a three-race national CMA event. He won the first race July 30 in Vega. The second race is scheduled to be run Sept. 11, one hour west of Lodgepole at the Dome Tire station.

In cross-country, Lindahl says the key is consistency.

"I try to pace myself from the beginning of the race. I don't like to ride too hard at the start. Sometimes you're riding for six hours straight, so there is a lot of endurance to it."

Cross-country courses can range in length from 50 miles to 127 miles. Courses wind through all types of terrain including forest, swamp, hills and rocks.

"Your bike always has to be in top shape because you're riding for six hours, not 20 minutes."

Lindhahl says the toughest course he has ridden is the one in Rachehorse Creek which is right inside the Frank Slide. The course has no actual cutlines and requires the rider to manoeuvre over large rocks.

For the remainder of this season Lindahl will be gearing up for the next two races in the Prairie Dog Challenge, Sept. 10 and Oct. 1.

For next season, Lindahl is planning on moving up to the masters class and hopes to go to the United States, to race.

Neptunes excel in finale

By Paul Cudia

The Drayton Valley Neptune Swim Club capped its most successful season in club history by capturing a total of 26 medals at the provincial meet in Edmonton on Sunday.

The 26 medals won by Neptune swimmers at the Kinsmen Aquatic Centre, represented a club all-time high beating the previous record of 22.

"We tapered the swimmers right and they seemed to peak at the right time," Loren Regnier, head coach of the Neptune club, says.

"It's been a good year. I'm pretty pleased with the results. I couldn't have asked for more," Regnier adds.

A contingent of 48 swimmers from the Neptune club went to the provincials which also was a club record.

Regnier says he enjoyed the swimming season and was sorry to see it end.

"We had fun, and if you can say that at the end of the year it's successful, no matter how many medals you have won."

The Grin Reapers faced Shock Squad on Saturday.

Part II wins slow-pitch tourney

Part II went undefeated in winning the Drayton Valley slow-pitch 39-team windup tournament on the weekend.

They had little trouble downing a tired RCMP Flame squad 17-4 Sunday night in the championship game.

Part II qualified for the finals with a 19-4 decision over the Flamings in semi-final play and eliminated Mom's Team from the playoffs with a 27-4 win in a quarter final playoff game. They went undefeated in two two preliminary matchups.

The RCMP, playing their third game in a row, were simply no match for Part II's big bats.

The Flames downed the California Coilers 17-4 in the semi-finals. Earlier in the day, they scored a come-from-behind 7-6 win over the Koolers.

ICG defeated the Oldtimers 11-6 in the 'B' final. They qualified for the final with a 9-7 win over Whiskey Jack while the Oldtimers edged Shock Squad 5-4.

Family Ties downed the Grin Reapers 4-3 to win the 'C' division

The Can Oxy Outlaws scored three runs in the last of the seventh for a thrilling 7-6 win over the Crusaders in the 'D' final.

And Pelican Mills defeated Pembina Resources 9-3 in the 'E' clash.

It rained throughout the weekend, causing organizers to change diamonds several times.

As far as league play is concerned, the weekend tournament brought the curtain down on another successful slow-pitch season.

Numerous ice requests cause sport committees to form and plan time

The figure skaters are interested in holding a three-week camp next August.

As a result of the request for summer ice a committee, one from each sport, has been formed.

Four other hockey groups who use the sports centre, minor, girls, junior 'B' team and the recreation league, have also expressed their interest.

The town will need to get an answer, one way or another before budget time in November.

One of the major concerns will be the trade fair, usually held in September. This year it's being staged in the sports centre.

If summer ice was installed, it would be the town's intention to keep it in for the balance of the season.

Rugby clinic draws only three Rob Landers is disappointed.

Landers was responsible for setting up a rugby clinic at West Valley Park last Sunday.

Unfortunately, only three people showed up including Ian Humphreys, coach of the Alberta team.

While he admitted being a little disappointed, Landers says he plans to keep trying to get the sport going here.

Hopefully, he will be able to get something going through the schools.

Anyone interested in playing rugby or learning more about the sport are asked to call Rob Landers at 542-2243.

Agriculture tour deemed overwhelming success

A recent agricultural tour organized by the MD was an overwhelming success.

Barb Shackel, agricultural fieldman for the MD, reports 91 area farmers participated in the one-day tour. Two buses were used to transport the delegation around the countryside for the day.

The tour included a pasture rejuvenation demonstration at a plot started by the MD's agricultural services board just north of Drayton Valley on Highway 22.

Land for the three-year project which contains nine sections was donated by John MacKenzie.

The next stop was Peter Kwansyia's in the Whitby area for a reduced round-up demonstration. This project was started by Gerald Laarhuis, the former district agriculturist.

After lunch and a tour of the clubhouse at Birchwood Village Greens the two buses made their way to the plots near Breton. This is a University of Alberta project.

Then it was on to Charlie Parker's for a freeze branding demonstration.

The day concluded with a barbecue at the kitchen in Willey West Park.

Shackel was extremely pleased with the turnout despite unsettled weather conditions.

She was also pleased with what had been accomplished — input from area farmers and a lot of ideas for next year's tour.

Cooperation for the MD's first ever agricultural tour was also gratifying. Shackel was appreciative of the support given by the business community.

This site just north of town on Highway 22, was donated by John MacKenzie as part of the MD's three-year project.

MD stepping up attack on vandalism

The MD is taking steps it hope will reduce vandalism at area parks.

A sign has already been placed at the entrance of the Lodgepole Park and others will follow at Willey West and Easyford.

The sign indicates to users the park is located in the municipal district and includes two phone numbers if they wish to report any vandalism.

One number, 542-7777, is the MD's number during regular working hours and the other, 542-7711, is the emergency/weekend number. All calls to the emergency number will go directly to an answering service.

Terry Fleming, supervisor of land services for the MD says they haven't had any calls from the sign at Lodgepole.

Fleming says if they were to get a call about something happening at the parks, they could send special constable Mike Anderson out immediately.

In other MD park news, Fleming says his department is busy getting bids for toilets.

Toilets are needed for Lodgepole park and the ones currently in use at Willey West may be changed. "We're not happy with them. We want a sealed unit," Fleming explained.

However, the toilets at Easyford will stay.

What do you think?

Some parents are upset that the in-town bus fee has jumped from $30 to $100 per student this year.

What's your opinion?

If you have an opinion on this issue or any other matter, send your signed letters to The Editor, Western Review, Box 6860, Drayton Valley, Alta. T0E 0M0.

Red tape miring attempts to establish food bank

Red tape appears to be holding up Drayton Valley's bid for a food bank.

Eva Flanders, one of the organisers, said last week she was just waiting for the final paperwork to get back from the provincial government.

Once that has been received, a concentrated effort can be made to find a location.

Flanders is also hoping for ratification of their name. If accepted by the government, the local group will be called the Low Income Society Food Bank.

If the final documents are available by Thursday, Flanders will return to town council and see if they can help with a building.

Then the group will be able to get their collector boxes out and start accepting donations.

"We've had numerous calls to help and others who want to donate," Flanders says.

So far, any expenses needed to get the program off and running have been paid by the organisers, Catherine Meredith and Flanders.

New mobile home park plans okayed by MD

The MD has cleared the way for a new 39-stall mobile home park south of the old drive-in theatre.

Marcel and Sandra Brisebois received the go ahead at a municipal planning commission meeting last Wednesday.

The mobile home park will be built on a 15- to 20-acre site. The land is presently owned by Adrian Meier. The Brisebois plan to purchase the land.

They will have to enter into an agreement with the town in regards to sewer servicing.

MD manager John Eriksson cleans off their new highway signs erected last week near Alaska and south of Breton.

Province won't pay

The province has no plans to widen 50 Street south to the highway.

Charles Landrian, Alberta Transportation's regional director told the MD last week the province has no intention of paying the cost of widening 50 Street from just past Woodland Chrysler to the highway.

He says the town has received grants which it may consider using for this project.

Fuel check ongoing

By Paul Cudia

If you were recently stopped by officious brown-clad men inquiring about what color gas you were using, then you were part of a continuous Treasury Department audit program.

Miles McDougall, executive assistant to the provincial treasurer, called the spot checks, which are designed to test for purple fuel, "an ongoing process."

Purple fuel is cheaper because it does not include the same taxation as fuel available at the pump, but is

MD already planning Christmas party

Christmas is still more than four months away but the MD is already making plans.

Council agreed at the meeting last Wednesday to contribute $1,500 to the party this year.

Plans are being made for a party in mid-December only allowed for use in farm vehicles.

"I don't think it's a widespread problem (misuse of purple fuel) but it is a problem," McDougall said.

The purple fuel spot check is part of the Alberta Farm Distribution Program (AFDP).

"The way in which residents can be made aware of the regulation is by spot checks," McDougall added.

Sugar can be ommitted from canned fruits, jams

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
Every summer I am asked about canning fruit or making jams and jellies without sugar.

Sometimes it's a concern related to diabetes or other health reasons, and sometimes it's a desire to reduce sugar intake. Diabetics who need to know about exchanges can receive counselling, recipes, etc. from the Canadian Diabetes Association (488-4834).
Canning fruit
Sugar is not necessary for safety in canned fruit. Its purpose is to conserve the flavor, shape and texture of the fruit. The sugar syrup can be omitted completely if desired, and either boiling water or boiling fruit juice added instead. If the fruit is simply waterpacked, however, it tends to become soft and has a wishy-washy flavor.

Fruit packed in its own boiling juice produces a satisfactory product without added sugar. The juice can be made by boiling some of the fruit with a double amount of water. Cook this for a few minutes, mashing the fruit to extract the juice. Force the pulp through a food mill or strainer. Bring strained juice to a boil and pour over fruit in jar. Canned apple juice can also be used with most fruits.

Unsweetened pineapple juice compliments the flavor of pears. The jars should be sealed and processed allowing 10 minutes longer than the time given in a canning timetable.

Jams and jellies

Sugar in jams and jellies helps to bind all available water so it's not available for micro-organism growth. Low-sugar jams and jellies are, therefore, perishable and generally need to be stored in the refrigerator or freezer.

There are two feasible alternatives for sugar-free or low-sugar jams and jellies: a commercial pectin or artificial sweetener with gelatin as the thickening agent. Give me a call at 542-5368 if you would like some recipes or more detailed information. Keep in mind you cannot reduce the sugar in a standard jam or jelly and still get a proper set.

Honey as a substitute
Honey may be substituted for sugar in canning and preserving.

Because of its distinctive flavor, however, only light-colored, mild-flavored honey should be used. In canning fruits, substitute for all or part of the sugar, depending on the flavor desired.

For more information about preserving with little or no sugar, give me a call at Alberta Agriculture, 542-5368.

Clark lends support for Barrhead RCMP

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark has lent his support to have a rural RCMP detachment placed in Barrhead.

The County of Barrhead with the support of the town, has been trying to have a rural detachment for several years.

At the present time the county is served by the Westlock detachment with small areas of the county patrolled by Mayerthorpe, Stony Plain and St. Albert RCMP.

Clark has requested Pierre Blais, the solicitor general of Canada, review the proposal and ensure the regional offices meet and discuss the local policing needs with officials of the county and towns.

Tight beef supply causes price rise

By Ron Giets
Alberta Agriculture
Market Analyst

A favorable slaughter cattle price outlook for the next few months and the prospect of lower feedgrain prices means an improved price outlook for calves sold this fall.

Prices this fall are expected to exceed last year's price levels but won't rise to 1987 levels. Good quality feeder steers in the 800-900 pound weight range are expected to fetch between $90 and $95/cwt. The best prices will likely be in September and again late in 1989.

Expected tight beef supplies are the dominant factor in the fall outlook for slaughter cattle. Industry projections are optimistic. Some analysts are suggesting Omaha Choice steer prices to go as high as $80 (U.S.) this fall.

The outlook for fed cattle prices in Alberta parallels the U.S. outlook with general price improvement expected between now and mid-fall. Extremely current marketings by Alberta feedlots helped to prevent large price declines during the summer. By September seasonally reduced fed cattle marketing should push prices into the low $80/cwt. range.

Every December for the last four years Alberta slaughter cattle prices have declined. Prices for the first quarter of 1990 are expected to be similar to those in 1989.

The pace of slaughter cattle exports to the U.S. increased dramatically during the second quarter of 1989, particularly in comparison to the first three months of the year.

Canadians want info on cosmetic ingredients

Consumer's Corner

By Samia Vallewand

The overwhelming majority of Canadians want to know what's in the cosmetics they use every day. That is the conclusion of a report prepared by CAC Quebec for Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada.

The most troublesome cosmetic products appear to be soaps, makeup and deodorants. Ingredient listings would allow allergy sufferers to avoid products that trigger a reaction. The listings could also help doctors determine the substances to which their patients have a sensitivity.

It is not clear how many Canadians suffer allergic reactions to cosmetics but one poll found that one adult in four reported what they thought to be a reaction. According to another estimate, as many as 4,000 people a year suffer reactions severe enough to prompt a visit to a doctor.

Ingredient listings would have other benefits, even for non-allergic consumers. Shoppers who found a particular product effective or easy to use, could look for a less expensive one with the same ingredients.

One criticism levelled by the cosmetic industry is that ingredient labelling would be too costly. It could increase costs by as much as $16 the first year and $3.06 in following years. That is well within the range of what consumers say they are willing to pay for the added information.

A revamped label should include all ingredients. It should identify the type of ingredient — wax, oil, etc. — and its function in the product, such as binder, conditioner or color. A toll-free number for additional information would be beneficial. An expiry date and an indication of how long the product should be used for would help do away with cosmetics that are kept too long.

The good news for consumers is that ingredient labels could be on the horizon whether manufacturers want them or not. In the United States they have been required since 1976. The free trade agreement could see those products cross the border.

TURNING OPPORTUNITY INTO ENTERPRISE

OPPORTUNITY

In the early 1980s, owner Rick Brink got his start in the novelty production and distribution business by working out of a briefcase. In just a few years, product demand increased substantially.

CHALLENGE

The business grew rapidly and required a larger, more convenient space to manufacture new products and store increased inventory.

SOLUTION

Brink went to AOC for financing of both a new manufacturing and warehouse facility and the larger inventory required. The company exports such novelties as 44 and Nintendo paper products, wedding and party novelties for distribution across North America. Parts doubled its gross sales this year and employs 20 people. Ten of them sales representatives working across Canada.

Pembina Educational Consortium

And the move is on...

By Frank Ryan

It's been a hectic week for staff at the Pembina Educational Consortium.

Last week's work load included moving into their new quarters in the old town office in the downtown core.

The move gives executive director Joe MacLellan and his staff 8,000 square feet, an increase of 3,000 over their location for the past eight years.

MacLellan is excited about the move.

"It's a better location, more space and will undoubtedly help us with the walk-in traffic," MacLellan says.

The Powerhouse Further Education Council will also occupy space in the recently renovated building.

For Jean Saunders, the consortium's administrative assistant, the move is like being back home.

Saunders spent many a late night in the old town hall as a member of council.

What used to be the council chambers and combined mayor's office and coffee room will now be a computer room.

The new facility will still have four classrooms, the same as their former location, however they will be much bigger.

Other rooms in the new consortium, across from the provincial building, include student lounge, counsellor's office, main lobby, library resources centre and offices for MacLellan, Saunders, Powerhouse coordinator Val Tucker and Lee-Anne Lyon, the new program assistant. There's also a paper storage room and washrooms, including one for the handicapped.

Handicap access to the consortium will be through the rear entrance.

A large conference room in the basement will be used for oilfield training and power engineering will occupy another room.

MacLellan says he plans to spend the week looking out the window.

Since being appointed executive director in 1983, his office didn't have any windows.

His new office is located on the west side (facing north) of the building, just about where the fire department parked their trucks.

Last week's move was made much easier with the assistance of three trucks and five men from Leduc Safety Services who volunteered their time to assist.

Now the job of unpacking starts.

Leduc Safety Services help with the move.

Moving into the new building...

Lee-Anne Lyon packs for the move.

Home of the Week

Is your family growing? Need a bigger home?

This well-laid out five-bedroom, 1,320-square-foot home was built with you in mind.

The upstairs has three bedrooms, all very large in size. Off the master bedroom is a half bath.

The kitchen measures 14 feet by 14 feet, the dining room is 16 feet by nine feet and the living room is 16 feet by 20 feet with a beautiful bay window.

The fully developed basement features a family room, two bedrooms, laundry room and cold storage and full bath.

All of this and 720 acres of farmable land corner to corner with a large, new shop and three 24 by 50 foot metal cattle shelters on cement.

Josh at Farmers and Ranchers, 542-2711, is the man with all the details on this beautiful home priced at $360,000.

Campaign urges motorist safety

There are about 250,000 elementary school students in the province, and the Alberta Motor Association's School Safety Patrol wants every one of them back in class for the new school year.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive!," the AMA's summer safety campaign slogan, takes on added meaning for the patrol's 13,000 members — most of whom are in grades 5 and 6 — with only one long weekend left this summer. They're preparing to do their part to make the start of the new school year safe. They have some tips for motorists, too:

● Be extra alert. Youngsters excited about seeing new teachers and old friends may forget their safety rules.

● Watch for children darting out from between parked cars.

● Observe reduced speed limits in school zones.

● Drive children to school only when absolutely necessary. Increased traffic contributes to unsafe congestion in school zones.

● Stop for school buses where required.

Labor Day is Monday, Sept.

4. For this summer's fourth and final long weekend, the AMA will again provide motorists with holiday weekend highway reports on a network of radio stations around the province.

In addition, the auto club's courtesy road patrol will give free assistance to any stranded motorists encountered on major routes into and out of Calgary and Edmonton throughout the weekend. These services are all part of the Bring 'Em Back Alive! safety campaign.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Spontaneity is part of the attraction to firefighting for Cliff Sutherland.

"There's really nothing that you have to spontaneously react to in a normal lifestyle. There's nothing that gets the adrenaline going like going to a fire."

He joined the department one year ago because "it seemed like a constructive way to spend some time."

"It's an escape from my work world," says Sutherland. He is a petroleum engineer and says he spends most of his time behind a desk. "This is reality. It's practical. You're using your hands and you're using tools."

This single young man seems to have found his niche with the Drayton Valley Fire Department.

New student handbooks for St. A's

Students at St. Anthony school will be receiving a new handbook this year.

The school board decided to purchase 500 handbooks at a cost of $1,292.

There will be no cost to the students for these handbooks that will include general information and a planner.

Principal Ron Williams told the board handbooks made for the staff last year proved to be very popular.

New sales tax driving business/taxpayers over cliff

Finance Minister Michael Wilson's plans to institute a universal nine per cent goods and services tax in 1991 shows the federal Tories' misguided road to recovery is driving individual Canadian taxpayers and businesses over a cliff, says Reform Party leader, Preston Manning.

The fact that Wilson is using taxpayers' money to hire communication experts to sell the new goods and services tax, shows how unpoplar the tax really is, says Manning. "Wilson did the same thing with the federal budget, and failed miserably to prove the Tories were doing anything meaningful to tackle the country's massive deficit," says Manning.

"We are not opposed to the goods and services tax in principle, if it is in fact more equitable than the taxes it replaces," Manning adds. "But Canadians are clearly opposed to giving the federal government increased tax revenues until it demonstrates an ability to control its overspending. And it is clear from the details released recently the GST is primarily a revenue-raising mechanism."

Manning pointed to a Conference Board of Canada report that predicts the new tax will actually bring in $27 billion in new revenue to federal coffers by 1993.

In the first year alone, it will collect $25 billion, $8 billion more than the current federal sales tax.

At the same time, Wilson

Preston Manning

himself predicts the new tax will boost inflation by two to three per cent.

And it will take 4,000 more bureaucrats to administer the new tax.

Manning says the government could see a full-scale tax revolt, if it doesn't change direction soon. He points out that in Japan, a far more popular government found introduction of a far lower GST politically unfeasible.

Manning challenges Western MPs, especially those from Alberta, to stand up and represent their constituents' opposition to the goods and services tax, even if it means "going against the party line."

Good turnout
at ball tourney

Terry and Heather Wolosyn and family holidayed in British Columbia. Larry Law visited his parents and relatives in B.C. recently. The Norm and Glenn Johnsons attended and exhibited cattle at the Mayerthorpe fair Aug. 12. Norm and Alma Johnson visited Dan and Debby Burki at Sangudo recently. Some of their land is under water from the flooding of the Peaddle River, ruining hay and crops. Don and Blanche, Gary and Thelma Cherrington took visiting relatives from England camping in the Rockies.

They then visited with Alex and Helen Karvenon at Grande Prairie. The next cutting bee at the Brightwood Cemetery is scheduled for tonight (Aug. 29). Don Cherrington attended a hay crop/pastureland insurance seminar at Lacombe Aug. 15. Rick and Shirley Cherrington and family of Calgary attended the Tuffin family reunion north of Evansburg Aug. 12. There was good attendance at the Aug. 12 and 13 ball tournament held at the hall grounds.

Pot-luck supper Sept. 2

Get well wishes are extended to Rose Saunders of Breton, along with belated get well wishes to Nellie Shave, also of Breton.

Sympathy goes to the family and friends on the recent death of Ralph Burria. He was born in Lincoln, Nebraska April 10, 1917 — one of Breton's early pioneers.

Blanche, Barnett of Edmonton has been visiting friends and family in the area recently.

Congratulations to Sandra and Ron Roos (Saubak) on the birth of Sarah Ashton Aug. 19 at Red Deer, a sister for Tiffany. Grandparents are Linda and Bill Saubak and Kay and Jim Roos of Breton; great-grandparents Muriel and Gunnar Hanson, also of Breton.

A pot-luck supper will be held Sept. 2 at 6:30 followed by a dance at the Funnell Centre in honor of Lloyd and Edna Ellis's 25th wedding anniversary.

Enjoy beauty of national parks year-round

Every year, millions of people spend their summer vacations enjoying the wonders of Canada's national park system. But, as fall draws nearer and the crowds begin to diminish, national parks provide the opportunity to enjoy the great outdoors at a more relaxed pace.

Many Canadians are discovering the advantages of visiting national parks during the shoulder season — the time between the stream of summer campers and rush of winter skiers. This interval, which begins after the Labor Day weekend, gives park staff time to clean up sites, drain water lines, make repairs, and take vacations of their own. But, a host of recreational activities remain available, and the beauty of our national parks is always ready to be enjoyed.

Numerous hiking trails and campgrounds remain open until snow closes them or their approach roads, and winter camping sites for the hearty are available year-round.

They really were flowers

Dianna Chapehuk would like to donate a bouquet of flowers from the base of her power pole to the person(s) who complained she was growing a fine crop of ragweed (scentsless camomile). As an avid gardener, she assures them she does know the difference between weeds and flowers.

'Rumble bumps' have been installed at the junctions of highways 13 and 22 as a warning to travellers on Highway 13 of the stop sign ahead.

Another dam to blow

Beaver dams such as this one in the Lindale area have been keeping Municipal District of Brazeau workers busy this summer. Several of the dams have been blown up. In some areas of the province beaver dams are being blamed for the continual high water EXTREMITY.

Picturesque postcard scene part of God's creation, too

From the Pastor's Pen

By Rev. Barry Parker

All Saints Anglican Church

Sitting here, on holidays, I can see the north Okanagan Valley in all its majesty. The shimmer of water, cabins dotting the shore as far as the eye can see. The rising slope of hills, parched and sandy, with irrigation systems pumping life-giving water in all directions. The hills in the far distance, turning to mountains that inspire awe and humility. Finally, a deep blue sky covers this landscape, a color that is rich and vibrant.

A tranquil scene. A picture that is deeply satisfying to a tired soul.

However, the tranquility is broken by the roar and exhaust of motor boats with skiers trailing. The picture is shaggyed by dirt bikes kicking-up dust and noise on the dry hills. The distant hum and bustle of the highway reminds me of getting from point 'a' to point 'b' in the shortest time possible. A frantic, hectic, tiring hum.

Yet, in reality, nothing is shattered. Nothing is lost. The picturesque postcard scene is as much a part of God's creation as the created ones who make all the dust, noise and busyness.

God is present in the vista. God is present in the busy world.

Regardless of view. Regardless of perspective. All of us can, like the psalmist of centuries past, take heart and hope:

"I lift up my eyes to the hills, from where is my help to come?"

My help comes from the Lord the maker of heaven and earth."

(Psalm 121:1,2)

Time will tell if (new tax) wounds will be lethal

Sure, nothing is certain but death and taxes. Yet until the new federal goods and services tax was announced, no one expected the two to occur simultaneously.

The new tax is a blow to small business, and time will tell if the wounds will be lethal.

It is not surprising that small business, which generates most of the jobs in Canada and constitutes much of the tax base, should remain the cash cow of government. At some point, however, the cow is going to go dry.

Now small business will bear the burden of collecting this new tax, a process involving more time and more paperwork. This is especially true in Alberta where businesses are unfamiliar with tax collection of this type.

In essence, the GST will come out of the profit margins of small business. Many of them won't be able to tack nine per cent onto the price of their goods and services and still enjoy the same amount of consumer patronage.

To remain competitive, small business will be calling a greater burden in either attempts to bear some.

Comment Taber Times of the tax or extra time and/or labor needed to keep track of it all.

Keeping business won't be easy. Retailers have the option of reporting sales tax on receipts or including it in the price of the item. How are consumers supposed to comparison shop? With difficulty, we presume, and with detriment to some retailers.

What about increased mailing costs for small business, when nine per cent is added there? It's already expensive. Likewise the cost of new and sophisticated cash registers likely needed to compute the new charge.

And those are only superficial costs. Wait until we see the bills for the new batch of federal bureaucracy needed to administer this white elephant. That will be an ongoing major expense to all Canadians.

Business and consumers, particularly those on fixed incomes, are going to be hardest hit, and they don't like it. No Albertan likes it.

including Michael Wilson.

It is easy to see why. A tax with some chance of effectively reducing the federal deficit might have redeeming value. This one doesn't carry that promise.

Instead, the GST is inflationary and regressive, and will lead to demands for higher wages and more unemployment — fuel to the deficit fires now raging.

The finance minister says the GST will ensure the country can continue to pay for programs and services Canadians value. Where has he been hiding? That's the whole problem in the first place.

In plain English, we can't afford all the programs and services we have now. They should be the first things to go; they should be dealt the fatal blows. Taxes are not the answer.

The prime minister is quoted as saying he and Alberta Premier Don Getty have "a sharp difference of opinion on sales tax." Good. At least the premier is retaining his sanity.

He won't have any trouble finding support for his opposition to the plan. Small business owners and consumers should be lining up to be counted among those against a tax that will reduce both quality of life and disposable income, if there is such a thing.

Presumably it is not too late for strong opposition to result in changes or cancellation of the federal plan for taxation.

Wilson says he's not going to shove anything down anybody's throats. That's because Canadians are already choking on the mere suggestion.

Death and taxes. Who would have thought someday they'd be synonymous?

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory of Peter Paul Schaefer who passed away August 31, 1989 at the age of 53 years.
What life thought we had that morning. What sorrow the day would bring. When a heart of gold stopped beating. Brought to us death and pain. God love best, so He took him away. Out of pain and suffering. God gave us strength to carry on. But what it meant to lose you. No one will ever know. A wonderful father, loyal and true. One in a million, that was you. Deep in our memories you'll always be. Sadly missed by all the Family.

Mayor's seat sought by Mayhew and McGee

By Susan Moscicki
This year's civic election October 16 will find more than one candidate vying for the opportunity to sit in the mayor's seat.

Bob Mayhew will be seeking re-election and Tom McGee, a town councillor for the past six years, announced at a press conference last Thursday that he also plans to run for mayor.

"My promise to the people of Drayton Valley is to work together as a team and to be approachable," McGee said.

"I believe in a democratic government: a government of the people, for the people, by the people, and I believe in the town of Drayton Valley that is not the case today. We have to change that."

"The town is in excellent shape (financially)," said Tom McGee. "I look forward to keeping it in excellent shape."

"I've seen the mistakes and I've made the mistakes," he said. "This has all helped to make me a stronger and more informed person. It's our strengths and your strengths and failures that shape your character."

"Our challenge has just begun. With your help and encouragement, I will be the next mayor of Drayton Valley."

Mayhew told The Western Review he "won't sit back and let the world go by," but didn't have any campaign plans that he wanted to release yet.

I enjoy being the mayor of Drayton Valley and I take it very seriously. I'm a man of great integrity and strict morals.

"I'm certainly intending to tell the people what I've done and what I intend to do."

"There's lots of things I intend to do - for all ages," he said. He also said they would be done in a "financially responsible manner" and "without borrowing."

Budget restricts expansion

The government doesn't have any plans to expand the provincial building this year.

Mayor Bob Mayhew informed council last Thursday any plans to expand the building have been put on hold due to budget restrictions.

The province has already purchased the land where the curling rink currently exists. The building is not part of the sale.

The proposed addition to the provincial building would house the offices of Forestry, Lands and Wildlife, Family and Social Services, Health and solicitor general.

Uproar over bus rates

By Susan Moscicki
Several parents are fuming over the "drastic" 185 per cent increase in school bus rates for in-town students but

Al Anderson, superintendent of the Twin Rivers school division, doesn't feel it is unreasonable.

"It's not a matter of $35 (per student last year) to $100 (this year, to a maximum $200 per family), it's a matter of what portion of the cost is reasonable for the division to pick up," he said. "The $35 was set without knowing what the service was going to cost us." Anderson said the actual cost per student last year was $152 and the total cost was $32,000 for in-town students.

He said parents who can't afford the whole amount in one lump sum can pay monthly installments. Interest will be approximately 20 per cent.

For those who can't afford the fee, said Anderson, "We'd like to have them come and talk to us but I often find that people who can't afford things like this find ways to afford other things."

Cathy Nelson and Mike Sellwood, two local parents, have organized a petition against the substantial rate increase.

"In two hours, we got 50 names," said Nelson.

They will be collecting more signatures and presenting the petition before the school division at the September 6 board meeting.

"I just don't think people can afford it (the increase)," said Grethe Falck, a parent with three children in kindergarten to Grade 6.

"I really find it hard to believe this board is acting in the children's best interest," she said. "There are going to be a lot of little children walking. It's always the little children that suffer."

"I think it's a drastic increase. It's too much," said Dianne Brewer, a parent of children in kindergarten and Grade 2. "I don't mind an increase, but I don't want it tripled."

"It just came about too fast," said Sellwood. "There was no time to plan for the added expense."

"I think if we have a show of strength it might carry a lot of weight with the board," he said. "If people do show up (at the board meeting) instead of just sitting back, it might sway the board."

Local News Briefs

A spokesman for Petro Canada says the recently announced layoffs should have limited effects in the Drayton Valley area.

Only one employee will apparently be affected by the voluntary early retirement package.

The MD has decided to donate $1,250 to the Brazeau ski team. The funds will be used to buy 200 bibs and a finish line banner that includes the MD logo.

Did you know...there are 1,780 school-age children in the MD.

Blair Proctor is moving to Raymond and not Nanton as indicated in this space last week.

Dawn Gunderson will replace Proctor as the band instructor at Frank Maddock high.

Robin Wenbourne has been appointed returning officer for the October municipal election.

Bad weather has drastically slowed down expansion of the town's sewage treatment facility.

A concept plan is being prepared for the town's roadway network system in the southwest corner.

Mayor Bob Mayhew has called for some immediate steps in the temporary hoarding at Valley Concrete.

Council was informed the matter has been in the hands of the town's lawyer for the past month.

The mayor advised administration to get some answers or change people.

Renovations at the town yards are underway.

The town has ordered new Christmas lights. Funds totalling $10,000 were set aside in the budget for this.

A report on a new tourist booth is scheduled to be presented to council Sept. 7.

Police suspect arson is reason for car fire

Arson is being investigated as the possible cause of a recent car fire near Yeoford (Winfield area) that "torched" the vehicle, according to Breton RCMP Const. Dave Heaslip.

"The fire was so hot that the magnesium wheels and aluminum parts from the motor melted," Heaslip said.

Charles Collinson, who resides near where the blaze occurred, was the first on the scene. "The door was open and it was burning," he said. "It was kind of scary."

He phoned the police and the Winfield volunteer fire department who managed to extinguish the fire, but the car is a total loss.

The 1988 Mustang was valued in excess of $20,000.

Charred remains are all that is left of the 88 Mustang valued in excess of $20,000. Top right - a view of the interior of the vehicle.

Thurber not a martyr - accepts raise

By Paul Cudla

Tom Thurber, MLA, says the 30 percent pay increase given to MLAs is a matter of paying quality people quality wages.

"The average executive on the street is making 80-100,000 dollars. If we're going to attract creative people to our marketplace we have to come close to that figure," Thurber says.

Thurber adds the pay raise is an attempt to "maintain credible people in our marketplace."

The raise given to MLAs, retroactive to April 1, makes them the second highest paid provincial members in Canada. Alberta members will receive $37,500 per year, behind only Quebec members who are paid $64,665.

Previous to the raise,

Tom Thurber
Alberta MLAs were seventh on the Canadian scale.

Approximately $19,000 of the Alberta MLAs wages are tax-free.

The most recent 30 per cent raise follows a January 1988 24 per cent pay increase.

Thurber says he has heard from constituents who have been negative about the pay raise and says he "understands their concerns."

He adds though, that he has heard positive remarks from constituents who feel the raise is long overdue.

"The decision on the pay raise was made in caucus by a majority vote."

An 11-member committee was then appointed to decide on a pay raise amount. The committee had representatives from both opposition and majority members. The committee decided on the 30 per cent raise.

MLAs who do not feel comfortable with the pay raise can turn it down.

"It's always a hard thing to deal with when you're dealing with your own wage."

The need for holding a pay raise vote in caucus was eliminated by the 11-member committee which voted to tie MLA wages in with 65 per cent of provincial judge's salaries.

Thurber says he will accept the raise.

"Why would a person want to make themselves a martyr," Thurber says, stressing the decision on the raise was one made by the caucus majority.

Thurber justifies the raise as one necessary for a job which runs 24-hours-a-day.

"It's a busy job. You're on call all day and all night."

"When you look at the total dollars it is no big thing compared to the budget. It's a drop in the bucket."

Mayhew says he's 'tickled pink' over population increase

By Frank Ryan

Drayton Valley's population increased by 194 people or 4.8 per cent during the past two years.

A census done this summer shows the current population at 5,474. That's just 4,626 short of city status.

Bob Mayhew was extremely pleased with the news.

"I'm quite pleased. Actually I'm tickled pink," he said.

He feels the mill has had a significant influence on the town's growth.

While Mayhew is pleased with the figures, he's also concerned about the town's future.

The number of local layoffs mentioned by Amoco, Mobil and Petro Canada has the mayor worried.

Mayhew plans to meet with representatives of the oil companies to see what effects the layoffs will have.

The census also revealed that there are 2,851 males in Drayton Valley compared to 2,606 females.

Instead of setting rules school board penalizes everyone

The Twin Rivers school board finds themselves in the midst of another controversy.

First it was the kindergarten ordeal. Then the boundary issue.

Now, it's in-town busing.

Parents who planned to use the system will see the costs jump from $35 last year to $100 per child up to a maximum of $200 per family this term.

That's a lot of money, especially when it's just a small part of the cost of sending a child to school.

The in-town busing system proved to be very popular last year. Maybe too popular.

Many parents took advantage of the system, including those living three and four blocks away from the school to those all the way across town. Several instances of overcrowding were reported.

It has been said by some educators the increase will hopefully eliminate the use of the bus by those children and reduce the overcrowding.

What's to say those children, living four and five blocks from their school, can't ride the bus if they are willing to pay? Maybe they need to because of a health reason.

But instead of simply setting some rules as to who could and couldn't ride the buses, the school board decided to penalize everyone.

What has angered many parents, is that the school board waited until two weeks before school to make the $65 increase known.

Now it seems, it's too late for many of the parents to do anything.

Expansions, layoffs

Hard to figure out what's happening in oil patch

This is not my favorite time of the year.

One would have thought with the late spring that we would get a late fall but that doesn't appear to be the case.

With the leaves already falling off the trees and the temperatures dropping at night...it appears fall, then winter, is just around the corner.

A lot of summer sports are finished but some of us golfers were hoping for another month or two.

After the Oilers traded Wayne Gretzky nothing surprises me about the wacky world of sports.

That includes the Pete Rose and Ben

Johnson ordeals.

It's hard to figure out what's happening in the local oil patch.

On one hand Amoco, Petro Canada and Texaco announce major expansions in the millions and on the other Amoco, Petro Canada and Mobil lay off staff.

Maybe they don't want us to understand it.

People around here have nothing to complain about when it comes to highways.

We found that to be especially true during a recent journey into Montana.

The Lodgepole Highway, in its present form, is wider, believe it or not, than the main highway from Whitefish to the Canadian border.

Maybe the narrow road explains all the accidents they have had — marked with white crosses.

Mayhew or McGee as next mayor?

Newsroom Comment

By Susan Moseicki
Mayhew or McGee for mayor? appears to be the question on the tip of every voter's tongue in light of the upcoming civic election.

For some, the answer is clear. For others, the decision may be quite difficult.

On one side of the chair there is a veteran hoping to regain his title and serve the people of Drayton Valley for another term and on the other side is a six-year council member hoping he will be chosen to take the seat.

Both are long-time residents of Drayton Valley and respected businessmen. Both say they are prepared to take on the responsibility that comes with representing the town as mayor.

The pair seem to agree that the town is in an excellent financial position and that expenditures must be made without debenture borrowing.

Should one vote for Bob Mayhew, a man with experience who says he has brought this town out of difficulties and made it financially strong or should one vote for Tom McGee, a man who promises a new, enthusiastic approach to town development and to be an "approachable mayor"?

Will years of experience outweigh a new outlook or is time for a change?

Only the voting public can make that decision and only the ones that do vote will make that decision.

The people of Drayton Valley are usually accused of having a severe case of apathy and not turning out to support their candidates. If they decide to be a couch potato on election day and the candidate they would have chosen is not elected, they have only themselves to blame. One vote can make a difference.

Be he Mayhew or be he McGee, each candidate will need support in the October 16 election.

Perhaps the electors will mend their apathy aside and put their apathy aside to give their candidates the support they deserve.

People should blame system

Newsroom Comment

By Paul Cudde
It is hard for an average working-class individual to fathom the 30 per cent pay increase MLAs gave themselves.

For the average Joe or Betty off the street, who is lucky to receive a 5 per cent cost-of-living increase yearly, a 30 per cent annual pay hike, is seemingly astronomical.

But it is a raise that is necessary to retain high quality individuals in the Legislature who could command higher wages in the work force.

As usual, the bottom line is dollars and cents.

For the job of a provincial politician to remain attractive to qualified personnel, there must be an incentive.

And no doubt, the incentive of money is fantastically enticing in our capitalistic society.

The dollar scale is our ruler for the worth of the people in our system.

If our measurement lags, the people who apply to be measured will also lag.

It would be naive to hope the honor and prestige inherent in representing the people would be enough to attract high profile candidates for MLA positions.

If we the people want the best, we're simply going to have to pay.

And why shouldn't we have the best possible members of our constituencies representing us? Shouldn't a politician be one of the most important (if not always ethical) role-models in our society?

Or perhaps this is an all too altruistic belief.

We truly can not blame MLAs for voting for their own pay raise.

They deserve to be paid a top wage as, idealistically, they are leading members of factions of our provincial life.

So don't blame MLAs for their 30 per cent increase. They too, as all of us, have been indoctrinated with the belief that money provides quality.

If you are angered by the pay hike, don't blame the people in the system, blame the system.

Child safety is being emphasized

Children are now back to school, and their safety travelling to and from school is a major concern for local KMMU.

"We'd like to remind the motoring public that school zones are in effect from 8 to 9:30 am, 11:30 am to 1:30 pm, and 3 to 4:30 pm every school day," said Const. Steve Shamber of the Drayton RCMP. "The speed limit goes from 50 km/h down to 30 km/h during these periods."

"Everyone should be made aware that the school zones will be in effect and they will be enforced," said Staff Sergeant Jim Humphrey in Drayton Valley.

He also said caution should be exercised with respect to school buses and motorists must stop for them when approaching as well as coming up from behind. "Remember, their cargo is children."

Shamber said many small children will be taking bicycles to school. "It's unfair to assume that these little children know the rules of the road so we'd like to remind people to watch out for the little children."

Volunteers help battle illiteracy

Dear Editor:

As Literacy Coordinator I wish to take this opportunity to thank all the literacy tutors who have worked so hard in the past to do their part in fighting illiteracy.

You are the backbone of this program and your many hours of volunteer time are greatly appreciated.

Sept. 8 has been declared World Literacy Day. 1990 is to be International Literacy Year. Unfortunately, it takes more than proclamations to combat this world-wide problem. We do need many more people interested in volunteering their time and talent in this very worthwhile cause. I will be offering another tutoring training session in October. If you are interested in becoming a tutor; if you are an adult learner interested in improving yourself or know someone who would benefit, call 542-3373, Tuesday or Thursday mornings. Or you may register at the Adult Education Night on Sept. 13 in the Frank Maddock gym, 7:00 - 9:30 p.m. The program is free and confidential. We have many success stories.

Again, a heartfelt thank-you from the adult students and Literacy Coordinator.

Local purchase was discouraging

Dear Editor:

As a life-long resident of the Drayton Valley area, I have, for some time been aware of our merchants' concerns that consumers are taking their business and household necessities to the city where their needs can be met more economically, and at times more efficiently.

This has also been a personal concern of mine. So in supporting a local business I purchased a furniture suite on June 14, 1989. Since such time I have still not received my complete suite. I, like many others have received numerous excuses with no action.

So I ask you, do we (the consumers) spend our money locally, receiving poor business management, or do we shop elsewhere and receive the products which we have purchased. I have always believed in 'Highway robbery'

Dear Editor:

I am very surprised at the cost of in-town school bus fees. To go from $30 to $100 per child is ridiculous to say the least. This is more than a 200 per cent increase!

Like most people in Drayton Valley we expected some changes and price increases with the new school board — but we did not expect highway robbery.

Does anyone other than the board get to voice an opinion of these changes? If it is overcrowded buses, then state it in black and white where the boundary is.

I'm sure the same buses will run for daily use, as for the winter run. So that cost should not change. The bus will go if there is 10 children on it or 30. Why should the children suffer?

Regards,
Rhoda Salfi

Reader expected slight rise

Dear Editor,

This letter is in regard to the Twin Rivers school district announcement of scheduled busing fees for 1989-90 school year in your Aug. 22 edition.

I had anticipated a moderate increase in the fees in order to accommodate the influx of new kindergarten children, etc., but certainly not in excess of 30 plus per cent. In addition to the increase, they have the audacity to charge another 20 per cent interest if this fee is paid in installments.

How is this going to affect low and fixed income families where $12 or $24 per month makes a sizeable difference?

Surely the school board had ample time to make appropriate projections and adjustments for such a change. We as parents (and collectively as a community) had every right to be informed prior to 14 days before school commences.

We should all be able to exercise the practice of making decisions for our children's safety without undue pressure or influence. In no way do I expect this service for free. I understand our school's function for our children and am fully prepared to support that (financially or otherwise) in every possible way.

However, this all reflects a very disconcerting attitude on the part of these elected to speak for us!

Mrs. J. Sibbens

Do MLAs deserve raise?

MLAs gave themselves a 30 per cent pay raise last week. The raise will give them $87,505, up from $44,322.

About $19,000 of that is tax free.

In light of all the layoffs in the oil patch coupled with the nine per cent sales tax Albertans are looking at...what do you think of the pay hike?

Is it okay that a portion of the MLA's salary is tax free?

If you would like to comment on this recent development or any other issue, send your letters (signed) to The Editor, Western Review, PO Box 6960, Drayton Valley, AB T0E 0M0.

Excitement mounting as ninth key is won

Excitement is mounting for car key winners in the chamber of commerce/retail merchants association car give-away.

Last week's winner, May Fagervold, was the ninth name to be drawn, leaving only one key to be won before the final draw for the new car September 20.

"I've never won anything in my whole life," said Fagervold. "It's exciting just Horst Boehm, May Fagervold and Glenda Wilneff to win the key."

She said she has no real plans of what she will do if she wins the car. "I haven't even thought about it."

Fagervold will be in Reno at the time of the draw, and her sister will represent her at the supper but she said she will have to phone home to see what happens. She doesn't think she can wait until she gets home to find out.

Howard Olsen will be seeking a fourth term on town council

Howard Olsen has announced he will be seeking a fourth term on town council.

"There's a few things yet that I would like to see completed," he explained.

"I would like to see Drayton Valley debt-free and that can be accomplished," Olsen said that could happen within his next three year term with proper management.

Over the past nine years, Olsen said he has been involved in many projects including upgrading the water system, the paving of the streets, and planning of the swimming pool, arena and town office.

Charlie Miner will also be seeking a council seat and councillor Dave Lundberg will be withdrawing after one term.

RCMP called out to corral cow

Three members of the Drayton Valley RCMP turned cowboy last Wednesday night (about midnight) as they corralled a wandering cow.

The animal had strayed out of one of the fenced areas near Sekura Auction Mart.

Using their cruisers, the RCMP spotted the animal on 47 Street heading toward 50th Avenue. While they steered the cow along the road, two employees from Sekura's were called to finish the job.

Warburg becomes first Canadian Grand National host

By Paul Cudla
Warburg became the first Canadian host of the Grand National go-kart championship when it hosted the four-cycle event Aug. 17 to Aug. 20 and the two-cycle Aug. 23-27.

The grand nationals, held at the Warburg track attracted kart racers from Georgia, Los Angeles, Idaho, Spokane, Vancouver, Saskatchewan and throughout Alberta.

"All in all everything turned out really well," Lane Dunham, Warburg Kart Racing Club (WKRP) president, says.

"For the first time held, it was a good turnout."

Dunham adds the important aspect of Warburg hosting the event was it established itself as a competitive kart racing track and field of racers. Therefore, first time visitors to the Warburg track would want to make a return visit.

"We tried to project them coming here and having a good time, having fun," Dunham says.

Dunham, from Drayton Valley, races in the four-cycle class of karting and placed third in the stock medium category at the grand nationals. He also had the fastest lap time, 48.0 secs., in the stock light class.

In the four-cycle class, Warburg club racers captured three championships and the prestigious "Duffy" award that goes with a win. Chris Dowler, in stock light, Rod Davies in limited modified and Allan Lainchbury in the senior sportsman class (completely stock engine).

Lainchbury, also from Drayton Valley, is treasurer in the Warburg Kart Club.

"It was great. It was like winning the Indianapolis 500," Lainchbury says of his Duffy win.

Members of the Warburg Club captured five of the 16 possible Duffys: Steve Lane in 135 Reed, Nigel Mullen Jr. in Junior 1, Rob McKinn, in open, and Kevin Dowler in unlimited.

Dunham and Lainchbury were impressed with the way in which Warburg karters compared with the drivers from the United States.

"We did every bit as well as them in engine preparation," Dunham says, adding he felt the only difference between Warburg drivers and American drivers was driving experience.

A lot of the drivers from the United States were sponsored and classified as expert drivers.

The Warburg Kart Club continues to race until Oct. 1 and the next race at Warburg is Sept. 17.

The WKRP will be featured on a CBC racing show Oct. 2.

Pruden looking to move up to expert

By Paul Cudla
Joe Pruden, 19, moved up to the senior class in cross-country bike racing this year and has done well enough to be in a position to move up to the expert class next year.

Pruden, who graduated from Frank Maddock high school, placed fourth overall in points on the national over 200cc cross-country circuit, and currently sits in fifth on the provincial circuit.

"It's fun, I enjoy it. There isn't as much pressure as motorcross," Pruden says.

Pruden has been racing competitively for three years and moved up to senior class this year after finishing third overall in junior class last year.

He has raced his 250cc Honda CR to several top finishes including a second place finish at the Vega 100, a third at Moose Mountain, and a fifth at the Third National in Gloomy Creek.

"That was a good race," Pruden says of his fifth July 2 at Gloomy Creek, "it was me and another guy neck and neck all the way for fourth and fifth. There was an open cut-line at the end, he opened it up and his bike was faster than mine and I just couldn't catch him."

Pruden and Gary Tysland of Lethbridge battled right to the end for third and fourth spot in the national points series. By finishing fifth behind Tysland at Gloomy Creek, Pruden ended up one point behind Tysland who finished third overall.

Pruden says his smaller sized engine (as compared to some) other racers who race 400-500cc bikes) does not necessarily hinder him in cross-country.

"It's easier to handle; though the trees and stuff. If you're tired it isn't as much weight to throw around," says Pruden.

A lighter bike can be an asset for cross-country bike races which can last six hours.

Pruden says the length of cross-country races can wear a racer's concentration.

"A lot of guys get migraine headaches after."

"You have to keep good concentration. As soon as you lose your concentration you start losing your pace," Pruden says.

Pruden's racing season has been plagued by a few injuries. He experienced a sprained thumb after being sandwiched by two bikes, and almost broke his sternum in another accident when his chest hit the handle bars.

With his injuries now behind him, Pruden sat out the following provincial points race Sept. 3, and is gearing up for the Dome Tar race Sept. 10.

Fox Run seeking helpers

The Terry Fox Run will be held Sept. 17 from 1:00 p.m.-4:00 p.m. and hopes to exceed last year's fund-raising total of $3,712.

Pam Schaub, who is helping with the annual event, says the run is setting a goal of surpassing last year's total and attracting about 50 runners.

Thus far, though, the run has not had any volunteer offers besides the Lion's and Lioness clubs.

"I need volunteers and runners. I'd like to beat donations from last year," Schaub says.

Money raised from the run will go to cancer research and special care of cancer patients.

Schaub says she hopes to see a strong turnout at the run.

"There should be more (runners) considering the number one killers are heart disease and cancer," Schaub says.

The Terry Fox Run will start and finish at the Scout Hall and will proceed in a circular route around the town.

I beg to differ...

This karter took the checkered flag but had to remind the flagman he still had one lap to go in the 4-cycle kart racing action August 27. Warburg became the first Canadian host of the Grand National Karts when they held the event August 17 - 20 and August 23 - 27.

Hockey prez in dark

By Frank Ryan

The president of minor hockey is concerned about the lighting in the Drayton Sports Centre.

Kevin Henry raised the issue at a recent arena-users meeting.

He questioned recreation director Paul Nielsen about the shadows on the ice.

"The shadows are bad. There's not enough light," Henry explained.

However, he didn't get too much sympathy.

Darren Urkevich who runs the sports centre said it was worse from the bleacher area than at ice level.

He did admit however, the lighting in the sports centre wasn't as good as the old arena.

Despite his complaint, neither Nielsen or Urkevich said they would look into the matter.

Extension of golf league successful.

The Drayton Valley men's golf league ended its season with a bit of drama as the team of Al Dick edged Morris Neal in the final.

Al Dick's team of 10 beat Morris Neal's team by one point in the playoff final Aug. 31.

Points are calculated on a match play system, as individual members of each team square off against each other. Teams also earn points for each win players on their team acquire.

Dennis Balderson and Tim Irwin were co-league directors this year.

Balderson says the league ran smoothly.

"It was a good season. It was the first year we ran it this long and I think everybody enjoyed it," Balderson says, adding that in previous years the golf league ended at the end of July.

"We had the same format but just ran it four weeks longer."

The league had to reschedule some of its playoff matches due to rainouts but Balderson says, "we got it all in."

He added the league used the back nine which wasn't too waterlogged.

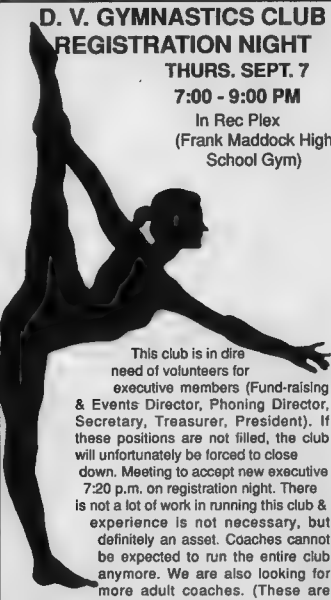

For next season Balderson is hopeful the league will follow the same format and include the extra month of play.

Ambulance standards meet approval

By Susan Mosciaki
Health Minister Nancy Betkowiak's recent proposal of minimum standards for ambulance care is meeting with the approval of local ambulance services.

Minimum standards, more commonly referred to as Basic Life Support (BLS), are already practiced in both Bretton and Drayton Valley and will not mean a change in service.

Larry Edwards, a paramedic with Associated

Ambulance Service in Drayton Valley said he is "most definitely" in favor of the minimum standards proposed.

Along with BLS, having a paramedic on staff means the local service has Advanced Life Support as well.

Graham Platt, unit manager with Bretton Hospital Ambulance Service, says minimum standards are a good idea. "Provided they will enforce them and they go all the way across the board and you cannot run an ambulance without these standards."

"They have to be very solid and almost unyielding to be effective," he added.

The proposals will have to be reviewed and refined before becoming law sometime next year. They will force municipalities to ensure their ambulance attendants and vehicles are equipped with BLS.

For some ambulance services, this could involve expenses to upgrade training of employees.

"I think it's become clear to everybody that there have to be some minimum standards for the safety of the people," said MLA Tom Thurber.

"Up until now it was left in the hands of the municipal districts," he said.

"Once we get the legislation in place, then follows the regulations that set standards of equipment," said Thurber.

"There was some talk of the province coming up with some funding," he added.

Hay crops appear to be the most affected by precipitation

By Paul Cudla

Hay crops have experienced the most obvious damaging effects from the large amount of rainfall in the area so far this year, according to the district agriculturist.

Elaine Ryl, local DA, says the rain has hurt haying more than any other crop.

"The haying operations are the ones that have really shown the effects because we've lost both yield and quality," Ryl says. Ryl attributes the quality deterioration to a mature crop of hay being harvested this year.

"Anything that has been cut and swathed has been weathered," Ryl says.

If the quality of hay crops continues to deteriorate, Ryl says cattle farmers will have to look at supplementing for winter feeds.

As far as other crops are concerned, farmers should harvest average yearly yields, if weather permits.

"It should be close to average yields as long as they can get into the fields.

"The crop is still out there; if the weather clears they can still go out and harvest crops fairly normally," Ryl says, adding, "there are some (crops) in the lower areas where excess moisture has hurt the yields."

Farmers are encountering delays due to wet fields which are not conducive to farm machinery.

"Because of the equipment being so heavy, and the fields being as wet as they are, it riles up the fields."

The moisture has also caused silage delays as Ryl says farmers have not been able to get into the fields and silage.

There are no figures available for the amount of rainfall in the Drayton Valley region, but comparatively Rocky Mountain House has had 107.6 mm, Edison 187.6 mm, and Whitecourt has had 211.9 mm of rain.

The average accumulative rainfall for this point of the year is about 77.9 mm.

Something new

Volunteers turned out recently to set up new playground equipment at St. Anthony's school.

Improvements to 620 are high priority

Improvements to secondary highway 620 (Lodgepole to Drayton Valley) is a high priority with Alberta Transportation.

However, any improvements depend on what's available in the budget according to regional director Charles Lendzion.

"Improvements are not too far down the line," Lendzion told the MD last Wednesday.

Reeve Henry Rondeau informed a four-man delegation from Alberta Transportation a Highway 620 group was pushing for a meeting with the transportation minister.

"There're not getting any answers," Rondeau told Lendzion and his group.

Lendzion was in total agreement with the MD that the road needed upgrading.

Improvements to the highway is number one on the MD's list of highway improvements.

However, it may be a few years before any changes are made to the Lodgepole/Cynthia highway which is rated second on the MD's list.

Transportation officials informed the MD that road is slated for upgrading by 2000.

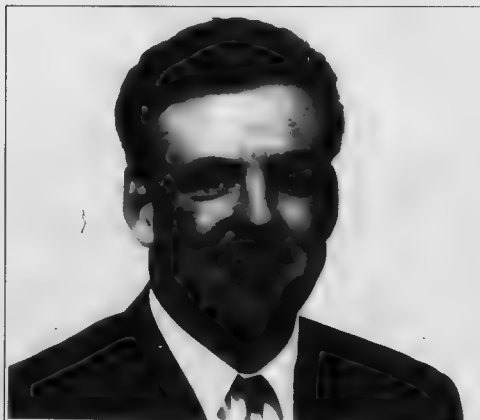

No changes are planned for Highway 22 between Drayton Valley and Enkwaile.

MD manager John Eriksson expressed his concerns for more passing lanes due to the truck traffic.

It's Lendzion's opinion there are good passing opportunities on the highway. That is, if people obey the speed limit and are patient.

The Sunchild road is another area highway that isn't slated for any immediate changes.

Breton area left in the dark

Old power lines were being removed and new ones put in their place to accommodate the load growth in the Breton area.

The village of Breton and surrounding areas were blacked-out for several hours last week while TransAlta Utilities cut old lines and hooked up new lines on Highway 20.

The new lines extend two miles from a railway crossing south to Breton.

District Manager Ray Laskoski said the new line was required because of the load growth in the area (the number of customers on the line) and because the old line was over 25 years old.

"It's going to give us better viability to serve these areas," he said. "It can probably carry triple the load it carried before."

Laskoski said the line will affect approximately 1000 people in all.

He said plans are in the works for further extension of the new line. "Our long term goal is to go farther another four miles to Winfield."

The taxman a' cometh

Due to the non-payment of taxes a Drayton Valley man will have to pay a $152 penalty.

Last Thursday council denied a request from Neil Smith to waive the tax penalty.

In a letter to the town, Smith said he returned from holidays on July 30 to discover that he had forgotten to send in his check, which was already made out.

Two price can being paid here

A two-price system for pop cans is in effect at the Beehive bottle depot.

Manager Bruce Nichols says the Beehive pays two cents for the silver top cans and five cents for the gold top cans.

Some soft drink producers in Edmonton say they will lose millions of dollars if they follow an order to return five cent deposits on each pop can. At least one beverage company in the city says he won't comply.

Nichols says he received a call from his shipper last Wednesday advising them to continue with the two-price system.

There are an estimated seven million dozen cans with silver tops in circulation.

Pork supply to rise

North American pork supplies are expected to increase again this fall putting downward pressure on prices, according to an Alberta Agriculture press release.

The lowest price for the second half of 1989 is expected in October at around $1.10/kg ($50/cwt). Gradual price increases are expected in early 1990, but output will likely exceed the previous year's level.

A positive note for hog producers is that costs of production will almost certainly be lower than they have been in the last year with a larger feedgrain and oilseed crop.

Slaughter hog prices rallied a little during the second quarter as North American hog output went through a seasonal decline.

Shipments of hogs out of Alberta are expected to increase in the short term because long-term supply contracts between Alberta pork producers and regional slaughter facilities have expired.

Chief to get new car

Town council has decided to dip into reserves to buy a new vehicle for their fire chief.

Council was informed last week that another $1,800 was needed in order to buy a vehicle from Sunahine Ford.

Total cost of the car is $17,800.

Pastor faces new challenge

Pastor Greg Pritchard is facing new challenges in Drayton Valley.

The Drayton Valley Missionary Church will be the first church he has pastored.

"Our basic goal is to reach out to the community and to be there for people looking for answers in their life," he said.

He finished his courses at Mountainview Bible College in Didbury one year ago and has been working in oilfield construction.

He moved here with his wife Sharene and sons James, 7, Andrew, 5, and daughters Candice, 4, and Brittany, 2, about one month ago.

Pritchard likes what he has seen in Drayton Valley. "It's a nice town and it looks like a growing town."

He has no idea how long he will be in Drayton Valley. "I'm here until the Lord leads otherwise," he said.

Town of Drayton Valley School Bus Service 1989-90

In - Town Bus Passes

Students residing within the Town of Drayton Valley will be able to purchase bus passes to ride the Twin Rivers School Division buses to attend either public or separate schools in Town. The cost for a 1989-90 yearly school bus pass is $100.00 per child or a maximum of $200.00 per family. Cold weather passes will also be available for the months of November to March inclusive for $55.00 per pupil or $200.00 per family. Installment payments for yearly passes may be arranged @ $12.00 per month or $240.00 total per family.

Passes will be sold at the Administration Office of Twin Rivers School Division at 5027 Industrial Road, Drayton Valley beginning on Monday, August 28th. Sales of passes will end on September 29, 1989. Following that date, only students moving into or out of the Town will be allowed to purchase passes or receive refunds on a pro-rated basis.

The Board's operation of the in-town bussing system has been optional and also on a highly subsidized basis. Twin Rivers receives no grant monies for transportation of students within 2.4 km (1.5 miles) of the attended school. In reality, the per pupil cost last year was $152.00 or $30,400.00 in total. The $35.00 per student ($68.00 per family), formerly charged, simply was not sufficient in terms of recovering reasonable costs for the services.

We trust that Drayton Valley parents will appreciate the intent of the increase. The new rate for the yearly pass is $100.00 per student, to a maximum of $200.00 per family.

Horse breeders will meet

This year's Alberta Horse Improvement program is on two consecutive September weekends at the Westerner in Red Deer.

Eleven breeds are represented at the program designed to identify superior horses, breeders and trainers in the province. Alberta Agriculture's horse industry branch, in cooperation with a committee from participating breed associations, has been running the program for the last 15 years.

The 1989 program features: Arabian, partbred Arabian and walking horse classes on Sept. 16; American saddlebred, Morgan, pinto, sport horse and Welsh pony and Cob classes on Sept. 17; quarter horse classes on Sept. 23; and, appaloosa and paint classes on Sept. 24.

"The Alberta horse improvement program is different than the typical horse show. Horses are judged against a breed standard rather than against other horses in the ring," says Bob Coleman, provincial horse specialist.

Two horse show judges and an equine veterinarian score each horse on conformation and performance. Conformation includes five categories: front limbs; hind limbs; head, neck, body and balance; movement; and type. Performance patterns test the athletic ability, temperament and training potential of the young horses. Score sheet appraisals are mailed to the entrants.

One of the goals of the horse improvement program is education, Coleman says it's hoped the evaluations will be used as an educational tool by breeders and owners.

"One of the program's overall goals is improving the quality of Alberta bred horses. The program is achieving that through both education and identification of superior horses, breeders and trainers," says Coleman. He adds establishing markets for Alberta bred markets is another program objective.

Oeming and Tawana to be big treat at fair

Youngsters are in for a real treat at this weekend's trade fair.

Al Oeming and Tawana, the cheetah will be at the Drayton Sports Centre this Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Everywhere he goes, Tawana is the subject of childlike curiosity and wonder.

Dr. Oeming, a world renowned zoologist, who has devoted his life to the conservation of animals from the four corners of the world, is the director of the Polar Park, near Edmonton. Oeming reminds people to bring their cameras.

The actual trade fair begins Friday night with displays in the sports centre open from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m.

It continues Saturday from noon to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Golden against highway

Garbage issue
City council in St. Albert is facing an old problem...garbage recycling.

Three candidates running in the October municipal election have promised to work towards bringing in a recycling program. Council originally discussed the issue eight months ago.

Ethylene plant
Construction of a third Novacor ethylene plant at Joffe, east of Lacombe, is scheduled for 1992.

Pool big issue
Town council in Taber is weighing the pros and cons of holding a plebiscite in conjunction with the upcoming municipal election in regards to a proposed indoor swimming pool.

Meanwhile in Lacombe, a fund-raising campaign to raise funds for a $2.1 million pool continue.

Howse Pass opposed
The Golden Chamber of Commerce says it is opposed to the Howse Pass plan.

They claim the pass will only save travellers an hour in contrast to the existing route through Golden.

Council gets raise
Town councillors in Ponoka have voted themselves a 13 per cent pay raise.

Councillors will receive $195 every two weeks, up from $173 and the mayor will get an eight per cent raise, boosting his bi-weekly salary to $395.

School fire
A $1.75 million fire at St. Thomas Aquinas school in Red Deer recently will see 200 students relocated when classes resume next month.

The biggest loss will be the gym which was gutted in the fire. It will take at least a year to rebuild.

New hospital
Construction of a new hospital in Whitecourt could begin within three years.

The hospital board plans to conduct a functional study for the 34-bed hospital.

Commercial vehicle safety check nets many violators

A highly successful 72 hour International Commercial Vehicle Safety Check was completed last month by Alberta Transportation and Utilities Motor Transport Officers and their counterparts in the United States. The Alberta segment of the inspection took place on Hwy. 1 near Strathmore, and was sponsored by Region IV of the Commercial Vehicle Safety Alliance (CSVA), an organization of regulatory agencies and trucking industry representatives in Canada and the United States.

During Alberta's participation, coordinated by Bob Pagnucco, Director of Transport Field Operations, Motor Transport Officers checked a total of 770 vehicles for compliance with safety standards for brakes, steering suspension, wheels, tires, lights, wiring and other items.

The officers found a total of 739 mechanical violations, including 75 that were serious enough to place the vehicles out of service for correction of the problem.

Motor Transport Officers passed 157 vehicles and issued CVSA decals (issued when a truck passes CVSA standards). The decal is reciprocally honored in all 58 CVSA member states, provinces and territories.

Cards are convenient but have drawbacks

By Bev Brooks

District Home Economist Credit Cards — Protect Yourself Against Fraud

There's no denying we live in a credit card society - some call it the plastic society. You can't beat the convenience but with that, comes disadvantages too.

Credit card fraud is on the increase. Some of you may have seen the show on this topic a few weeks ago on the Oprah Winfrey show. It was amazing to hear people tell their horror stories of losing thousands and thousands of dollars, most of which is difficult if not impossible to recover.

If you've never been a victim, it's up to luck or carefulness. Here are some tips to help you guard against fraud.

Save receipts: When your statement arrives, double check it with your receipts. Double check the amounts too. A vendor could easily alter your $9.95 purchase to $19.95. If there's a charge you don't recognize, call the issuing bank immediately. The sooner you report a false charge, the better. This does happen from time to time. As well, some purchases you made will never come through.

Phone solicitors: Use caution when giving your number over the phone. The lady who says she's calling from Eaton's may or may not be. Phone them back to verify their status.

Watch your card: If you make a purchase, be sure you get your own card back. Watch that they only make one slip when the card is in the machine. Many frauds are done this way. They can just fill it in later and sign it based on your legitimate purchase.

Carbon papers: If possible, take the carbon papers from your slips when making a purchase. Information can be copied off of them - as well as your signature. Take the carbons with you or rip them up.

Expiry dates: If your card expires, or you wish to stop using it, cut it into several small pieces and destroy carefully.

Your card goes missing: Call the issuer and the police immediately. You'll also have to put something in writing and this should be sent by registered mail.

Record the numbers: It is impossible to report a missing card if you do not know the numbers. A good idea for this is a photocopy (front and back) of every card. Make copies for your own records and for your safety deposit box.

If you have any questions regarding credit card use, call your bank or credit card company.

Flooding causes problems

The town is looking at a number of flooding problems.

Heavy rains saw several basements along Meier Avenue flooded.

One resident said a lot of the water came into the residential subdivision off 43 Avenue.

Council discussed the resident's concerns last Thursday and were told that the water drainage problem and the overall drainage problem in the area were being investigated.

Another problem that has to be dealt with is continuous flooding by the southwest door at the Frank Maddock high school.

Transportation committee chairman Howard Olsen told council the sidewalk is two inches lower than the street. He suggested adding a second curb on top of the existing curb to hopefully redirect the water.

The arena closed after a very successful hockey school.

September 6, 1979
The Jehovah Witness announced plans to build a new hall at the corner of 49 Street and 49 Avenue.

Telephone subscribers in Breton and area with individual line service will be recipients of AGT's automatic number identification service next month.

Town council vetoes Liberal programs

Town council has decided not to support two Liberal programs.

Council had been asked to lend their support to a task force on municipal infrastructure and housing.

While Manny Deol, the town manager liked the idea of the municipal infrastructure, council did not.

Councillor Charlie Miner said he didn't like the word...Liberal. He felt that if council supported the two task forces, that would mean they were supporting the Liberal party.

So, in the end, council decided not to support the national Liberal task forces.

Town to look at upgrading signs

The town plans to look at upgrading the highway signs at the north and south entrances.

The transportation committee has asked administration to do a survey of information tabs that exist on the signs located along Highway 22 and update both signs.

Earlier this year the chamber's tourist committee looked at improving the two signs.

Jake Bueckert, a member of that committee, says that at the present time, there are 11 information tabs (logos) on each sign. And, they were told by Alberta Transportation, that only 12 would be permitted.

Twin Rivers building new parking lot

The Twin Rivers school division is building a new parking lot at Eldorado on their own.

However, the door has apparently been left open for the town to get involved at a later date.

Town council was informed last Thursday the school division was doing what they need.

Apparently the school division wanted an answer on money and the town couldn't give it. So they went ahead and started on the lot, at the north end of the school property which borders on 50th Avenue.

Erickson to emcee Buck Lake dance

Buck Lake News

By Joan Elmont

Congratulations to Brenda and Andy Schenk of Buck Lake, who, on Aug. 11 at the Rocky Hospital increased the size of their family to three.

Six lbs. 10 oz. Lawrence Raymond has a proud grandma, Pearl Schenk, Buck Lake, and button popping grandparents Elwood and Mary Pederson, Rocky Mountain House.

Edwin Erikson will be m.c. for a supper and dance at the Buck Lake Hall which starts at 7:00 p.m. on Sept. 16.

Eighteen of Sweden and Norway's top musicians are on a concert tour of Alberta. Accordion players, fiddlers, singers, pianists, guitarists and entertainers will be making toe-tapping music. A rodeo will be held at the rodeo grounds to entertain the Swedish visitors as they have never seen one.

Rory Patten spent an exciting 10 days as a wrangler on the set of the Japanese film "Heaven and Earth" which was made on the Morley reserve near Calgary.

Winners of Best of Fair at the Buck Lake Fair were Rita Duffy with a beautiful crawl work picture; Ruby Woods with a gorgeous potted geranium; and Barbara Lalich of Niagara Falls won with large "cabbage patch" type doll. Honorable mention went to Marie Alexander, Winfield, for her child's sweater.

In other categories, winners were: Janet Ellis - sewing; Leona Duffy - flowers; Barb McLeod - culinary arts; Dorothy Willows - photography; Jill Lowry - handicrafts; Marie Alexander - needlecraft; Lara Willows - children; and Pearl Schenk - vegetables.

The winner of the Fleischman's Bake-Off was Barb McLeod and of the Five Roses Pie Bake-Off was Leona Duffy.

Where there's a will, there's a way

Even though you may think you are too young, or don't have enough property, or don't have enough time, a will makes good sense. Remember, without a will, someone else will make the decisions about the distribution of your possessions and savings.

There are problems caused for family and friends if there is no will in place. A will also lets others know what individuals, causes and institutions you value.

Unless a will is in place the very personal and individual desires you may have will probably not be carried out.

Keep in mind, without a will:

- property will be distributed on a set basis, not according to your personal wishes;
- an executor may be named to administer your estate who may not be your personal choice;

• taxation is likely to be different, more costly and more difficult;

• guardians of children will not be named the way you probably wish;

• personal items such as art, heirlooms, jewellery and antiques will not be handled the way you intend;

• individuals, organizations and good causes may not receive the support you had intended to give them.

If you do not have a will, now is the time to prepare one.

While a will does not need to be complicated, it is always advisable to contact a lawyer. Ensuring there are no small mistakes which will cause difficulties in future years, plus peace of mind, is well worth the cost of such legal service.

Making a will

Renounce any previous wills to avoid confusion later.

Name an executor — the person who will carry out your instructions as you would wish.

Take care of your dependants — provide for the immediate family first.

If you have children under 18, consider naming a guardian.

Playschool to begin

Alder Flats News

By Joan Elmont

On Sept. 16, the children of Dale and Jean Sargeant are inviting all their friends and relatives to join them in celebrating their parents' silver wedding anniversary. An open house at the Sargeant home will be held from 3:00 - 8:00 p.m. Camping spots will be available. No gifts please.

The Alder Flats/Buck Lake playschool will commence on Thurs. Sept. 7. Playschool will be held at the community centre between 9:30 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. The fee will be $10. For further information please call Debbie Seely (388-2318) or Barb Seely (388-2291).

Tamie Sargeant is on her way to British Columbia to take up her new post with a Sidney newspaper.

Sympathy goes to the family of Willis Ford, who died on Tuesday, Aug. 29, after a bout with cancer. Formerly of Alder Flats, the Ford family now lives in Rocky Mountain House.

Reformers recognized as official party

The Reform Party has been officially recognized as an Alberta provincial party, less than one week after the party made application to the province's Chief Electoral Officer.

Chief Electoral Officer, Pat Ledgerwood, notified the Reform Party today, that he has validated the petition presented to him last week, asking that the party be officially registered as a provincial party.

Nearly 6000 names were on that petition. Only 4700 were required. More petitions continued to trickle in to the Reform Party office in Edmonton, bringing the total to in excess of 7000 names.

The party will be registered as the Reform Party of Alberta.

Party leader, Preston Manning, says that the Reform Party has registered provincially in Alberta for the sole purpose of participating in the Alberta Senate election.

Every nook and cranny

Assistant caretaker Roger Bouchard was down on hands and knees last week making sure every last speck of dust was vacuumed away at Evergreen school. Parents can rest assured their children are entering a clean environment.

Paula Kitching and Allan Bordeleau were married Aug. 5, 1989 at Drayton Valley United Church. They are presently residing at Richmond, B.C.

Arthritis forces change in person's lifestyle

For arthritis sufferers, there is a major gap in the vast amount of high tech care presently available — a gap that respects neither geographic nor socio-economic differences. It is an emotional gap.

With the onset of arthritis, many people are forced to change their lifestyle and when this happens their well-developed social network often crumbles.

Frequently family members are confused and discouraged as the illness wears on unabated. Intolerance and disillusionment can bring about erosion of the family unit and many times can cause marriage breakdown.

Compassionate friends really don't understand the feelings of helplessness and fear experienced by the arthritic over what the future might or might not bring. They get on with their own lives, their jobs, their families, their personal pursuits.

Even in the best scenario, arthritics feel alone and lonely. They feel the need to get together with others who suffer the same setbacks, understand the emotional turmoil, and face the same difficulties coping with everyday life. Out of this need sprang the idea of support groups.

Emotionally support group meetings offer an atmosphere of acceptance, support and encouragement. They are open, informal and friendly.

Members share a common medical condition but refrain from advising others of specific treatments because they know arthritics need the skills and knowledge of the medical profession. They also know that meeting and talking together is self-help.

For further information about arthritis or forming an arthritists support group, contact the Arthritis Association of Edmonton at 425-8792.

Sports/Ag association accepted as a society

By Joyce Schadeck

The Tomahawk and District Sports/Ag Association application to the Alberta government to be an agricultural society has been accepted.

There will be a special meeting Sept. 11, 8:00 p.m. at the Agra/Plex. Tom Thurber, MLA will be on hand to present the plaque to the members and it is hoped there will be a good turnout for this occasion.

School resumed with a full day, on Sept. 5. Kindergarten starts Sept. 12. Teachers for the coming term are: Anne Schwalbe, Shelley Reich, Russ Hichman, Jane Zander, David Hatto, Theresa Goertz, Sandy Semenyina and Barb Zaniewicz (principal).

Howard and Frances Gilbert have a most unusual flower growing in their backyard. Seeded by the birds, or the wind as neither Howard nor Frances sowed the seed, a single sunflower plant has grown and developed 22 blossoms. It is not known if this is a record but it's a first for Tomahawk and the Gilberts. A little research should turn up some information about this unusual growth.

Get well wishes to Minnie Redlinger, in hospital after a fall in her yard recently.

RCMP to continue patrol

A number of speeding tickets has been issued on Secondary Highway 620^{km} And, according to the RCMP, patrols on the highway, between Drayton Valley and Lodgepole, will continue.

Mike Anderson, a special constable with the MD says Motor Transport has conducted a number of vehicle checks on the highway and several more are also being planned.

Logging activity is picking up in the area again and will increase the traffic.

Because of this, Anderson has concerns for the number of school buses using the highway.

He will be watching this closely after a number of complaints last year.

Anderson is also considering placing a traffic counter on the highway that will tell him how fast vehicles are travelling and at what time of day.

Barker awarded honorary membership in Oil Wives

By Darlene VanEmber
May Barker was the recipient of the Oil Wives highest honor...an honorary membership.

In 21 years with Oil Wives she has held numerous executive positions. Her March talent night skits have made her famous.

Twenty-seven members participated in two CPR courses, heartsaver and childcare. Three instructors...John MacLaughlin, Wayne Schmidt and Bruce MacKinnon volunteered their time.

Oil Wives paid for the course and all the proceeds were donated to the Jamie Gilbert trust fund.

When a fellow oil wife's family in Cornation lost their home, members of the Drayton Valley chapter dug into their own pockets and club funds and sent $400 to help out.

The oil wives entertained at the official opening of Birchwood Village Greens.

The year ended with one-third of the membership having perfect attendance.

The first meeting of the new year will be held Monday, Sept. 11. Contact Delia at 542-5171 for your reservations. Oil Wives w/logo

Tips on how to run an effective Classified Ad:

* Be specific.

Yes, put in your asking price. Mention the facts that pertain to the item. The more useful information you give the reader, the more serious buyers you'll talk to...and the less you'll be annoyed by people calling to ask you the questions you should have answered in your ad.

* Stay away from abbreviations.

Unless they're universally known, abbreviations of words or phrases can be confusing, or worse, misconstrued. Talk to our classified ad-viser when composing your ad to be sure the abbreviations you use are acceptable.

* Specify hours with your phone number.

Make it easy for the caller to connect with you (they may not call again), and easy for you to live your life without a barrage of disruptive phone calls. When potential customers know when and where to reach you...they will!

* Place your ad in the right spot.

Depending upon what you have to sell, it may do to 'target' your ad toward a certain buyer. Say you have a car that's old, oversized and ugly, but still runs well. You could place it under 'Autos', but think about what else it can do. Try placing it under the column Recreation Vehicles and try selling it as a good car to pull vacation vehicles. (Today's smaller cars aren't built for this type of work). You might end up selling it fast for the price you want!

Jan Atkins and daughter Nancy

Catholic school board/town to sign joint-use agreement

The town and the Roman Catholic Separate school district are close to signing a joint use agreement.

The first two readings were authorized by town council last Thursday. The third and final reading is expected when council meets later this month.

Once the agreement has been signed it will provide for joint use of recreation and educational facilities.

Recreation director Paul Nielsen says there's no major difference between this agreement and the one the town signed with the Twin Rivers school division.

One change will see the town responsible for maintaining the grounds at St. Anthony's beginning next spring.

According to the terms of the agreement, the school when operational, will be made available after 6 p.m.

The town's user fee schedule and booking procedure will affect this agreement.

By Susan Mosicki
Drayton Valley students are going to love Jan Atkins, a teacher here on a one year exchange program from Decatur, Texas.

She is accustomed to 70 per cent being a passing mark and jokingly said she may mark students too high before she adjusts to the Canadian passing mark (50).

Atkins will be residing in the home of George Matheson (FMHS Grade 11 and 12 English teacher) who is in turn staying in her home in Decatur and taking over her teaching position for the 89/90 school year.

"Drayton Valley is very much what we expected," said Atkins. Matheson sent her brochures and information before she came here.

"The schools are very much the same, the grading is different, but the weather is going to be the biggy," she said.

Texas weather is hot and dry and Atkins thought she may have some trouble adjusting to a Canadian winter.

The weather isn't going to stop her, though. She and her daughter Nancy intend to try skiing, curling, and other winter sports.

They also intend to try rafting and hope to see a moose while in Canada.

Atkins said one of her main intentions is to learn more about this country and she hopes to lose some of her Texan "drawl".

Town council approves block party

Town council has authorized a private block party.

The residents of 43 and 44 Avenues want to hold the neighborhood barbeque on Saturday, September 9 between 4:30 p.m. and 11 p.m.

As a result of the request council has authorized that 44 Ave. between 52 and 53 Street will be closed for the block party.

GRACE, FLEXIBILITY AND STRENGTH

For the woman of the 80's, the physically fit body is the hallmark of real beauty. The practice of Tae Kwon-Do builds your body without making you up. After a short time, you can notice a marked increase in muscle tone, strength and definition. The stretching exercises which are a part of Tae Kwon-Do lend you up so you look and feel years younger, and with Tae Kwon-Do you can obtain a beautiful grace and fluidity that is the equal of that generated by a dedicated student of dance.

FOR CHILDREN

Today, the virtues of personal integrity, honour, self-discipline and physical fitness seem to be waning. The instructors at the Nels Tae Kwon-Do School are dedicated to instilling these qualities in the hearts and minds of young people. The children at Nels Tae Kwon-Do School are taught self-confidence, self-reliance and self-discipline. The children who regularly attend class improve their attentiveness and the ability to work harmoniously with others.

Forestry Foreword

Every tree has a name in forest

By Donald Sarafinchan
Chief Ranger
Cold Creek Forest

The Cold Creek Ranger District, or DW 2, is the most southerly district of the Whitecourt Forest.

DW 2's administration boundary is roughly: the Pembina River on the east and south sides, the Wolf Lake Road, Peers Highway and McLeod River on the west boundary and SR 647 (baseline road) on the north boundary. Approximately half of the land within DW 2 is in the White Area (settlement zone) with a significant portion of this land base still being Crown owned.

Six forest officers and two clerical staff work at the Cold Creek Ranger Station, located at Nojack along Highway 16 west of Wildwood.

During the summer months, additional fire protection people are hired to provide assistance in the warehousing, fire permit issuance, fire lookout, campground maintenance and light equipment operators.

The district has two developed campgrounds for public recreation: Wolf Lake, which has 35 campsites and Minnow Lake with a small campground and Group Camp. The Group Camp is used by groups such as the Trappers Association, Boy Scouts, Cubs, family and school reunions, church organizations and company staff parties. Should anyone want to make reservations please call 795-3940.

Both Wolf Lake and Minnow Lakes offer camping and fishing opportunities.

DW 2 is in the heart of the Pembina and Cynthia Oil and Gas fields with several smaller "pools" in the district. Two major pipelines transverse the district and 12 oil and gas plants supply the petroleum sector from the extensively developed fields.

Prior to any work on Crown owned Green area land, oil companies must get approval from a forest officer and all timber must be salvaged and utilized. This wood resource is utilized by local sawmills and processing plants. The petroleum industry must also plant coniferous seedlings on wellsites that have been abandoned (dry holes) if the wellsites are within previously cut areas that were already reforested.

Over 1,000 fire permits are issued during each fire season - April 1 to October 31. The large settlement area with its agricultural industry is the main user of fire permits.

Occasionally man caused fires occur along with some lightning caused fires. This year 23 fires were actioned to date, reduced from last year's record of 78.

The district has a highly trained four person Initial Attack Crew to attack fires within minutes of detection. As the fire hazards increase, the objectives to get to a fire become even more demanding. This crew is equipped with a helicopter during drier periods to lessen travel times.

Fire detection is mainly through Carrot Creek Tower, located approximately 20km south of the Carrot Creek Store. This tower is aided with cross bearings from Whitecourt Mountain Tower, (south of the town of Whitecourt) and Brazeau Tower (west of Lodgepole in Rocky-Clearwater Forest).

Most smokes and fires are observed from these lookout towers and any fires without permits are immediately reported to the Ranger Station for immediate followup action. In the event of a wildfire the district has access to air tankers based at Whitecourt, Edson or Rocky Mountain House to support the Initial Attack Crews.

Thinned stand

... lodgepole pine trees, three metres apart

In DW 2, there is a large miscellaneous timber use (M.T.U.) program. Up to 150 local and commercial timber permits are available each year to local residents. This wood supplies 34 small sawmills in the district as well as Pelican/Weyerhaeuser's two oriented strand board plants located at Drayton Valley and Edson.

Millar Western Industries and Blue Ridge Lumber also purchase wood from local operators.

Each year in April, a public meeting is held to get the local logger's input and concerns into the M.T.U. cutting plans. In the fall, 59,000 m³ of coniferous and 40,000 m³ of deciduous wood is available in both the Green and White areas in DW 2. Based on local logger's input, a balance is maintained between the sale of competitive commercial timber permits and a draw for local timber permits.

There are quotas for both coniferous and deciduous timber issued to L.H. Rehn Lumber, Fred Karl, A and V Logging, Pelican/Weyerhaeuser and Karl Schneider. Also, a provisional reserve is being held for the Alberta Newsprint Mill of Whitecourt when the "second line" is constructed and production doubled within 10 years. Every tree in DW 2 has a name on it; the wood resource is fully committed.

In reforestation, intensive forest management is being applied to provide a supply of wood for future generations. Coniferous cut blocks (after harvesting) are "stumped" and cleared. Then a heavy disc is used to till the soil. Heavy competition from grass, brush and aspen regrowth are reduced and young healthy seedlings are immediately planted to start a new forest.

Coniferous cut over lands have been reforested over the past years. This land was in most cases sanctified using bulldozers. Once completed, seeding or planting was done.

In some of the areas a dense growth of grass and aspen has developed, suppressing coniferous tree growth. Today these selected areas are "hand thinned" using brush saws.

This is slow work and quite costly, however substantial increases in tree growth will guarantee a supply of timber for the future.

To provide input data into forestry research, areas have been reserved for such study in DW2. Permanent sample plots (P.S.P.s) monitor tree growth by detailed measurements taken as far back as 1960. A great deal of time, money and effort has been spent by both provincial and federal governments on these studies and care must be taken that these plots are not disturbed by man-caused actions.

There are 82 plots in the district, each measuring 32 metres square (1/10 Ha). Boundaries are painted in blue and the public and industry are asked not to cut or damage any trees within these areas.

Overall, the work is very demanding and challenging. Our dedicated staff work hard and long days to maintain and protect the forest and serve the public within the Cold Creek Ranger District.

Winter thinning

... allows for faster growth of the young planted trees

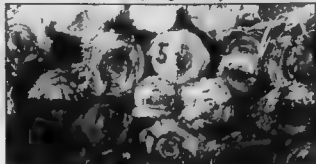

Replanted abandoned wellsite

... oil companies must replant dry hole

Mechanized faller

... makes falling trees easy

Rotten aspen

... companies utilize all types of wood.

Home of the Week

The time is right and the perfect home for the young family has just come on the market.

Cute and cosy' hardly seems fair when the home is 1,076 square feet with a 90 per cent developed basement. Five bedrooms (three up and two down) really help when those little ones miraculously turn into teenagers or when grandma drops in for a visit.

Location is a plus for this home, on a direct route to the new sports complex, and far enough away from the mill and downtown hustle and bustle for them not to be a problem.

Is your kitchen a top priority — lots of cupboards, bright and sunny, with patio doors onto a huge deck? You're right, this home has it all.

At $79,900 all the variables are there: price, location value and opportunity. Call Venture Realty today for a private showing.

Consumers spend billions on credit

Canadian consumers spent more than $165 billion on goods and services in 1988. Many of them used their credit cards to make these purchases.

Statistics show, however, that only half of these consumers actually pay off their credit card balances in full each month. In December 1988, for instance, consumers were carrying over $10 billion in credit card balances. If the trend in credit card use continues, this figure could reach $12 billion by December 1989.

The costs associated with credit cards are varied and complex. Some cards involve per-transaction charges or an annual fee as well as interest charges. The interest rate, "grace period" or date from which interest is computed, and other aspects of the interest calculation determine the amount of interest charged.

To identify the lowest-cost credit card, individuals must take into account their purchase and payment habits.

The information is believed to be accurate as of Sept. 1. Since terms and conditions are subject to change, card issuers may be contacted for verification.

Employment rate climbs

The number of people employed in Alberta in July rose to a new high of 1,254,000.

This is an increase of 30,000 from a year ago.

"Overall, employment continues to climb," says Ken Kowalski, acting minister of career development and employment. "During the past three months a total of 75,000 new jobs were created in Alberta. This indicates a strong and growing provincial economy."

"Employment opportunities for students have been exceptionally strong this year," he continued. "In total 127,000 students were employed in July, a record high."

Alberta's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose slightly to 7.2 per cent from 7 per cent in June.

Seniors' wellness clinic Sept. 11

The Alberta West Central Health unit will hold a seniors' wellness clinic in Drayton Valley Sept. 11.

The day-long clinic will be held at the health unit from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Twenty-four seniors attended a similar clinic in June.

Two community health nurses, two home care nurses and two home care aides who staffed the clinic performed health assessments, lifestyle counselling and routine footcare. The topics of the educational component of the clinics have been cancer prevention, nutrition and exercise.

'I could write a book about building a garage'

By Chris Kreiser
I'm back... summer is over, kids are back in school, our garage is built (OUR GARAGE IS BUILT) and holidays are over.

I think the first week of September should be officially declared Mothers' Mental Health Week. It should be mandatory that all mothers meet in Hawaii for re-energization.

Instead, we got September and school. Well, that's almost as good as a trip to Hawaii.

This year, rather than take holidays, we stayed home and built a garage. I must admit it does look good. But if I had to choose again, I'd opt for holidays.

I could write a book about building a garage. The first chapter — measuring, hammering, shingling, wiring, painting and...the importance of working together.

The rest of the story. Measuring ('Chris! 10 inches is not 'no big deal' when you're putting up walls'; hammering (I knew my days spent fencing as a kid would come back to haunt me. I should never have Fred I knew how to drive a nail); shingling ('Chris! these have to be straight rows. Diagonal lines are not the newest rage in roofing!'; wiring ('Chris! don't turn on that switch!'); painting ('Chris! paint fumes are no excuse; swinging from the rafters is dangerous')

Coffee with Chris

And...working together. This is the big one. Troubles in wallpapering have nothing on building a garage together.

For the sake of the children, pay someone to build your garage. Do not, I repeat, do not attempt this project together, if the word married holds any meaning for you.

And how did the children handle our summer of construction? Rachael is looking forward to Grade 1 like it's a trip to Disneyland. Derek, however, knows better — he's in Grade 2. Nevertheless, it does mean meeting old friends, a chance to make new ones and time out for some good old-fashioned play.

Now they've both gone and I have the house to myself. This is a first. It means when I clean the living room it will stay that way. It's been eight years since I experienced that thrill.

(See what I mean about mothers needing a vacation? The stress of building the garage is showing...)

Although I've made it sound like we spent every waking moment over the summer building our garage, that's not quite true. We managed to go camping one weekend and another time we drove to the city for shopping. I spent a glorious afternoon buying everything in sight — at the lumberyard!

How was my summer? Well, this morning after Fred left for work and the kids were safely on the bus with their lunch kits in hand, I sat at the kitchen table with my cup of coffee, thinking, "I need a vacation."

Alberta Agriculture

Oilseed crop prices decline

Larger South American and U.S. oilseed crops will hold international prices below last year's levels, according to an Alberta Agriculture press release.

For Alberta canola producers, the combination of higher world oilseed production, a large July 31 Canadian canola carryover and the prospects for a large 1989 crop will hold Prairie prices below those of the 1988-89 crop year.

It's estimated Canadian farmers seeded almost 20 per cent fewer acres to canola this spring than in 1988. Improved cereal grain prices accounted for much of the decline.

Canola prices are expected to be lowest in the fall. Winnipeg canola futures have posted steady declines since July, 1988 and the trend is expected to continue into the next quarter. Prices are expected to move higher through the winter as the world oilseed trade picks up.

Although prices are expected to strengthen through the winter, they aren't expected to reach the same levels as last year. March contract futures prices will be in the $310 to $330/tonne range. Basis levels in the $50/tonne range would result in local cash prices of $260 to $280 per tonne.

Clinic dates set

A number of well child/adult immunization clinics have been scheduled in the area.

Clinics will be held Sept. 6, 13, 20 and 27 at the health unit in Drayton Valley between 9 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

At the health unit in Evansburg on Thursday, Sept. 14 from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

And, in Wildwood school on Thursday, Sept. 28 from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

While some youngsters were pretending to be firemen, Scott Ross was hanging around a real fire hall learning the ropes.

He recently joined the Drayton Valley fire department that his father has been involved in for over nine years.

The 18-year-old single man says it was just natural to join and follow in his father's footsteps.

Ross says he plans to attend the Pembina Educational Consortium for upgrading.

He will spend one and a half years at the consortium and then attend NAIT for an EMT course (Emergency Medical Technician).

His ultimate goal is to make firefighting a career and to become a paramedic.

Parkland school board trustees want issue clarified to the public

By Christine Vanzella
Stony Plain Reporter

The County of Parkland's school board is heading the advice of ratepayers to study the size of its central office administration, although some board trustees say the proposed plan would only rehash old figures.

The board passed a motion at its meeting last month to get proposals from different consulting firms to provide information comparing Parkland to about eight other school systems, says superintendent Mary Tkachuk.

Comparisons would be made on the number of superintendents and staff in each system and any services purchased instead of hiring staff.

Tkachuk told the board the study may or may not take place. He said the recommendation is only to get proposals on the job.

But many trustees disagreed with the study, saying the issue needs to be clarified to the public in terms they will understand.

Old Tyme Sheep Fair Alberta largest lamb producer

In pioneer days a sheep and wool fair was a family event.

The spirit of those fairs is recaptured in the Old Tyme Family Sheep and Wool Fair Sept. 9 and 10 at the Western Agriplex in Red Deer.

Activities are kicked off with sheep dog trials Saturday morning and end Sunday evening with a shawl auction and ewe lamb sale. Between those events are shearing demonstrations, a fleece competition, a novelty sheep lead, lamb judging, an angora goat (mohair) display, wool crafts, miniature donkey and llama displays, commercial booths, breed displays and spinning and weaving demonstrations.

An event that demonstrates practical skills is the sheep-to-shawl contest. Teams compete at hectic pace to turn the wool on the sheep's back into a shawl. Team members include a shearer, spinners and a weaver.

Puppet shows, games and clowns will also provide entertainment. Barbecued lamb is the highlight on the meal menu.

Demonstrating the high quality of Alberta lamb and wool is the main objective of the fair. Alberta, with a flock of almost 90,000 ewes, is the largest producer of market lambs in Canada. The largest lamb slaughtering facility in Canada is Lambco in Innisfail.

Enter Peter Pocklington...

I have been asked to address the loan and loan guarantee made to Peter Pocklington. It's a topic almost everyone feels very strongly about, so I will try to address it as impartially as possible.

For a long time now, there has been a recognized need for an expanded identity in the red meat processing industry in Alberta. We grow the feed and we raise the animals, but we allow others to monopolize the benefits of that labor. Quebec, in particular, has been extremely successful in capturing the hog processing industry.

Even today, in spite of all initiatives taken in the past few years, we still ship more hogs than we process. A significant part of Alberta's economic diversification program was to address the "value-added" opportunity.

We used to be in the meat processing business in a much bigger way than we are today and to re-establish this position was going to take some pretty aggressive initiatives — and risks. It would have to be spearheaded by someone willing to take those risks.

It would help if they were already situated within the industry so they would be aware of the many nuances of the business. It would also help if they already had a proven track record of

Report from the Legislature

With

successful entrepreneurship. And finally, it was going to take some capital. Enter Peter Pocklington.

Putting aside personalities for a moment, all of the foregoing criteria appeared to be met. But he was going to need help. A proposal was made to the government resulting in a $12 million loan at current bank rates with all of the proper and normal collateral in place. A further $55 million loan guarantee was extended with adequate collateral.

A commitment was made to upgrade the beef handling facilities in Edmonton and a new hog plant in southern Alberta. A declaration was sworn the money would be used for these purposes and to date $6 million has been drawn on the loan. However, a delay in construction of the plant in Picture Butte appears to be a result of concern over the environmental impact assessment, municipal water and sewer arrangements, and a current downturn in the industry.

If progress is not made prior to Oct. 1 the government has made it clear Gainers will not be able to draw down further funds.

There is certainly a risk in all of this, and we all have every reason to be concerned. However, success of this venture will benefit the farmer, the labor force, indeed, all of Alberta would profit from the spinoff of such employment opportunities.

Such attempts at diversification are working. At a time when oil and gas exploration — one of the recognized — greatest contributors to our economy — is at its lowest ebb in a long, long time, our employment May figures show there are more people employed in Alberta now than we had in 1982, while the "boom" was still in full swing.

Water pressure in the homes along Celebrity Estate Drive has reportedly increased. The town had planned to add 10 pounds of pressure to the line but after adding four pounds, there has been a dramatic increase.

ON JANUARY 1, 1991, CANADA'S FEDERAL SALES TAX SYSTEM WILL CHANGE.

PLEASE SAVE THIS NOTICE.

IT EXPLAINS THE CHANGES AND
THE REASONS FOR THEM.

IT IS A MAJOR PART OF THE ONGOING PROGRAM TO REDUCE THE DEFICIT.

A new Goods and Services Tax (GST) will replace the existing Federal Sales Tax. It will be charged at a uniform rate of 9 per cent on the vast majority of goods and services consumed in Canada. The existing federal sales tax rate is generally 13 1/2% at the manufacturer's level.

The present federal sales tax system has been pushed beyond its limits and can no longer sustain the demands placed upon it. The structural weaknesses of the system have given some corporations the opportunity to reduce the amount of tax they would otherwise pay. For a tax system with 75,000 taxing corporations, there are 22,000 special arrangements and administrative interpretations required to keep the system in operation.

The present federal sales tax system is an increasingly unpredictable and unreliable source of revenue for the federal government. It must be replaced.

Our enormous debt has put pressure on the government's ability to meet other priorities. Canadians know the risks of not acting to bring the debt under control. The size of the debt has left us exposed to increases in interest rates, and vulnerable to international economic shocks. The reliability and stability of our sources of revenue are all the more important in such an environment. The new federal sales tax will secure year by year reductions in the deficit, while ensuring we can continue to provide Canadians with a standard of services that is among the best in the world.

IT WILL STRENGTHEN OUR INTERNATIONAL COMPETITIVENESS AND CREATE JOBS IN CANADA.

Our current federal sales tax favours imports over Canadian made goods. We are the only country in the industrialized world that is putting itself at such a disadvantage. The existing system also makes Canada's exporters less competitive in the world economy. Our present federal sales tax makes our annual economic output about $9 billion lower than it would be with the new GST in place.

Under the GST, we will be able to completely remove tax from our exports and make Canadian products more competitive abroad. And in Canada, Canadian-made products will be able to compete more effectively with imports.

The benefits to the Canadian economy from sales tax reform will extend across all regions and sectors of the economy. The Atlantic and Prairie regions for example, will benefit significantly because their economies are resource-based and export-oriented - two sectors that will benefit the most from sales tax reform.

The GST will lower the cost of the machines, supplies and equipment companies have to buy to produce their products. This will lead to higher levels of investment and expand our output. Higher output will lead to more jobs.

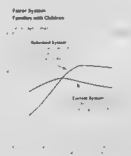

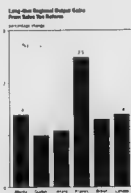

IT WILL HELP LOW INCOME CANADIANS.

Once the GST is in place, families earning less than $30,000 a year will be better off. This will be achieved through a combination of income tax changes. First, low income Canadians will receive the new GST Credit. Second, the middle personal income tax rate will be reduced from 26 per cent to 25 per cent.

The GST Credit will be paid every three months and in advance of expenses. Eligible Canadian households will receive their first credit cheque in December 1990, before the January 1, 1991 GST start-up date. About 9 million Canadians will receive credit cheques. The GST Credit will be calculated on the basis of income tax returns. Every income tax return will contain a one-page form showing Canadians how to apply for the GST Credit.

The amount of the credit will depend on family size and income. The basic adult credit will be $275. Most single adults will be able to get an additional credit of up to $140, for a total of $415. The child credit will be $100. Single parents will receive an adult Credit of $275 for one of their children. Canadian households with incomes up to about $25,000 annually will be entitled to the full Credit.

A family of two adults and two children, eligible for the full Credit, will for example receive cheques of $187.50, four times over the course of the year, for a total of $750.

IT WILL ELIMINATE HIDDEN TAXES.

Right now, everywhere in this country every time Canadians buy a good or service made in Canada, they are paying federal sales tax. For example, a substantial amount of sales tax is presently buried in house prices. Under the existing system, it is clearly impossible for Canadians to know how much federal sales tax they are paying. There are four different rates on a variety of different products and the tax is buried throughout the production process.

It will be clear to Canadians when they are paying the 9 per cent GST. The broad base of the GST means it will apply to almost everything. The few exceptions will be widely known.

Some retailers in Canada will have cash registers that are capable of showing the GST separately at the check-out counter, while other retailers will not. The federal government will provide an incentive to retailers to assist them in acquiring the cash registers to show the GST separately. In all cases, the federal government will provide retailers with signs for their stores that clearly indicate that the 9 per cent GST is being applied.

PROPOSED CHANGES.

- For consumers, the GST will be similar to a retail sales tax, at the rate of 9 per cent on the retail price of goods and services. The GST will replace the existing federal sales tax, which is hidden at the manufacturer's level.
- The GST will apply to virtually all goods and services sold in Canada; however, Canadians will not be charged tax when they buy the following GOODS: basic groceries; prescription drugs; medical appliances such as eye-glasses and wheel chairs; residential rents and existing houses.
- Canadians will not be charged tax when they buy the following SERVICES: loans, mortgages, securities and insurance policies; health and dental care; most education services; daycare services; legal aid; and municipal transit and passenger ferry services.
- Newly constructed houses will be taxed, however, most new home buyers will not see a significant increase in the price of a new house resulting from the GST, because there will be a $900 million GST housing rebate. In many parts of the country price increases will be less than half a per cent. Indeed, many communities should see lower prices as a result of the GST rebate. The main exception will be Toronto, where extraordinarily high land prices may cause prices of new housing to increase by about 1 1/4%.
- Because the present federal sales tax will be removed, prices will not automatically rise 9 per cent when the GST is introduced. The prices of some things will be lower, and others higher. The prices of many big-ticket items for example, that are taxed at 13.5 per cent under the present system, will be lower once the 9 per cent GST is in place. The price of other items that are not taxed under the present system will increase.

Finally, well before the GST is up and running, the government will be telling Canadians about the GST and informing them about the kinds of price changes they can expect for key goods and services when the GST replaces the existing federal sales tax.

For instance, here are a few examples of what consumers might expect:

ITEM	PRE-TAX REFORM($)	POST-TAX REFORM($)
Air Conditioner	780.00	771.00
Car	15,000.00	14,700.00
Snow Tires	240.00	203.00
Hotel Accommodation	90.00	95.00

Life's paradoxes seem senseless but they're true

By Pastor Tim Lees
DV Pentecostal Church

There are some things in life that don't seem to make sense. English teachers call them paradoxes.

For example, why does a bicycle rider, coasting down a hill turn the handle bars to the left to make the bicycle turn right? Or why does a quiet reply win an argument? Or why, when a car is stuck in a snowbank it is best to spin the tires as little as possible?

These examples are

From the Pastor's Pen

paradoxes; they seem senseless but they're true. The Bible teaches in paradoxes sometimes. I Corinthians 1:27: "God chose the foolish things of the world to shame the wise, the weak things to shame the strong." Doesn't seem to make sense, does it? But it's true! When it comes to your salvation and mine, it seems foolish to say there is nothing I can do to be saved. It flies in the face of the belief "we can become anything we want to be."

We can't become good enough to be with God (Romans 3:23). We have to admit our weakness, our inadequacy, our sinfulness and trust the Lord Jesus.

In today's world it's foolish to admit weakness. How are we supposed to get ahead? We live in an individual society. "I don't need any help" is the cry of so many.

"I have my own way to make it in life, to be happy or to get to God."

But the Bible says trusting in Jesus is the only way to be saved (John 14:6; John 11:25,26). To trust Jesus is to admit our own inadequacy, admit we're weak. That's foolishness to some, but to those who have trusted — it's life.

The words of one of my favorite songs say it so well: "You think winners don't need a crutch, Only believers could believe in such."

You don't need God, you don't need anything. Face life alone and take what the future will bring. Here's to all the losers, Lose all guilt and sin, Here's to life in Jesus, Where all of the losers win."

'Safety check' a new or used car

Most people have a list of desirable attributes in mind when they think about purchasing a new or used car. Color, make, model, gas mileage — all these factors are points most people consider when making this major purchase.

Okay, so the car may be that sporty red model you've been dreaming of for years; but is it safe? The Alberta Motor Association consumer information department recommends you conduct a safety checklist on the new or used car you are about to buy.

Ask yourself:

Can you see well in all directions? Are there any blind spots impeding your vision?

Are the mirrors large, offering good side and rear views? Does the rearview mirror have a glare-reducing setting?

Is there a rear window washer and wiper for hatchbacks and station wagons?

Do the front window defrosters keep all the windows clear? Is there a rear window defroster?

Is the car a highly visible color? (Stay away from dark green, blue and grey. These colors are least conspicuous.)

Does the vehicle have warning devices indicating low fluid levels, and brake pad wear?

Do the head restraints permit rear visibility?

Do the rear seat positions have three-point manual shoulder belts similar to those in the front seats?

Are four-wheel disc brakes or anti-lock brakes available?

Car safety for kids

Does the vehicle have child restraint system anchorages in designated locations?

Does the vehicle have driver-controlled automatic door locks or child-proof rear door lock?

Do the rear windows roll only half-way down?

Seatbelt safety

Are the rear surfaces of the front seat-backs well padded and soft to protect rear occupants in the event they are thrown forward?

Does the belt fit comfortable across the chest without rubbing against the face or falling off the shoulder?

Does the pressure exerted by the shoulder belt against you make you feel secure?

Does the seat belt release and retract out of the way to its storage position easily?

Can you easily locate and reach the latch plate?

Can you easily extend the latch plate over to the buckle?

Is the latch plate easy to insert into the buckle?

Finally, contact the AMA consumer information department for more information on safety tips, or information on buying a new or used car — 1-800-222-6578 (toll free).

What is safe to eat anymore?

By Samia Vallevand
Consumer confidence has been eroded recently through a number of media reports about the dangers associated with pesticides and other chemical residues in foods.

What is safe to eat anymore? A string of well publicized scares — from tainted tuna to toxic mussels and Alar in apples to dioxin in paper packaging and coffee filters — has most consumers edging towards a crisis in confidence in the food we eat.

The Consumers' Association of Canada intends to look at these fears and address the food safety issue in depth.

Presently, Agriculture Canada is stepping up its sampling of foods containing pesticides. The department still does not have sufficient resources to sample every food. It has therefore set priorities — foods whose levels of consumption, methods of production and/or countries or origin demand closer scrutiny.

Consumer's Corner

There is a descending order of priority as well. The 10 foods set to receive the most attention are: tomatoes, beef, veal, potatoes, oranges, grapefruit, nuts, apples, pork, fats and oils.

Canned tomato paste ranks number one on the monitoring list because of a suspicion it may contain unsafe levels of an insecticide called permethrin.

The CAC magazine, Canadian Consumer, over the next few months will look at all sides of the food issue. From parasites to antibiotics — from pollutants to natural food toxins.

Ged's garden was filled with many Chrysanthemums and carnations

Many shades of blue and pink

God needed someone who would take care of this lovely garden, who he loved, cared for and who had strength to do it.

He needed someone beautiful, charming and had a wonderful smile and laughter.

You are, there was something missing from that lovely garden.

So he looked down upon the earth and saw your tired face. Then he looked at us and after seeing the sadness in our eyes, he knew you would be the perfect one.

God then took your hand and lifted you to rest.

We know you would fit right because for he only took the best.

Now you join a gone and you can enjoy your garden with the flowers you love.

With our memories of you,

They will always stay.

Because you were our friend, Mother

And we'll always love you, day by day

Always and sadly missed by your

In Loving Memory of our Mother and

A heart of gold stepped away.

Hard working hands at rest.

God broke our hearts to prove to us

He only takes the best.

In tears we watched you sinking.

We watched you fade away

For hearts were broken.

The day you slipped away

When we saw you sleeping

So peaceful, free from pain.

We could not wait from you.

To suffer that once again

To see you go, my heart.

But to us who loved you,

Pelican Mill manager Percy Champagne (left) looks over some standboard with Forestry Minister Leroy Fjordbotten.

Minister impressed by mill

By Paul Cudla

Alberta MLAs toured the Pelican Spruce Mill last Thursday and Forestry Minister Leroy Fjordbotten was impressed with what he saw.

"I've been through it (the mill) twice before, and I'm always impressed with the quality control and professionalism," Fjordbotten says.

The entire Alberta caucus was invited to tour the Pelican Mill and about 10 MLAs were present including MLA Tom Thurber.

Tour guides led the MLAs through all factions of the mill, answering their questions and explaining operating procedures.

Fjordbotten says he is pleased with the mill and its "continued emphasis on quality control; always monitoring other products (forest products), not just across Alberta, but across Canada. Making sure their product measures up."

Earlier this year Pelican Mills became the first mill in the world to work out a trade agreement with Japan.

Fjordbotten says this exemplified the way the mill was "very conscious about marketing."

"It's extremely important (the trade deal worked out with Japan). I've been to Japan three times and I know they have a housing crisis."

"Pelican has made the first significant step into the Japan market."

Fjordbotten called the oriented strandboard method employed at the mill "absolutely a winner."

Fjordbotten says the Alberta Environment report released recently which claims pulp and paper mills are reducing oxygen levels in the Athabasca River would not affect Pelican.

"I don't see it (the report) affecting the strandboard plants."

Neighbors go in opposite directions

By Frank Ryan

-Darrell Masse and Rick Klippert are neighbors.

Last Wednesday, the two men appeared before the Twin Rivers school board in an attempt to get permission for their six-year-old daughters to ride the bus into the Eldorado school in Drayton Valley.

Despite the fact the two families live less than a mile apart, their children will have to use different methods of transportation.

The school board has decided the Masse's daughter can ride the bus while the Klippert's daughter can't.

The rationale behind the board's decision was based on the fact that Masse's daughter attended school in Drayton Valley last year while Klippert's went to Lindale.

However, if the Klippert's daughter decided to attend the Lindale school again she is entitled to ride the bus.

Rick Klippert was upset with the board's decision.

"Where's their thinking," he asked following notification of the decision.

Thé Klipperts live half-way between Drayton Valley and Lindale.

"We have a Drayton Valley post office box, we do 90 per cent of our shopping in Drayton Valley and we work there."

"Drayton Valley schools have more to offer."

"All I want is my daughter to go to that school on the bus," he stated.

Because of the ruling, the Klipperts will have to arrange their own transportation if their daughter is to attend the Drayton Valley school.

Just down the road Sandra and Darrell Masse were extremely pleased with the board's decision.

He had informed the board the boundary (highway) ran right through his home quarter and he owned land on both sides.

And, they wanted their daughter to attend the Drayton Valley school, not Lindale as had been suggested.

The board has handled several appeals like the Masse's and Klippert's. No information was available as to which way the other appeals had gone.

Local News Briefs

Three schools in the Twin Rivers division are earmarked for modernization or new construction.

However, they are still waiting for final approval from the province.

The three schools are Eldorado, Lindale and Breton high.

The ice plant in the sports centre is scheduled to be turned on tomorrow (Wednesday).

Out-of-towners looking for a hotel/motel room in Drayton Valley last Tuesday were out of luck.

Town council met with the architect last Wednesday to discuss the West Valley Park development.

Residents, who may be affected by this development, were not invited.

Manny Deol, the town manager, says no decisions were made. It was just an information session.

Fran MacLellan will attend a two-day disaster services course in Edmonton later this month.

Fred Larson, the area economic development officer who works out of Edson, spoke to the last council meeting.

Town council plans to proceed with the television filming infiltration study of their sewer system at the budgeted cost of $95,000.

Councillor Howard Olsen wants the town's administration to take immediate action to recoup a grant of $54,000 from Alberta Transportation and Utilities in order that projects outlined in the budget may be completed before the end of the 1989 fiscal year.

-Election '89-

Salfi seeks council seat

Alex Salfi

Alex Salfi has added his name to the list of people seeking a council seat in the civic election Oct. 16.

Salfi has served three terms (nine years) as a councillor and feels he has experience and dedication to offer the people of Drayton Valley.

Some of the first things

Salfi said had to be looked at were social services and tourism.

Even though the town is in very good shape financially, according to Salfi, "We still have to control spending."

"Our efforts in providing first-class facilities must continue without borrowing money."

Salfi ran for mayor about six years ago but Bob Mayhew defeated him by approximately 80 to 90 votes.

He is not running for mayor this election because he feels the town is being run efficiently and will continue to be run efficiently regardless of who is elected as mayor (Bob Mayhew or Tom McGee).

"Whichever one we get, we're going to be lucky to have them. They both have excellent track records."

Saunders has plans to run for re-election

Jean Saunders

Jean Saunders has decided to seek re-election in the Oct. 16 municipal election.

Saunders, administrative assistant at the consortium, deliberated for several weeks before making the decision.

She joins councillors Howard Olsen, Charlie Miner and Alex Salfi as incumbents on council seeking re-election. Councillor Tom McGee has decided to challenge Bob Mayhew for the mayor's job.

Dave Lundberg is leaving council after a three year term.

Saunders says she had to consider her young family and position at the consortium before making a final decision.

"I had to give it serious thought. It wasn't easy," she said.

Asked why she was going to seek re-election Saunders replied, "We haven't finished what we started. We're on the edge of some great things."

"We're almost debt-free and now we can get started on some recreation things."

Some of her major concerns include the walkway proposal, West Valley Park development, FCSS or tourism.

Grant Monsour

Gibson not a stranger to challenge

Natalie Gibson has decided to go after a town councillor's position in next month's municipal election.

Gibson, who has lived in Drayton Valley for the past eight years, says she finally made up her mind after considering it for quite a while.

"Over the past two months when questioned if I was running, I have repeatedly said no. But, after much thought and encouragement, I have changed my position."

"I am no stranger to challenges. Having served on many different boards and committees. I have committed myself to the family, professional and volunteer services," Gibson stated.

She is active with the chamber, tourism, recreation and politics.

"Through these positions and with team work these are accomplishments I'm proud of."

"But, as are many volunteers and residents, I am frustrated."

"Community organizations, clubs and the town are all working on their own projects, instead of working together, we are working in opposite directions," Gibson claims.

Some of her areas of concern include keeping more in touch with the views and concerns of the community, economic development, tourism and taxes.

Natalie Gibson

Monsour to run

Grant Monsour has decided to take a shot at local politics.

Monsour, who lost out to MLA Tom Thurber in the Progressive Conservative party race by seven votes, announced his intentions on the weekend to seek a position on town council.

He is very active in the chamber, presently serving as president.

Evansburg man killed in tragic accident

A 34-year-old Evansburg man is dead following a tragic accident near Cynthia last Wednesday.

Kenneth Frank Chapman was electrocuted while standing next to a flatbed truck unloading a backhoe. He was touching the truck during the unloading process when the backhoe operator brought the bucket near overhead high voltage wires.

The bucket touched the wires, killing Chapman as he stood touching the truck. There were no other injuries.

The incident occurred three miles north and one quarter mile west of Cynthia on an oilfield service road.

Kjorlien throws hat in ring

Only one member of the Roman Catholic Separate School Board has decided to seek re-election next month.

While Tim Kjorlien has officially declared his intentions to seek re-election chairman Joan Anderson, Marilyn Buchan, Lorne Pinkoski and Dennis Mallett are all undecided.

They have until Monday, September 18 between 10 a.m. and noon to file their nomination papers.

"Drayton Valley has been good to me so I want to put something back," was how Kjorlien described his decision to seek another term on the board.

Kjorlien, who grew up in Drayton Valley and attended St. Anthony's, earned a seat on the board through a by-election last November when Paul Duckett resigned due to a transfer.

He's seen his short term on the board as challenging and a good experience.

If re-elected, he plans to devote more of his time to work on committees.

Getting more computers in the school is one of his main priorities.

Pinkoski, the veteran on the board with nine years experience, wants to talk it over with his family before making a decision.

Buchan says will probably run again but hasn't made a final decision.

Both Anderson and Mallett indicated they would delay any decision until nomination day.

Trade Fair '89

Organizers pleased with good turnout

By Frank Ryan

Reaction to last weekend's chamber trade fair was excellent.

Crowds at the three-day event held in the Drayton Sports Centre totalled 3,831. This included 800 people on Friday night followed by 1,956 on Saturday and 1,075 Sunday afternoon.

Trade fair chairman Simon Kelly was extremely pleased with the turnout and said things went off just great.

The only real thing he had to worry about was a power outage on Saturday.

The modular booths were a big attraction. Sixteen of the booths were featured in this year's fair and Kelly said the entire middle row next year will likely feature the modular booths.

Al Oeming and his cheetah were a big attraction Saturday afternoon.

Large crowds also took in the excellent brand of entertainment in the main lobby of the sports centre.

Alex Salfi, who worked in the ICG booth throughout the entire weekend called it an excellent show piece.

Century 21's Lorne Pinkoski said it was a good opportunity to chat with people.

Peter Didrichsen, team tourism program manager with the Battle River Tourist Association reported a lot of traffic at their booth.

Doreen Kenworthy of Drayton Valley won Friday's door prize of a hind of beef. Anne Clark of Mulhurst had her name drawn as Saturday's winner of the $1,000 shopping spree and Sunday's $150 in dining certificates was won by Bert and Lucia Fredette of Drayton.

Expressions Arts & Crafts took first place in the booth competition followed by Wofah Custom Cabinets and Bumper to Bumper. Honorable mention went to Fantasy Flooring, Teach R Toys, Commercial Bearing and the Drayton Valley Health Complex.

Plans are to hold next year's trade fair in the sports centre and the curling rink which is expected to be finished by then.

Opinions

Motorists have many new things to watch for School's back in and that means many more things for the motorist to be watching for.

Some of these include:

- * New traffic lights at the Turbo corner on 50th Street.

- * A new crosswalk light at the corner of 48th Street and 50th Avenue (near the Catholic Church). Some of the caution spots around town include:

- * Buses going in and out of Eldorado.

- * Parents parking on both sides of 50th Street, picking up and dropping kids off at Eldorado. This is extremely hazardous in the winter.

- * School patrols at Evergreen and St. Anthony's and the adult supervised crosswalk at the 7-11 corner.

- * No parking near on 47th Street near the Evergreen school.

Because of the possible danger that exists, it would be encouraging to see the town's bylaw enforcement and the RCMP ticket offenders in the no parking zone by Evergreen.

Children using 50th Avenue from the 7-11 corner east to St. Anthony's are urged to use caution. That always seems to turn into a drag strip when school resumes.

Besides observing the school zone speeds, motorists should generally be more aware of the extra traffic on our roads. Kids often do the unexpected...like walk against a red light or jaywalk in the middle of the block.

Lots of benefits

MLA pay hikes are 'downright disgusting'

To the average working man, making an average salary, the 30 per cent pay hike the provincial politicians granted themselves...is downright disgusting.

For an MLA, the 30 per cent raise will see their salary jump from $44,322 to $57,505. Not a bad raise for many of them who haven't even been in office a year.

But the 30 per cent raise is only part of the benefit package they get.

Consider these employment benefits:

- * Unemployment insurance is not deducted from their salary.

- * About $19,000 of their salary is tax free.

- * The province pays 21 cents per kilometre for a member using his car. Rural

Frankly Speaking
By Frank Ryan

members can claim up to 45,000 kilometres while urban MLAs can claim up to 25,000.

- * MLA's receive a free bus pass for travel anywhere within the province.

- * Some travel benefits are also included for an MLA's spouse.

- * MLAs sitting on permanent committees of the legislature receive $100 per day for meetings under one hour; $165 between four and eight hours and $260 over eight hours.

- * The province shares 50-50 the cost of Alberta Health Care premiums.

- * And, of course, they have an attractive pension plan.

If our provincial politicians really think they're worth the 30 per cent raise, they should watch themselves on the tube, just to see how ridiculous they look. It certainly doesn't portray a very good image.

Senate reform 'inine'

By Paul Cudde

The Triple 'E' Senate, elected, effective and equal. Why not add an 'I' to the list—inine.

The senate reform proposed by the Alberta government is an idea which only serves to self-serve.

It is a piece of platform propaganda which Premier Getty refuses to give up on.

Mulroney says he won't recognize a senate election. But that doesn't faze Getty. He's going to do it anyway, all for the honor and prestige of our wonderful province of Alberta.

Yeah right.

The only thing he's really concerned about is restoring his own name, honor and prestige.

So off he goes riding his white horse called Triple 'E', galloping blindly into the sunset.

And here we go spending public time and funds on Getty's hidden agenda.

Is there a point to this political chess game?

Not really, besides the Alberta Tory's own purpose of self-satisfaction in shunning and bucking a political system which has been entrenched for hundreds of years.

Rebels with a cause.

The idea may be valid. The senate is a body of government which is obviously static, stale and insignificant.

Ruling parties appoint their favorite party here to a six figure salary and ultimate security. Patronage and senate have become common synonyms.

The figurehead position of the senate is one which needs to be reformed, restructured and even simply omitted.

But why does Don Getty figure he should be the one to dramatically bring the federal government to its knees?

He has been the ultimate contradiction of a renegade since he took office. He has followed party-line from the first day he stepped into the hallowed halls of the Edmonton Legislature.

But now all of a sudden he's found a convenient scapegoat, the east.

And by playing up to western regionalist sympathies he sees a white hat glimmering with his name boldly emblazoned, 'Getty' — the man who won the west a senate election!

It's about time Getty got off that white horse, and let go of the white hat. The senate election is truly a waste of time and money and will eventually turn into another political forum which will pit party against party.

The last thing Albertans need is more political harangues and propaganda.

What happened to the sensible teens of yesterday?

By Susan Mosicki
Aren't teenagers grand?

Parents go through their own teenage years, grow up and raise babies, toddlers, elementary-age children, and then get to deal with their own teenagers.

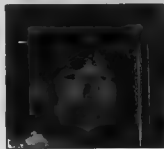

Why, then, is it so hard to raise a teen?

Possibly it's the language barrier. Everything is radical, cool and solid. Instead of goodbye, they say 'stay real'. As opposed to what? Staying fake?

Perhaps it's the way they dress. Why are 'shorts' six inches from the ground. And what is the reasoning behind wearing two different colored shoes?

Maybe it's their haircuts. Mohawks and Batman cuts wouldn't have cut any ice with the crowd that most parents grew up with.

Then again, it could be the expense. Brand new jeans are torn across the knees if one is in the radical or cool crowd. School books are tossed around carelessly and show definite signs of wear in a short period of time. Not to mention the expense of their extracurricular activities.

During the teen years many parents find their children, previously good students, slipping in academic achievement, or even, horror of horrors, skipping school.

They have bedrooms that any building inspector would have to condemn, and they stay on the phone for hours on end. But when they aren't on the phone, they could be out who knows where causing ulcers and gray hair for their parents.

And there are the classic excuses. "I didn't have a watch." "So-and-so told me to do it." "But mom, it's not cold."

Why is it that they have to wear the sweat shirt with the latest rock star across the front in the summer and choose the muscle shirt in the winter?

What happened to the sensible teenagers of yesterday who had hair below their tushes and pants that dusted the sidewalks?

What happened to far-out, groovy and right on?

What happened to pants that were patched until there wasn't an piece of the original material left?

Times have changed, sayings have changed, and clothes have changed, but have teenagers really changed?

Aren't they grand?

Twin Rivers delays decision on school busing rates

By Frank Ryan

The Twin Rivers school board has delayed a final decision on in-town busing.

A notice of motion was introduced at last Wednesday's meeting and a final decision is expected when the board meets Oct. 4.

That's good news for the many parents who are angry about the lack of notice and a $65 increase over last year, and, the five people who appeared before the board at last week's meeting.

"We are preached at to use restraint, but..."

Spokesman Mike Sellwood presented the board with a 286 family name petition that involved 486 school age children.

Reading from a prepared statement he said, "We realize that increases are necessary in this day and age, but we are also preached to by government to use restraint. We have not seen this in regards to the bus fares charged."

"We have listened to your argument for the increase in regards to the price that Leduc and Red Deer charge. We feel, as they have areas much larger than Drayton Valley, without a comprehensive study of their system, we believe we should not consider using them as examples.

"We also feel that we are being singled out to bare the brunt of the cost to operate the bus system in Drayton Valley. With the assistance of parents whose children ride for free, the bus system which gives you the most concern, could be made into a reasonable and viable service."

"If the bus fee is not reduced to a reasonable rate, you may lose up to 40 per cent of the children, further increasing the cost to operate the service."

Sellwood also wanted to know what would happen next year.

"Another increase of 50 per cent to off-set the cost of operation, making the bus fee $150 per child or $300 per family."

"We, the families, feel a fee of $45 per child or $90 per family is not unreasonable to maintain this vital bus service."

Despite the board's position to delay any decision, chairman Vi Helm told a member of the delegation, to go ahead and get their pass. And, if they couldn't pay, to call the Twin Rivers office and make other arrangements.

The Twin Rivers school division says they are subsidizing busing at 80 per cent of the cost, but only subsidizing rural busing at a 30 per cent level.

The County of Parkland is charging $36 per child or $69 per family for their in-city, town and village areas this year.

Moose lands in their lap

A Grande Prairie couple was taken to hospital with undetermined injuries after their vehicle struck a moose one and a half miles north of the junction of Highways 616 and 22 last Wednesday.

Dave, 58, and Flora, 56, Thiesens were both transported to Drayton Valley Health Complex.

The impact of the collision knocked the moose off its feet. "It landed on the hood and windshield area causing it to cave in and the moose was literally laying in their laps," said Breton RCMP Const. Steve Shamber.

The moose died as a result of injuries sustained. RCMP are continuing the investigation. Alcohol was not a factor and no charges have been laid to date.

The vehicle is believed to be a total write-off. Const. Steve Shamber said the RCMP would like to express their gratitude to people that stopped and assisted the injured parties and police at the scene of the accident.

Better service

Telephone conversion to private line service in on schedule and AGT will be starting conversion in the Drayton Valley area in April according to Regional Manager Doug Wether.

"We will complete the changeover by Aug. 3, 1990," he said.

There are 1,171 conversions in the Drayton Valley area.

Other areas scheduled for conversion are Tomahawk (starts Oct. 16, 89), Seba Beach (starts Jan. 8, 90), Seba Beach summer cottages (starts July 9, 90) and Warburg (Feb. 5, 90).

Man convicted on two counts

Patrick Grant Connors of Breton will spend 180 days in jail after being convicted on two counts in Drayton Valley provincial court last week.

The 32-year-old man entered guilty pleas to driving over .08 (80 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood), and operating a motor vehicle while disqualified.

He was sentenced to 90 days on the first count and 90 days consecutive on the second.

He was also prohibited from driving for three years.

Man convicted of assault

A 38-year-old local man was sentenced to 60 days in jail in Drayton Valley provincial court last Thursday.

Ricky Reynold Beattie entered guilty pleas to an assault charge and uttering threats.

He received a 60-day sentence on the first count and 60 days concurrent on the second count. He also received nine months probation.

Proposed walkway has $832,000 price tag

By Frank Ryan

Members of town council are looking at preliminary drawings for a $832,000 walkway system.

The walkway would be specifically designed for cyclists and pedestrians.

According to a concept drawing that was on display at the trade fair last weekend, the walkway would tie into the path that already exists in the Northview area.

Then it would proceed south along 43rd Street past St. Anthony's and Frank Maddock High up to 43rd Ave. A path would also extend into Aspenview, either down 50th Avenue or via a proposed route between the two schools.

On 43rd Avenue it would be built down the middle of the road, going between the Westwind Motor Inn and the IGA on down to West Valley Park.

After twisting around West Valley Park, the proposed drawing calls for the path to continue along Highway 22 to the north entrance to town along highway right-of-way.

There it would swing back into town, down a road behind Mack and Mann and end up back in Northview.

According to recreation director Tom McGee, consideration is also being given to extending the path south along 50th Street to the Pleasant View Trailer Court.

A draft proposal for the project suggests it be built in three stages.

McGee expects work to start next spring on the first leg, running south on 43rd Street.

It's a project the town has been looking at for the past two years.

At the present time town council are just investigating the proposal. No decision has been made to proceed.

Luck of the draw nets new phone

The luck of the draw was on the side of Charmaine and Danny Hall last week.

They were chosen to receive a complimentary telephone when AGT began converting Lodgepole to private line service.

Regional Manager Doug Wetter said there are 63 subscribers in the Lodgepole area and that it is one of the smallest in the entire region.

He said the people in the area have a private line now, but "it's not truly cut over because they don't have all the network features (call waiting, etc.)."

The conversion will be complete by October 13, said Wetter.

Drayton Valley riders earn three firsts

Drayton Valley racers excelled on a muddy, muskeg-laden trail at the second leg of the Spruce Goose cross-country motorcycle race on Sunday.

The CMA sanctioned race, called the Prairie Dog Challenge, featured 47 riders in six different classes on a trail at Dome Tar, about 30 kms west of Lodgepole.

Riders in masters, expert and senior did two and a half laps of a 21-mile circuit which wound through swamps, forest and a lot of mud.

In the expert over-200cc class, Todd Lindahl, 19, of Drayton Valley beat Jim Kuster of Westlock. Kuster is actually a masters rider but the two classes were combined on Sunday. Finishing third was Colin Poulin, and fourth was Kevin Stephenson.

"I loved it. I got a good start and had a good pace and felt good the whole way," Lindahl says, adding he had no problems with crashes.

Lindahl, who has been riding the Dome Tar trails since he was six, says the course is the toughest on the cross-country circuit.

"This is the toughest event. The toughest and probably the slowest.

"There is way more technical stuff in this one," Lindahl says.

By winning the race Sunday, Lindahl has virtually assured himself of the Spruce Goose series victory. He won the first race in the series, and his closest challenge, Jim Kuster, won't be at the third and final race Oct. 8 at Smoky Lake.

Joe Pruden, 19, also from Drayton Valley, won the senior over-200cc by outracing second place finisher Gary Tysseland of Brooks. Bob Brusyk was third with John Jacques coming in fourth.

"I was really happy with the race. Things were smooth," Pruden says.

Things were not entirely smooth for Pruden before the race as minutes before the start he found out his clutch did not work. Fortunately, he managed to get a clutch disc loaner from another rider and performed a last minute repair.

Pruden also leads the Spruce Goose in his class, senior over-200cc; he took over the lead with the second race win on Sunday.

Yet another Drayton Valley resident, Gerald Mezzo, won the junior over-200cc class. Neal Stetton took second place, and Chad Perrot was third.

"I had a slow start and slow first quarter. All the time I thought there were a couple of guys ahead of me in my class and I was trying to catch them," Mezzo says.

Mezzo's bad start was complicated by his bike, which took three kicks to start. He then was boxed in around the first corner. But he made up time at the swamp, and the creek-crossing and eventually took the lead for good.

Mezzo's win gives him the lead in the over-200cc junior class with one race left.

In expert under-200cc Dylan Cartwright was the winner and Earl Shennan took the junior under-200cc.

The creek-crossing was a major cross-country obstacle.

Sigal seeks thrills in bike racing

Les Sigal placed second overall at the Can-Am challenge.

By Paul Cudla

Les Sigal, 33, has found mountain bike racing to be a perfect transition from motorcross.

"I love motorcross, and this just seemed like a good activity," Sigal says.

Sigal races an 18-speed Klein-made mountain bike, and placed second overall at the Labatt's Can-Am Challenge in Blackcomb-Whistler Aug. 18, 19, and 20.

He raced in the 19 to 34 year-old intermediate class.

"I was surprised I got second to be honest. I beat the guy in third by only 15 points," Sigal says.

He raced against 57 other mountain bike racers in four races, cross-country, slalom, uphill, and downhill. Approximately 40 racers competed in all four events in an effort to win the overall title.

Sigal's best placing was fifth in cross-country as he did the 28.8 km course in a time of 1 hr. 47 mins. 50 secs.

"I like cross-country the best, it's got the most variety and it's more challenging."

Cross-country race circuits include river crossings, hill climbs, downhill, and rough terrain portions.

In the other Can-Am races, Sigal placed eighth in slalom, 12th in uphill climb, and ninth in downhill.

The uphill climb required a rider to peddle up a mountain service road for 15 kms.

"It was pretty gruelling. I was pretty beat at the top. I needed a couple of hours to recover."

In the downhill race, bikers reached speeds of around 70 km/h.

Sigal has been mountain bike racing for the past four years and this year has done well enough provincially, to qualify for moving up to the expert class from the intermediate class. He has been to about 10 races so far this season.

He says he enjoys the sport for the way it combines competition with enjoyment.

"I like the speed and I like the challenge. But there's also good people out having a good time."

"It's sort of like hiking. It allows me to take my mind off everything, so it's relaxing in a lot of ways."

"I suppose if you don't crash there is a definite health benefit."

With only a few races left in the season, Sigal plans to try his luck in the expert class of mountain bikes.

"As far as I'm concerned I'm an intermediate rider, but I'm going to try expert for the rest of the year to see how it goes."

Bryant teaches for kid's sake

By Paul Cudla

Colleen Bryant, 25, got involved with the Drayton Valley Gymnastics Club five years ago and has continued with it because she enjoys working with the kids.

"I like the kids. I like the recreational atmosphere.

"Teaching the things I know. It's kind of nice when people come and ask your advice. I like seeing the kids progress," Bryant says.

Bryant competed in gymnastics for six years, and was asked to train for the Olympics but turned it down. She quit competitive gymnastics in grade 11.

She was approached in 1985, and asked if she would like to coach, which she accepted. Bryant started out instructing pre-school children but moved up quickly to competitive teaching.

Currently she is head competitive coach and says she specializes in uneven bars.

"We advance them (kids in the club) as far as they can go on one level; but they have to have the skills to be able to move up," Bryant says. The Drayton Valley Gymnastics Club is in the midst of moving its facilities from their old gym to the new rec-plex/curling rink. The club should be moved in by Nov. 1.

With the new year, comes all new gymnastic equipment courtesy of grants from Alberta Sports Council and the town.

The DV Gymnastics Club competes solely in fun meets with other town clubs but has set a long-term goal of moving up to class 1 competitions.

Bryant was responsible for organizing the first meet hosted in Drayton Valley last year.

Most of the club instruction is done by a gymnastics manual and Bryant says the club encourages the kids to seek added instruction at summer camps.

Other coaches who will be involved in the Drayton Valley Gymnastics Club this year are: Sherry Winttingham, Terra Winttingham, Don Winttingham, Corinne Joneson, Jackie Kurylo, Jansia Hutzal, and Jill Simmans.

Mayhew dangles election ice surface

By Frank Ryan
The Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association will operate the concession in the sports centre this winter.

That issue caused quite a stir at last Wednesday's minor hockey meeting.

President Kevin Henry told the standing-room-only crowd that $50 had been added on to the registration fee, and that would be refunded at the end of the year if parents have worked their allotted time in the concession.

Minor hockey will have to operate the concession 70 hours per week.

"It's going to take a total commitment from minor hockey," Henry stated.

Last year the Ponoka Minor Hockey Association made $45,000 from their concession and two years ago Innisfail minor hockey netted $22,000.

With the funds from the concession, the executive hopes to be able to reduce the registration fees next year and make a contribution toward a second indoor arena.

Because many families were faced with extra expenses due to the starting of school, concession checks can be postdated until Nov. 1.

Registration fees, which are the same as last year, are due by Oct. 1. Forms are available at Norcen, Norette and Arrow Welding.

Two teams per week will handle the staffing in the concession.

Scheduling has not been worked out.

Although the season doesn't swing into action until Sept. 23, an equipment swap will be held at the sports centre tonight (Tuesday) from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Minor hockey plans to utilize the outdoor rink again this winter. Four more lights will be added.

Coaches are needed. If you're interested, send a letter, including your experience to the minor hockey executive.

A referee's clinic is planned for the end of the month. Anyone planning on attending is asked to call Vivian Bredin.

Gym club seeking new home

The Drayton Valley gymnastics club is without gym space.

They had to vacate the band building last Tuesday because it was needed by H.W. Pickup junior high for classes.

Colleen Bryant, club president, will be keeping her fingers crossed for the next couple of months in anticipation of getting into the recreation area in the basement of the curling rink.

She has a commitment from curling club president Bruce Clemmer that the first phase of their building, located adjacent to the Drayton Sports Centre, will be ready Nov. 1.

In the meantime their equipment will remain in storage.

Because of the delay Bryant is hoping the club won't lose too many children.

She is also concerned for the parents.

"It will be hard for the parents to wait...wondering if we are going to get in Nov. 1".

The gymnastics club looked at using the gym at St. Anthony school, but it was only available between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. and Bryant says it wasn't adequate for their preschool program.

Minor hockey to operate arena concession

By Frank Ryan

The need for a second indoor ice surface is on Mayor Bob Mayhew's list of election priorities.

Asked if a second indoor arena would surface during the current election campaign he replied, "You're damn right."

"It's been in the back of my mind since we started the first one.

"It's something I plan to work toward," he explained.

Tom McGee, his opponent in the October municipal election isn't so sure another indoor arena is needed just yet.

"We need another year to look at the outdoor rink.

"There's other things we need before a second arena," he stated.

One of these is the town's proposed walkway system that is currently being reviewed.

Mayhew is also interested in the system.

"I can't see why we can't put in a fountain and walks in the Aspenview area," he says.

The town is currently working with the developer in Aspenview toward establishing a park, much similar to the facilities in the Northview area.

New constable 'in the pink'

Const. Gordon Chammen's friends in Whitecourt decided to surprise him with a going away present: they painted his truck bright PINK! He was in Whitecourt for the past five of his 16 years in the RCMP and is being promoted to corporal in the Drayton Valley detachment in less than one month. People will get to know this man, his wife and four children very quickly. They'll be the only ones driving around town in a pink pickup truck.

Rally to run Oct. 1

A Buck Lake resident is planning an old car rally on Sunday, October 1.

Organizer Marvin Long says the rally, for classic cars and pre-70's will go rain or shine.

Registrations will be accepted on the day of the rally between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. at the Breton Civic Center.

The participants are scheduled to leave at 10 a.m. for Rimbey, through Bentley to Gull Lake and onto Lacombe and Red Deer. The return trip will go through Sylvan Lake and back to Breton.

People planning to enter the rally are reminded to bring their own refreshments and a picnic lunch.

There's no cost to register.

Long, who owns several old cars, is hoping for 20 entries. "But, if we get 120 that will be okay," he admits.

For more information call Long at 682-2278.

Wilson to run for council again

Councillor Wallace Wilson will again be a contestant in the upcoming municipal elections. By October, the outcome of the annexation proceedings should possibly be known and he feels that if the bid is successful, a candidate with the experience of municipal affairs would be an asset to the MD of Brazeau. If the result is negative, he feels that there are many areas which he would like to see completed, and will therefore stand for another term with the County of Wetaskawin District #7.

Local students score well

According to Alberta Education, students taking Biology 30 exceeded the provincial examination by almost 10 percentage points.

In this course only one (3.2 per cent) student out of 32, failed the course compared to almost 13 per cent for the province.

The overall pass rate in English 30 and Social Studies was also above the provincial figures.

The performance of local students in Chemistry 30 was just about on par with that of their provincial counterparts.

However, the level of achievement by Twin Rivers students in Math 30, English 33 and Physics 30 was somewhat disappointing.

BOB MAYHEW

BOB MAYHEW PROVIDES SOLID LEADERSHIP ON COMMUNITY RELATIONS. BEFORE OCTOBER 16, 1989
CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING:

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

- Initiated the Adult School Patrol Program at Eldorado School Intersection (50th Ave & 50th St.)

- Established a good rapport and negotiated a fair cost sharing agreement with Brazeau M.D. #77 for fire services, recreation, library and sanitary land fill services.

- Entered into a mutually agreeable arrangement with the Pembina Educational Consortium for use of the former town office.

- Initiated an annual "Appreciation Night" for town staff and board appointees.

- Initiated televised council meetings giving all citizens an opportunity to see their local government in action.

- Initiated an ongoing interaction between the students of Frank Maddock High School and Town Council.

FUTURE OBJECTIVES

- Maintain an "Open Door" policy to provide citizens the opportunity to discuss their concerns.

- Continue to build upon the excellent association and cooperation already established with representatives of Brazeau M.D. #77 and the provincial government.

- Support for the creation of a council administered F.C.S.S. program.

- Keep the citizens of Drayton Valley well informed of town affairs through the continued publication of "Around Town".

- Establishment of a "Mayor's Advisory Committee" to elicit greater public input.

- Support the efforts of all Community "Volunteers".

RCMP get Halladay

Const. Brian Halladay is brand new to the Drayton Valley detachment. He was previously stationed in Ponoka for seven and a half years. He is married with three children, ages 9, 7, and 5. Halladay says Drayton Valley is a very nice community and the people are very friendly.

Where to vote and when?

Two logical questions come to mind when discussing the civic election Oct. 16.

Who is eligible to vote and where will one do it?

Robin Wenbourne, returning officer, says the voting will be held in the Elks Hall between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m.

To vote, she says, one must live within town limits, be 18 years of age or older, be a Canadian citizen, must have resided in Alberta for six consecutive months and must be a resident of the voting subdivision on election day.

There will be no enumeration for the civic election, she says. It will all be done by declaration.

Wenbourne says the separate school and rural separate school elections and the separate selection will be held at the same time and place.

Problem areas addressed in MD recreation plan

The MD has recognized a number of problem areas in their five-year recreation and culture master plan.

In Lodgepole, the draft copy says the curling rink needs upgrading, the school is adequate for its current use and painting outside the building would help the appearance, the skating rink needs lights and the boards need to be repaired. The report says the park needs upgrading and new equipment.

Under general comments the draft copy suggests equipment is needed for the facilities and they are in dire need of upgrading and modernizing.

In Breton, the report says their biggest problem is the facilities do not meet the needs of the community.

Facilities that need to be considered include a swimming pool, bowling alley, golf course upgrading and museum improvements.

Generally, the report says centralization to Breton should occur to maximize volunteer efforts and finances.

One suggestion the report had for Drayton Valley was the need for another indoor arena.

Overall, it said the facilities in the Drayton Valley area were adequate.

It was recommended parks be upgraded and supply better policing in regards to vandalism.

A trail system along the Pembina - and North Saskatchewan rivers was mentioned.

Another section of the draft included programming.

It identified a definite need for more children and teen programs in Drayton Valley.

It's apparently the same story in Lodgepole, where there's a gap of things to do for children between 10 to 18 years of age.

Firm foundation

Volunteer-laborers turned out despite the rainy weather to help with work on the new Jehovah Witness Church to be erected on October 7 and 8.

Powerhouse packing potent adult program

The Powerhouse Further Education Council will hold their first ever adult education night tomorrow (Wednesday).

Registrations for more than 50 courses will be accepted during the evening, which gets underway at 7 p.m. in the Frank Maddock High School.

The Taoist Tai Chi Society of Edmonton will put on a demonstration at 7:30 p.m. and a fashion show is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Powerhouse coordinator Val Tucker hopes the public will take advantage of this opportunity and stay for the entire two and a half hour program. A number of door prizes will be drawn...and the winner must be present at the time of the draw.

All the items in the fashion show have been made by people who took Powerhouse courses in the past.

"It will be a good chance for people to come and see what program we offer and at the same time...find out something about some of the other agencies in town," Tucker says.

Some of the things to watch for include new quilting and craft courses and the upholstery course is back by popular demand.

There's even a course for people who want to make

Halloween masks, but don't

Kelly Frederickson, former mental health therapist in Drayton Valley, will be returning to instruct three personal living skills courses.

The Alberta Motor Association is offering a Drivers 55+ course.

With Christmas just around the corner people may be interested in the course being offered on festive hors d'oeuvres and non-alcoholic drinks.

Tucker feels a lot of people will be interested in the Taoist Tai Chi demonstration. It is a Chinese health exercise that perfectly suits the hectic lifestyles of today.

Hotline number incorrect

There's a mix up in the number given out for Dial-A-Poacher.

Apparently the 1-800 number that is included on all wildlife certificates is incorrect.

If you have something to report, call the 1-800-642-3800 number.

After the provincial fish and wildlife department circulated the number, they apparently found out it also matched another 1-800 number in Michigan.

Registration night at the Rec Plex in Frank Maddock high school proved to be a busy one. children and adults alike lined up to fill out registration forms for various programs available this year.

First summer school a success

The Twin Rivers school division's first attempt at a summer school has been called a success.

Gary Unterschultz, the division's new deputy superintendent, told the board last Wednesday that 28 students participated in three classes during a 10-day span early in July.

"I was pleased with the attitude," Unterschultz told the board.

One thing he plans to look into, is the possibility of holding next year's summer school during the month of August. Trustees had mixed reactions to that.

Unterschultz is also looking at expanding the program in Breton and Lindale.

Besides his new job at Frank Maddock, Stonehocker plans to work toward his master's degree in education administration. He was born and raised in Cherry Grove and took his American Bashkir Curlies are not a freak of nature

The American Bashkir Curly

By Susan Mosicki
They're not a freak of nature and they're not sick, they're a rare breed of horse that owner John Banta "just can't say enough about."

Banta and his wife Leona, who live in the Drayton Valley area, read about the American Bashkir Curlies and decided they just had to have some.

Like their name suggests, the Curlies have curly or wavy coats. In winter, their manes split down either side of the neck with long ringlets on each side. In summer, unlike other breeds, they shed their manes and sometimes tail.

The Curlies have a noticeably small head for the size of the horse at maturity.

They also have small round nostrils which, along with the curly coat, allows them to withstand extremely cold temperatures.

Because of the small nostrils, however, the horses pant when working and may seem tired or sick when they actually are reputed to be able to surpass many other horses in endurance tests.

Curlies' eyes have an oriental slant which allows them to see behind them as well as in front.

The American Bashkir Curly Registry in Nevada also proclaims that Curly coats are non-allergenic which would enable people that have allergies to horses to be able to own them as well.

Banta says horse breeders don't warm up to the Curlies right away, but once they see the endurance, intelligence and gentle disposition, they're hooked.

"I never heard of them before and I thought I knew every breed of horse," Banta says. "I said before I die, I'm going to have some of those horses."

Two years ago, Banta and his wife bought a stallion and a mare to start out their herd.

"If my wife and I could get 15 to 20 mares we'd be quite content," he says.

They now have six mares in foal, three colts, and have had 32 mares (for stud fees or foals) bred to his stallion.

"We want to start started on them so bad."

Banta says he only knows of four registered breeders in Canada and says there are only about 890 - 1200 Curlies in all of North America.

"Now everybody wants them," says Banta.

One reason that people get excited about the Curlies, according to Banta, is "their disposition, the way they like people."

Walking into an open pasture at the Banta's, a visitor will find several colts, mares, and even the stallion nudging for attention and looking for a little pat.

Banta is somewhat worried that their disposition is keeping the breed from expanding.

"People get a hold of one and it's just like having a pet dog," says Banta. "They won't part with them and they don't breed them. They take them out of production."

"That's not right when there are so few of them. It's a real shame."

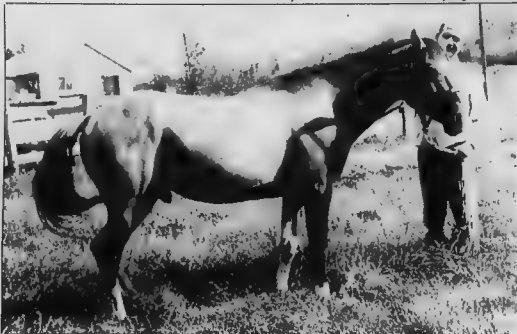

It may only be one small step for mom, but it's a giant leap for this little guy.

John Banta pets one of the curlies sleeping in the sun like a little puppy dog.

Slim pickin's

These two children won't be able to take advantage of their harvest for too much longer. The warmer temperatures will soon give way to cooler weather that will eventually cause leaves, flowers, etc. to turn yellow and brown enabling them to rest for the winter season.

Reclassification of Lot 10F; Block 37; Plan 3332 N.Y.
From: DC-1 Direct Control
To: P-1 Recreational - General Recreation as outlined in the following diagram:

A copy of Bylaw No. 89-26 may be examined in the Administration Department of the Civic Centre, during reasonable business hours. A Public Hearing will be held in the Council Chambers in the Civic Centre in Drayton Valley, 5120 - 52 Avenue at 7:30 p.m. on the 20th day of September, A.D., 1989 for the purpose of hearing any objections, recommendations and/or complaints pertaining to the proposed amendment.

Russian wheat aphid reappearing at border

Russian wheat aphids that first appeared at the Alberta-Montana border last year reappeared there in mid-August says an Alberta Agriculture entomologist.

"Low numbers have been found in barley crops near the border. There's no danger to spring cereals as most have already matured beyond the soft dough stage," says Jim Jones. Currently Russian wheat aphids can be found in most fields of late-planted grain in the County of Warner.

Federal and provincial scientists will continue to monitor Russian wheat aphid populations in cereal and grasses. "The threat now is to winter wheat crops. The nature of the threat depends on the number and distribution of aphids," says Jones.

Russian wheat aphid populations are building and dispersing, Jones says. "Farmers south of Hwy. 3 who are planning to plant winter wheat should be cautious. They should wait to plant at least until the spring cereals have been harvested. Aphids flying out of maturing cereal crops will heavily infest a stand of seedling winter wheat. Russian wheat aphids can kill a cereal crop outright or reduce the crop's winter hardiness and yield."

Jones says spraying the insects isn't necessary unless aphid numbers make it economical. If 15 per cent of winter wheat or fall rye plants are infested or show aphid damage, the crops should be treated.

More needs to be known about the insect that damages wheat, barley and triticale host plants, says Jones. "Russian wheat aphid populations virtually died out by the end of March in southern Alberta, but not before showing some incredible cold weather hardiness."

Russian wheat aphids are indigenous to the Mediterranean and the southern USSR and were accidentally introduced to North America in central Mexico in 1980. The pest was first found in Alberta in the Milk River area in July, 1988.

Other types of aphids have caused problems in southern Alberta this crop year. "Farmers in the County of Warner have been spraying corn leaf aphids on cereal crops," says Jones.

Dry conditions have played a role in the infestations, he adds. "Moisture stressed crops are more susceptible to aphid damage and aphid populations increase as they feed on those crops."

Jones also says recent research has indicated the economic threshold chemical control of cereal aphids may be lower than previously thought. "In researching the economics of spraying you have to compare yields in treated and untreated crops at different levels of insect infestation and under different growing conditions. It's difficult to decide when to spray for aphids because the damage they cause is usually not apparent," he says.

School's back in...

...and children are out in full force. School buildings that have been empty over the summer months have now abundantly bloomed with apples...that is, apples of their parent's eyes.

Day home programs altered

Some 2500 approved family day home providers will now be eligible to care for a maximum of six children under seven years of age. Under terms of a change to a regulation announced by the Honourable John Oldring, Minister of Family and Social Services.

The amendment to day care regulations under the Social Care Facilities Licensing Act allows for approved family day homes, which operate under an agreement with a contracted agency, to care for a maximum of six children under seven years of age. Not more than three of the children can be under three years of age, and of these children, not more than two can be under two years of age. This includes the provider's own children.

Previously, agency-approved providers, with children of their own, could care for maximum of three children plus two of their own, to a total of five children. Those without children of their own could only care for three children.

The Approved Family Day Home Program was introduced in 1981. Currently the Department of Family and Social Services contracts with 88 agencies serving 5600 children province-wide.

Fill winter void by volunteering at the library

Fall is here and it's back to school and back into the routine of life when we think about the coming winter and commit time to fill those months by signing up for courses or by joining groups. Why not try a new challenge this season?

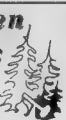

Your library is looking for volunteers to help with programs for preschoolers, youth and adult groups. In past years, your library has offered a preschool storytime and hopes to continue this popular program this year.

As part of a Needs Assessment, your library board set new goals and objectives for additional programming at all age levels—from preschool to seniors. To bring these goals to reality your library needs volunteers from the community who are willing to spend a few hours each month planning and presenting events at the library.

Perhaps you would like to help with the Outreach library delivery service to the shut-in. If you prefer not to be a regular volunteer but have a skill or talent and would be willing to take part in or speak/entertain at one event, we would like to hear from you, too. Do you have any ideas for programs? Tell us!

Anyone willing to be a library volunteer is asked to call the library at 542-2228. Doreen Ellery, Assistant Librarian, is the coordinator of volunteer services.

Has your mailing or street address changed recently? Please tell us! Your library is updating membership records to be added to the computer data base. Next visit to the library please take an extra minute to check your membership card and make the necessary corrections. Later in the year, all patrons will receive individual library cards for use with the new automated system. Thanks for your cooperation.

Replica of Leduc No. 1 oil discovery well on the way

By Paul Fligel
Leduc Representative
They've got the drill. Now all they need is land to put it

The Leduc-Devon Oilfield Historical Society is well on its way to establishing a replica drilling rig and interpretive park to commemorate the most significant oil discovery in Canada's history. Leduc No. 1 well.

Society chairman Diane Dills says an antique drilling rig, recently shipped from Louisiana, will remain in a Devon yard until land can be purchased near the existing monument built by the province.

"We're trying to buy land near the original site but we may have to look closer to town (Devon)," she says, explaining there's not enough room to build on the current 1.4 hectre site containing one active and one commemorative pump jack.

The society recently received $25,000 from the province in the form of a Community Facility Enhancement Program grant. Dills says the funds will go toward the purchase of four hectares of land required for the drilling interpretive centre and replica rig.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

He may be crazy, but Bob Wilcox is proud of it. "Everybody says you have to be crazy to get up in the early hours of the morning to go into a burning building," he says. "But you feel kind of happy and proud to have the training and qualifications to help people in need."

He has been with the local fire department for six and a half years and is the current president of the Drayton Valley Firefighters Association.

"My wife has wanted to move out of town at times," he says. But moving out of town would have to quit firefighting because response time would be too long. "I've passed up a couple of good deals on houses," he chuckles.

That doesn't seem to matter, though. He loves what he's doing.

Parkland increases won't be examined

Alberta Education Minister Jim Dinning appears unlikely to set up an independent inquiry to look into the increases in this year's public school tax levy by the County of Parkland board of education.

Instead, Dinning has referred residents who are upset about the increased taxes to their local school trustee for further discussions.

In a letter sent to Spruce Grove, Stony Plain and County of Parkland politicians, as well as area residents who have been calling for an independent inquiry, Dinning states that, "As you know, your school board has the authority to raise revenues through property taxes and to decide how to spend those funds, along with the funds provided by the provincial government."

"Your school board has prepared a budget for the coming year and has asked local taxpayers to provide the amount that the board feels it needs, in view of expanding programs and current enrolments.

"If you disagree with their decision, you have the right (and the obligation) to discuss your concerns with your local trustee."

Dinning repeats the explanation he's given previously, in response to questions about how his department arrived at the figure of $3.75 million as an adequate transitional grant for the county education system (to make up for the loss of revenues resulting from the formation of the Municipal District of Brazeau and the Twin Rivers School Division in Drayton Valley).

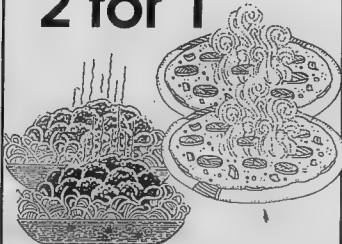

"We calculated the difference in number of resident pupils and in the adjusted equalized assessment between 1988 and 1989, and thereby determined that the loss of revenue would be approximately $36,476,958.

Christian life is full of meaning and purpose

By
Pastor Rev. Donald Snell
D.V. Church of God

Elizabeth Kubler-Ross says "Life is richest when we realize that we are all snowflakes. Each of us is absolutely beautiful and unique, and we are here for such a short time". The Psalmist writes, in Psalm 103:14-16, "For He knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust. As for man, his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more". Psalm 39:4 says, "Lord, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days; what it is, THAT I MAY KNOW HOW FRAIL I AM". Beautiful snowflakes - they too slip away and they are tossed to and fro by the wind. Life may be brief for man but life is precious and the Christian life is one with meaning and purpose. We need to know who we are? We are not monkeys, refined - we are created creatures of God. From dust we are formed, the only thing God created and breathed into him the breath of life and man became a living soul.

Yes, each one of us is beautiful and unique in our own way. No two fingerprints are the same - but we are all humans. We need food, rest, love and fellowship. We need to believe in something and someone. Don't you think since God created us and someday we will return to stand before Him to give an account, that we should serve and worship Him. For God so loved the world that He gave His only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life, John 3:16.

A young boy was reciting this verse for a Christmas program and he was so excited, he said, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only Forgotten Son" - Don't forget, or get confused. God still loves you - He is patient and long-suffering, not willing that any should perish but that all men should come to repentance. However, we must remember time is running out. We are frail and if you don't believe it now, in a few years you will find it is true. Read the Word of God - Heaven and earth shall pass away but the Word of God shall not pass away.

But seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. These are the words of Jesus as recorded in Matthew 6:33 and verse 34 tell us, "Take therefore, no thought for the morrow, for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Our time is in His hands! Let us be ready to be used of God daily in whatever situation we find ourselves, rendering loving, caring service to our fellowman for Jesus' sake.

Remember: Love heals - Fear destroys.

They shall love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment, and the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

Matthew 22:37-39 states that. We are all precious in His sight.

Local man fined for animal neglect

William Urchysyn of Drayton Valley was found guilty Aug. 24, in Drayton Valley Provincial Court of cruelty to animals.

During a follow-up investigation at a Drayton Valley farm, Constable M. Airey of the Alberta SPCA found a cow suffering from an advanced cancer eye growth. A large 6 to 8 inch growth covered the left side of the cow's head. On the advice of a veterinarian the cow was humanely destroyed.

Charges of willful neglect to provide suitable care for a cow, contrary to Section 446(1)(c) of the Criminal Code of Canada were laid. Judge MacInnery, unable to accept the accused's testimony that the cow was not in distress, fined William Urchysyn $250.

Permanent cover program introduced

An ambitious $8.2 million program will help Alberta farmers convert their marginal and highly erodible farmland to permanent cover to stem growing losses from soil erosion and salinity.

The Alberta Permanent Cover Program, a three-year program administered by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration (PFRA), is part of the $34.8 million Canada/Alberta Soil Conservation Initiative signed by the two governments in July.

The permanent cover program offers the province's farmers an alternative use for approximately 900,000 acres of eligible land. By converting the land to perennial grass or legumes or by planting trees, the land can be used for grazing, hay, seed production or wildlife habitat.

"This gives farmers a chance to get some return from the land without causing long-term soil damage," says Gerry Luciak, manager of the PFRA's program planning division.

"Farmers have already expressed considerable interest," he adds. "Perhaps permanent cover on these poorer lands is finally being perceived as a more dependable alternative than annual cropping in the long term."

Farmers with eligible land can receive a $20 per acre payment in option one of the program. This will help cover the costs of seeding forage. Luciak points out this amount may only cover part of a farmer's cost. "It may cost him $40 per acre," he says.

In option two, farmers must submit a bid representing the price that they would need as a one time payment to keep their marginal land in permanent cover for either 10 or 21 years. This one time payment is over and above the $20 per acre payment of option one. Bids for 10 or 21 years contracts will be assessed after the Dec. 1, 1989 application deadline. Acceptable bid levels will be established for each region of the province based on available funds, says Luciak.

A third program option allows conservation organizations to acquire eligible marginal land and convert it to an alternative use such as wildlife habitat or recreation.

Application forms are available from PFRA offices, Alberta Agriculture district offices and Agriculture Service Boards. "Despite the program's obvious positive impact and its multi-million dollar price tag, there is still more eligible land out there than money," says Luciak. The program will run for three years subject to availability of funds.

"We'll be reviewing applications as they're received," he says. "But producers who wish to enter into 10 or 21 year contracts must submit bid applications by Dec. 1, 1989."

Alternate to tap is mineral

Using distilled water for steam ironing is the only way to avoid mineral deposits or scaling. These deposits can block the steam vents, damage the soleplate and stain fabric.

Still, some manufacturers advise you to save your money unless the tap water in your area is particularly hard. You must use your own judgement, based on how much you use to wash dishes and laundry and on the scaling that may appear in kettles and coffee makers to determine this.

If you do have a scaling problem...what do you do?

No alternative is ideal. Chemically softened water isn't good to use, since minerals used in the process are also scaling culprits. Distilled water is better; though you will lose some steam power because the minerals in tap water produce more steam than the distilled liquid. One solution to this dilemma is to use tap water part of the time.

To help your iron live a long, useful life, a preventative program against scale build-up should be followed. Regular steam action and "burst of steam" cleaning help somewhat. Irons should be stored upright and empty of water. This will help prevent build-up of scale and ensures fresh, clean water each time you iron. It is also less likely to mark fabric.

CAC testing labs looked at 14 irons recently ranging from $19 to $125. If you would like to know the results, just call the Product Information Office at CAC Alberta at 420-0747. Your collect calls are welcome.

Raises for Ponoka council

The provincial politicians are not the only ones giving themselves a raise.

Town councillors in Ponoka recently voted themselves a 13 per cent pay raise.

The raise will see councillors get $390 and the mayor $790 per month. This is an increase of $54 for the councillors.

In Drayton Valley, the councillors receive $175 per month and the mayor $700.

Both Drayton Valley and Ponoka are about the same population.

Writing course for undiscovered talents

Have you always fancied yourself an undiscovered Erma Bombeck, or Morely Callaghan, or maybe Pierre Burton? Have you always wanted to test your writing talent but just never got started?

Then taking a correspondence course from Canada's first private writing school may interest you. Founded in 1981 by Ruth Irene Buchanan, who as editor helped make Lethbridge Magazine the Best Western Magazine of the Year in 1985 and runner-up four other times, AMS offers courses in short story, humor, and non-fiction writing.

Buchanan started the school because "there was a need for economical freelance writing instruction in Canada that was tailored to the individual needs and problems of beginning writers."

Buchanan is herself the author of a history book, dozens of humor columns, several short stories, and many feature articles in a wide variety of newspapers and magazines. She has taught creative writing and Says Buchanan, "Of the many graduates of AMS courses, most have sold at least one article or story before finishing the course." She attributes this success to the careful and constructive critiques given AMS students and to students' perseverance in applying the AMS instruction.

Calmar welcomes grant

The Government of Alberta will provide a $106,837 grant to assist the Town of Calmar with street improvements, Minister of Transportation and Utilities Al "Boomer" Adair and Drayton Valley MLA Tom Thurber have announced.

This grant will cover 73 per cent of the cost of paving 47th Avenue from 50th Street to 51st Street. Work involves base pavement construction and final paving as well as improvements to the curbs, gutters and sidewalks.

"News of this grant is welcomed both by myself and residents of Calmar. Work on this street will enhance safety for motorists and pedestrians," Thurber said.

New look

With the aid of a front loader, this 800 pound tree was planted in a new flower bed in front of the Park Valley swimming pool last week. It is part of the annual maintenance carried out at the pool.

Mayor wants some answers

Layoffs in the oil patch are causing some sleepless nights for Mayor Bob Mayhew. In an attempt to get some answers, he's planning on travelling to Calgary shortly to talk with some of the oil company executives.

"I want to see if I can get some forecast of their future plans in Drayton Valley," the mayor admits.

While Mayhew is pleased with the latest increase in the population, he doesn't want to see it drop due to layoffs in the oil patch.

Support growing for store bakery

Town council has added its support for an in-store manufacturing bakery in the new IGA store.

The chamber and MLA Tom Thurber have also endorsed the idea.

Funding will come through the Canada/Alberta Subsidiary Agreement on Agricultural Processing and Marketing. It's available to any rural business which wishes to place a food manufacturing outlet in a supermarket.

A decision on that funding is expected at the end of this month.

The program will help the IGA owners cover the extra costs of the specialized equipment necessary.

In a letter to council, IGA says if the manufacturing bakery has to be cancelled, it would mean the loss of two baker's jobs and one assistant.

CANADA - ALBERTA SOIL CONSERVATION INITIATIVE

Permanent Cover Program

We are pleased to announce the Alberta Permanent Cover Program, which will help stop deterioration of erodible marginal lands under cultivation

The Permanent Cover Program is an important component of the $34.8 million Canada-Alberta Soil Conservation Initiative.

By taking those lands out of production and placing them under permanent cover, producers can reduce erosion and protect land for the future, a goal to which both the Canadian and Alberta Governments are committed.

This program offers financial assistance for planting perennial forages for hay or pasture, or trees for recreation and wildlife

You can now get application forms and more information about this important program from Municipal Offices, Alberta Agriculture District Offices and PFRA District Offices.

Producers wishing to enter into long-term contracts must apply prior to December 1, 1989. Those who wish to seed forage this fall are urged to apply immediately.

Employment booster

The town is looking at getting involved with the Community Futures program.

Two meetings have been held involving interested communities.

Sharon Rudyk, who's on staff with the town, was their representative.

The Community Futures program is to stimulate economic development in rural areas as well as to aid in the unemployment situation.

An initial grant of $50,000 (maximum) will be given to set up a committee if a region has qualified and entered into a contribution agreement with the federal government.

The committee will be expected to propose a five year program and carry it the last three years with municipal and business contributions along with the Community Futures grant.

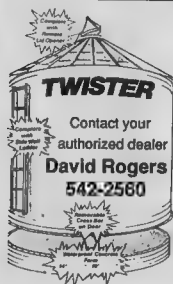

Fossil discovery

A rare fossil discovery occurred last month in Dinosaur Provincial Park when Michael Ryan, 31, dug up the first conclusive evidence that extinct flying reptiles existed in Alberta, a 28 cm long neck vertebra from Quetzalcoatlus.

"This is an exciting discovery because it confirms the presence of these animals in this area 70 million years ago," said Dr. Wann Langston Jr., a visiting palaeontologist from the University of Texas at Austin. Langston was the first to identify the almost perfectly preserved, cylindrically shaped fossil at the Tyrrell Museum of Palaeontology in Drumheller.

The fossil is the seventh cervical vertebra, and according to Langston, is one of several long and slender neck bones. Size estimates made by Langston indicate this animal had a probable wing span of at least seven metres.

Municipalities represented at a recent meeting that could be included in a region were the town, MD, Devon, Breton, Thoraby and Warburg. Calmar is also interested.

Two of the qualifying factors for the program is that there is loss of population and unemployment rate throughout the region.

"It's definitely worth looking into," town manager Manny Deol told last month's council meeting.

Due to recent layoffs in the oil patch councillor Dave Lundberg urged council to take a look at the program.

Child care programs one step closer

By Christine Vanzella
Spruce Grove Examiner

A new policy approved by the County of Parkland board of education has brought the introduction of child care programs in local schools one step closer to reality.

The policy reads that the board is prepared to participate in the development of housing child care programs in county-run schools, so long as the programs are compatible with the board's interests and mandate.

Speaking in favor of the policy, Stony Plain trustee Margaret McNary said many of Parkland's larger schools will one day be able to house such programs.

School superintendent Marv Tkachuk said the policy only shows the board is prepared to participate, not initiate such programs.

Individual cases would still have to come before the board for evaluation and consideration, he pointed out.

People won't give up Terry's dream

By Susan Moscicki

Despite objection from his parents, Jared Fraser, a seven-year-old bundle of courage, got his own way and was allowed to ride his bike one block in this year's Terry Fox Run Sept. 17.

Jared was diagnosed at age three and a half as having histiocytosis, a rare cancer-related disease that eats bone tissue.

According to event organizer Pam Schaub, Jared has been out of remission for about two weeks. "That means he is taking chemotherapy every week and steroids every day."

"He's one sick little boy," she said. "The chemotherapy will continue until they (doctors) feel they can get a hold of his cancer."

Schaub said if Jared had cycled the whole run like he had wanted to, he would have been so run-down he would have had to have been hospitalized.

Jared's battle with cancer touches the hearts of people in Drayton Valley just as Terry Fox touched the hearts of Canadians in 1980.

Sixty people registered in the Run including many from the Beehive who ran for the first time this year.

The youngest entrant was 15-month-old Erica McDonald and the oldest was Wes Herbert, 60.

The first man to come in was Chad Anker, and Terry Bliss was the first woman.

Devin Henry was the first boy biker, and Tina Sprague and Mandy Stav were the first girl bikers to finish.

Schaub said the Terry Fox Run has raised $3,583.25 so far this year, and raised $3,609.20 in total last year.

"We can safely say we made more money this year," she said.

Terry's dream — to help find a cure for cancer — may soon be realized because of people like Jared and the many people across the nation who refuse to give up that dream.

Over 60 runners and cyclists, up from 43 last year, participated in the 10 km annual Terry Fox Run last Sunday. Terry's Marathon of Hope ended after 5,565 kms when Terry developed lung cancer.
Right - Jared Fraser proudly bikes for the dream of finding a cure for cancer.

Search efforts continuing

By Susan Moscicki

Extensive search efforts by ground and air have failed to reveal the whereabouts of a 74-year-old woman missing from the Breton General Hospital since last Thursday.

Laura Finch was last seen wearing a red blouse, beige skirt, flat shoes, and possibly a white sweater or hospital gown.

She is approximately 5'2", 115 pounds and has gray hair. Breton RCMP said Finch, who left the hospital before noon, may be very confused about where she is going or, in fact, where she is.

RCMP also confirmed Finch has a habit of hiding to be undetected.

Police and civilians are continuing the search in an effort to locate Finch.

"They've used helicopters, they've used dogs, they've used everything," said Breton high school principal Jim Musson.

One of the RCMP from Thorsby came to my office (Thursday) and wanted to know if he could borrow 15 of my Grade 12 students," Musson said. "Very quickly thereafter they needed more. Just about all of them (Grade 9-12) went out to search."

"A lot of them saw this lady earlier," he said. "They thought it strange that she should be bending down picking up cigarette packages, but not strange enough to report. They just thought she was going for a little stroll."

Musson said he was proud of the students. "These kids took this very seriously. An enormous number of kids became very, very concerned over a person they didn't even know. This is the kind of thing that we want to develop in people."

RCMP Const. Steve Shamber said the police are urging anyone who has seen Finch or has been in contact with her to contact the Breton RCMP immediately.

Decore visiting riding

Provincial Liberal leader Laurence Decore will be making a visit to Drayton Valley Sept. 29.

Decore will be appearing at an open breakfast in Em-T Town at 8 a.m.

He will then be touring the town office with Mayor Bob Mayhew before attending a luncheon at the Elks Hall at 11:45 a.m.

Decore is visiting this riding in an effort to get out to more 'class 2' ridings which are ridings where Liberal candidates had strong showings. Garth Werschler captured the largest number of votes ever by a Liberal candidate in the Drayton Valley/Devon constituency with a 2,826 total finishing a strong second to MLA Tom Thurber.

Political forum to be held

Candidates for the Oct. 16 municipal election will take the opportunity to inform the public of their political platforms in a forum Thursday, Oct. 5, coordinated by the chamber of commerce.

Director Natalie Gibson said the mayoralty candidates will definitely be involved, as well as seven or more councillors, if they are not acclaimed.

"A forum is something that we carry out with utmost care," Gibson said. "It will be moderated by a neutral toastmaster."

The forum will be held at 7 p.m. in the Legion Hall.

Final car key winner crossing fingertips

Linda Bennett, Gerald Mussell and daughter Chantelle, Gerald Kotowich.

Gerald Mussell is hoping history repeats itself.

The holder of the final key in the chamber's shopping promotion last year was the eventual winner of a new car. This time Mussell is the holder of that final token key.

The Amoco employee who works at the Brazee Gas Plant will be keeping his fingers crossed at Wednesday's final draw.

He's getting a lot of encouragement from his wife Denise and next door neighbors Linda and Dale Olanekski.

Linda Olanekski was the holder of a token key during last year's 20-week promotion.

"She's real excited," Mussell says of his wife Denise.

Due to his job, Mussell didn't have a lot of time to think about it.

But, when he received the official 10th and final token key from chamber representative Linda Bennett and Home Hardware's Gerald Kotowich last Friday morning, the excitement started to build.

Richter doesn't waste money

If Ben Richter has his way and he is chosen as a councillor for the County of Perikland (Division 7), he said there are going to be a few things changed.

"I don't waste my money. Why is the council wasting our money?" he said.

"People talk in their houses and nothing gets done. I'm tired of that."

"We have to set our priorities and stick to them."

Richter, a farmer from Tower Acres, said he will run because he wants to "get the people's money spent in the right places."

Division 7 is made up of several areas including Tomahawk, Moon Lake, Magnolia, and Fallis. Nominations will be held Sept. 18, and the election will be Oct. 16.

More of the same!

Cloudy and wet weather is expected to continue most of this week.

Conditions will be mainly cloudy Tuesday through Thursday, but Edmonton Weather Office predicts skies will be mostly sunny Friday.

Tuesday's high will be 17 C and low will be +5.

A high of 15 and low of 4 is expected both Wednesday and Thursday.

Friday will be warmer during the day with a high of 17, but overnight temperatures will drop to +1.

FMHS roofing project expected to be costly

A major roofing project is on the drafting board for Frank Maddock high school.

The Twin Rivers school board heard last Wednesday that the project is expected to be quite expensive.

The area that is in dire need of repair is under the greenhouse. That means the greenhouse has to be dismantled, the roof repaired and the greenhouse put together again.

According to superintendent Dr. Al Anderson, the greenhouse was put in without proper drainage.

In regards to a suggestion that the greenhouse might be better suited at ground level, Anderson expressed his concern about possible vandalism.

Jim Reid, the board's vice-chairman also expressed his concerns over problems with the west wall in the gym. Administration will look at the problem.

Deputy superintendent Gary Unterschultz, who was the vice-principal at Frank Maddock last year, told the board that the greenhouse was well used.

"One boy raised doubled-fist-size canteloupe last year. It's quite a good project," Unterschultz said.

Some improvements are also planned for H.W. Pickup junior high. Five electrical outlets will be added in the parking lot near the industrial arts building, to accommodate staff who wish to plug in their vehicles.

Red faces

Town employees had rather pink cheeks recently when their loader had to be pulled out of the ditch by a grader.

Enrolment higher

Enrolment is up at four of five Drayton Valley schools.

For the first time in 10 years, enrolment at Frank Maddock has surpassed the 500 mark.

Principal Al Day reported 510 students in classes as of last Wednesday. The school had anticipated about 485 students.

"They've come from everywhere."

"It's quite a strain on the system," Day remarked.

Their population explosion included a lot of Grade 10's and six exchange students. The high school also has five new teachers.

Colin Cavanagh, principal at H.W. Pickup junior high said their first day was very hectic.

Besides 10 new teachers, 440 students attended classes on the first day. This is expected to reach 450. The junior high had expected 420 to register.

"It's more than I expected," Cavanagh said.

The additional students have resulted in a classroom being set up in the band building, which had been occupied by the gymnastic club.

Things were just about what principal Chris Kelly had expected at Evergreen.

They registered 420, about 10 more than anticipated.

There's no empty classroom space at Eldorado with 474 Grade 1 to 2 students and another 174 in kindergarten.

The 474 is about 24 more than expected.

Things went very smoothly at St. Anthony's according to principal Ron Williams.

Their enrolment is down slightly from 419 to 381. If their kindergarten was figured in the total it would be 437.

MLAs rewarding themselves for spending, says reader

Dear Editor,

After a few days to consider the provincial government's gift to themselves of a 29 per cent raise in salary, I think the following should be considered.

Many people say, and rightly so, that we must pay good wages to attract good people to public service. This should include sound money management, protection of those least able to protect themselves, giving help to those most needy, and seeing that our services are not abused.

These people are rewarding themselves for spending about $10 billion more than they collected, for setting an example for thousands of wage earners in provincial service to refer to at contract time, to have the highest welfare rates while thousands of jobs go begging in most areas of the province, and maintaining the highest ratio of civil service employees to population of any province.

They lend too much money to farmers for equity provided, then bail them out when the highest expectations of production or price fail to materialize, and rescue investors who make bad decisions.

I have voted right wing for 38 years and every succeeding election we get more taxes and more socialism; more benefits and wages for civil service and government members and less for the general population. They are giving grants, loans and loan guarantees to businessmen who could, and should, afford to go it alone or borrow on the market like the rest of us.

We, as taxpayers, should not have to accept lower wages or increases than anyone in the government civil service or anyone else who can collectively put demands on the public purse.

Why should we have to provide indexed pensions when we can't get them ourselves?

'You can find mismanaged business anywhere'

Dear Editor,

As a local business merchant, I am tired of hearing people complain about our businesses — then threaten to "go to Edmonton" to get what they want.

It doesn't matter whether you shop locally or elsewhere — you can find mismanaged businesses either places.

The BIG difference is that small town business owners care more about the before and after of their customer's purchases.

I am sure that I don't speak only for myself. When I say that "our customers come first," it has to be that way. We don't only have to

It seems to me the PCs are further left now than the CCF used to be and they respond to far too many demands for money. The government uses the public service as a guide for their own pay scale and the public service bases their demands on the government's last increase. Meanwhile, the private sector in Alberta, both business and employees, has had to reduce wage and service rates and most are working for less than they were in 1980.

The government can earn their raise by eliminating the deficit, paying off the debt, and legislating a pay scale for themselves and their employees that doesn't exceed the private sector. If they can't do that I am looking for a new party.

Rex Gray

worry about our customers going to another local competitor, but the always constant threat of them going to a bigger centre.

If you are worried about your purchases, check around locally before you buy. Not only for the best price (which does matter a great deal), but also for the best service (which I think is more important).

Talk to your local merchants and get to know them better. If there is a problem, go to the management. Usually they will go out of their way to make things right for you.

'Abortion fashionable sham'

Dear Editor:

It seems that our legislators feel that the gestational approach to abortion is a compromise between the two sides of the abortion issue. This would mean that abortions would be available without question up to the 12th week (3 months) and possible up to the 24th week (6 months) when some restrictions would be in place. At present, over 90 per cent of abortions occur during this time frame. The 24th week is chosen as a cut-off time, supposedly because the unborn is now viable, that is, could live outside the womb.

This is ludicrous: the one that can live, 'gets to stay', the one that cannot, 'may have to go'. In truth, it is the extreme danger to the mother in late term abortions that guides the thinking, not concern for the baby, who, in any case, dies violently.

The horror and outrage expressed after the finding of a 7 lb. baby in a dumpster in Edmonton make no sense against the indifference shown for the 2000 others that are put daily into dumpsters across Canada. The age of the infant cannot be the criterion. We either cherish human life or we don't. There is no compromise possible — abortion is a fashionable sham of human rights.

In search of...the modern smoker

By Paul Cudla

Smoking: habit, addiction or way of life?

In search of...the modern smoker.

Who is the modern-day smoker? How does he/she manage to survive in an anti-smoking world centred around battling the evils of nicotine?

Today's smoker is becoming the ultimate rebel. A person who continues to shun and buck a society which uses sweeping measures in an effort to wipe out this rare bird.

Let's take a look at some of the techniques zealous anti-smokers are using to annihilate the poor, helpless smoker.

Segregation - smokers are often put through the humiliation of being separated from their fellow man in work areas, restaurants, and various public facilities. Smokers are rumored to have coined the phrase, "will that be smoking or non-smoking."

Campaigns - overly-aggressive anti-smoking lobby groups have taken to the airwaves with TV, radio, and newspaper advertising campaigns which preach the health hazards and risks involved with nicotine and tar-infested sticks of cancer. Smokers have been heard to retort "but isn't this legal."

Ostracization - the highest form of peer pressure. When put into group situations smokers are often made to feel 'left-out' and 'unwanted.' Smokers then are forced to turn to their own form of reverse ostracization by establishing their own fraternal organizations in 'designated smoking areas.'

The modern-day smoker is under a large amount of pressure due to the recent surge in public pressure and opinion.

A smoker is no longer allowed to pursue his/her self-inflicted slow death, but is put through abnormal amounts of whining and griping from non-smokers who feel they have a 'common good' decree to spread throughout society.

Smokers are subjected to a backlash from medical reports and health and welfare findings which serve to only reinforce anti-smoking campaigns. Campaigns designed to curb personal choice and proselytize a divine right of immortality.

So a smoker is left alone. The new non-conformist.

Smoking isn't cool and it isn't glamorous a smoker is told, and your right to smoke infringes upon a non-smoker's right to breathe.

So what's worse: slow death via a personal decision to light up every five to 10 minutes, or facing the wrath of the moral majority, the proud, the proper, the non-smoker?

Personally, I think I'll choose to slip out and join my back room fraternity and spark another stick.

Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that reading this column promotes freedom of choice which may directly conflict with health-conscious oxygen-seeking individuals.

Building permit figures slightly down to date

Building permits for the first eight months of 1989 in Drayton Valley are behind last year's pace for the same period.

Figures released by Al Chesterman, the town's building inspector, shows permits to date total $6,283,600 compared to $6,341,530 after eight months in 1988.

Last month's $403,500 is down from $647,880 in permits taken out in August of '88.

The $403,500 included $163,500 in residential construction, $110,000 for the new Jehovah's Witness Church being built across from the Valley Inn along Highway 22, renovations to the town's public works garage at a cost of $75,000 and $55,000 for the new Super Propane building on the Poplar Ridge Road, north of Pembina Resources building.

Following is the month-by-month comparison of building permits for the past two years:

	1988	1989
January	$95,000	$126,500

August	$403,500	$647,880
Total	$6,283,600	$6,341,530

Residential construction is also behind last year's total. So far this year $2,376,600 has been spent on 44 projects. This compares with $3,116,350 and 44 permits.

Following is a month-by-month look at the residential permits for the past two years:

Survey reveals people are staying here longer

People are staying in Drayton Valley longer. That fact surfaced during a survey done in conjunction with the latest census.

Thirty-seven per cent of the population has resided in town 10 years or more.

Twenty per cent stayed two to five years and 18 per cent resided in Drayton Valley for five to 10 years.

"It speaks well for the community," says councillor Howard Olsen.

Noise survey currently underway

A noise survey is currently underway at Pelican Mills. Bolated Engineering of Edmonton is conducting the survey.

Howard Olsen, chairman of the Pelican steering committee says they are checking the noise problem in and outside the mill.

"They have found some things," he admits.

"So far, the things they have found can be corrected," Olsen added.

Four volume dust samplers have been placed around town as part of an Alberta Environment study. They will be monitored for the next two months.

Early next month, some equipment from California, on loan, will be placed in selected homes to help monitor dust problems.

Olsen, who has lived here for 15 years says it used to be people worked here and made their home somewhere else.

"We had a young population. It was a town that saw a lot of company transfers."

"We've become a stable town," he added.

Olsen feels Pelican Mills has added to the strength of the community. "It has definitely helped and at the same time provided jobs for our young people," he says.

The town councillor feels Drayton Valley has a lot to offer.

"We have better services, we're a progressive community," Drayton Valley

Alberta consortiums. The consortiums in Alberta need and want more money.

That was one of the issues 10 consortium representatives discussed recently with John Gogo, minister of Advanced Education.

Al Day, chairman of the Pembina Education Consortium sat in on the one-hour meeting.

"We told the minister we weren't getting enough has a lot to offer," he said.

With the paving of Secondary Highway 620 asking for more money money and we didn't find out about it early enough," Day stated.

As it stands now, the Pembina Consortium waits until mid-August and sometimes later, to find out from Lodgepole to the Elk River junction, Olsen feels this will aid the tourism industry in the area.

about their provincial funding.

A discussion was also held on the future of the consortium in Peace River. There's a chance it will be closing.

August mill tours attract six interested viewers per day

Logs waiting patiently to be cut.

One of the mill's two dryers. A third is on the way.

By Paul Cudla
Pelican Mills has recently completed a series of tours which saw about six people tour the plant a day.

Percy Champagne, Pelican Mills manager, said about 120 people toured the mill throughout the month of August. Tours were open four days a week.

"I think it went very well. There was a fair bit of interest shown," Champagne said.

The August tours were a first for Pelican and Champagne said the idea was spawned by numerous requests for group tours.

The mill had previously only been open to tours during Forestry Week in May.

"In a sense, the mill is a tourist attraction."

"It's a good way to get a better name in the community.

"Maybe it will show the community that we have a top-notch facility and we are doing a good job," Champagne said.

The tours attracted people from the United States, Germany and Sweden.

"It kind of showed me that tourists are interested. In a sense it (the mill) is a tourist attraction."

Champagne said he is hopeful tours for next year can run throughout July and August.

"I think it was successful enough this year."

Caps fill positions

The Drayton Valley Junior 'B' Oil Capitals are well on the way to reality after a progressive team meeting held Sept. 12.

"Everything is falling into place," Bill Ballas, team president, said.

"We have filled all our positions on the team."

In filling all the team management positions, the Oil Caps replaced coach Randy Rook with Grant MacDonald.

While MacDonald was named as head coach, the Oil Caps appointed Jack Gainers to the position of assistant coach.

The vacant position of team manager was filled by Bill Sissons who will be assisted by Dave Malone. Equipment manager Stewart Fedorus rounds out the Oil Caps' vacant positions.

"We're very happy. Sales of sweaters are progressing. We're not in dire straits like we used to be, but we're certainly not wealthy."

The Oil Caps are currently canvassing door-to-door, and selling program advertisements and sweaters in an effort to raise all the needed funds for the upcoming season.

Training camp for the team was also set at the meeting, for Sept. 22, 23, and 24. The Oil Caps will have two hours of ice time each day at the Drayton Valley arena. Registration for the team will be at 5:30 p.m. on Sept. 22.

Ballas said the team is expecting about 30 local players to try out for the team and about 10 to 20 players from out of town.

Day shoots tourney low score

The Birchwood Village Greens was host to about 60 golfers for the Birchwood Ladies Open Sept. 8.

Sherry Luft of Slave Lake took the tournament overall low net with a score of 66.

Overall low gross winner was Irene Irwin of Edmonton who took the overall low gross with an 18-hole 90. But Irwin had to play two playoff holes to take the title as Jane Woods and Dorothy Laughtan, both from Rocky Mountain House, also shot rounds of 90.

The best nine-hole round of the day went to Kathy Day of Drayton Valley who shot a 42. Day also had the longest drive of the day.

There were five overall flights at the Ladies Open and winners were decided in both net and gross.

Second flight: low gross, Maureen Klassen, Drayton Valley, 101; low net Martha Radford, Rocky Mountain House, 72.

Third flight: low gross, Sherry Luft, Slave Lake, 99; low net, Ann Carl, Drayton Valley, 74.

Fourth flight: low gross, Karen Lenton, Rocky Mountain House, 107; low net, Carolyn Phillips, Drayton Valley, 85.

Fifth flight: low gross, Millie Barkley, Birchwood, 107; Val Jansen, Drayton Valley, 94.

Mezzo's zest for racing renewed after layoff

By Paul Cudla

It was better late than never for Gerald Mezzo who started motorcycle racing at age 20, and has just re-entered the sport at 30, after a seven-year layoff.

Mezzo races in the junior cross-country class in over 200cc.

He began racing at age 20, when he team-raced his way to a 17th place finish.

"That was my initiation," Mezzo says.

In 1978 Mezzo won the Drayton Valley cross-country 175cc race and continued to race up until 1982.

But while out riding for fun in 1982, Mezzo crashed his bike and decided to quit racing.

"The crash just scared me. Between the crash and finances, I decided to lay off of it."

The zest for cross-country racing never wore off though, and Mezzo got back into it this year when he was reinstated in the junior over-200 cc class. He races a Honda CR 250cc.

After a seven-year layoff, Mezzo has found the transition back into racing to be a bit eye-opening.

"She's a bit different now, the riders are a lot faster.

"Unless I've just gotten old and more cautious, they're a fast group."

Overall though, Mezzo has done well in his first year back at cross-country. He finished third overall on the national circuit in his class and sits in fourth in the provincial standings. That makes him eligible to move up to senior class racing next year and he has the opportunity to skip a class and go directly into expert.

He has a fourth at Vernon, second at Moose Mountain and a fifth at Gloomy Creek to show for his efforts on the national circuit.

His most recent race, Sept. 10, at Dome Tar in the Spruce Goose series, turned out to be a victory in the over-200cc junior class. He leads the three-race series with one race left Oct. 8 at Smoky Lake.

"Butterflies at the start" Mezzo says is the only problem he has had to overcome in rejoining the racing circuit.

"I just held back a little at times. I don't want to crash.

"A lot of times hitting that throttle will save you instead of panicking and hitting the brake."

It is the element of danger in motorcycle racing which Mezzo says he enjoys.

"The speed and thrills. You're courting that little bit of danger."

Another element of cross-country Mezzo enjoys is the scenery.

"You get to see more country. The country I've seen, you would not believe."

Mezzo is a licensed mechanic which helps in keeping his bike in top condition.

"Your bike has to be maintained at all times. You rely on your bike 100 per cent."

"It's not unusual to come back from a race and have to work on your bike for three days."

Corvette enthusiast takes car to the track

By Paul Cudla

Dale Block's enthusiasm for his 1971 Corvette Stingray has turned him onto a unique competitive event.

Block races and shows his Corvette as part of the Quad C (Canadian Council of Corvette Club), and has had a tremendously gratifying season thus far.

Specializing in the slalom and concours d'elegance events, Block has won all 10 of the competitions he has entered — seven wins in slalom and three in concours.

"As far as slalom goes I've been a bit more serious about it this year.

"In prior years I would win one and then lose one, or win one and then lose five. I've never had a seven out of seven type year before," Block says.

Block has been active in the Quad C since 1981 and his more serious attempt at racing this year has made it his most prosperous.

"It takes a long time to become very competitive in the events because there are a lot of people competing who have been at it for a long time.

"I've lost more than I've won," Block adds.

In 1979, Block purchased his Corvette for $8,500 and has built it up to its present shape.

"It's been a restoration process over the years."

His navy blue LS6 Stingray was one of only 190 of its type made in 1971.

"The car appreciates substantially every year because of its collectability.

"Because of the rarity of that car I would never be in a hurry to not own it."

The Corvette is now loaded with a 425 hp, 454 c.i. engine. As Block puts it, the car is "a strong contender for FTD's (fastest time of the day)."

Block's Corvette is classed in the Super Stock where modifications are unlimited. There are 10 different classes in Quad C competitions and three separate events: slalom, concours, and rally. He races out of the Calgary Club, Corvettes Unlimited, and competes in events in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Regina.

Slalom courses are generally constructed in parking lots using road race facilities and require cars to perform with a balance of braking, cornering and acceleration.

The concours d'elegance event is the show aspect of the competitions where cars are judged on cleanliness of engine and interior, body, and panels.

Rally races consist of drivers being given a route to travel in a set time.

After eight years of racing, Block's enthusiasm for Corvette racing has not dimmed.

"I don't see it ever stopping."

But when it does inevitably stop, Block plans to fully restore his Corvette as a tribute to the vehicle.

So what is it about a Corvette which makes it so engrossing?

"It is one of the few domestic sports cars; because it is a domestic car, it has a lot of power which European sports cars don't have.

"It has the handling of a European sports car and doesn't have the price tag."

Block's 1971 LS6 Corvette is one of only 190.

Clemmer approaches MD for curling funds

Drayton Valley Curling Club president Bruce Clemmer approached MD council last week for a commitment on funding for the new facility west of the arena.

"We're not looking for vast amounts of money from any particular source," he told council. "Our request is that maybe a commitment can be made one year, two years down the road for this.

"We can take that to the bank and we will be in a position that we can complete the structure."

Clemmer thanked the MD for the $920 they had already allotted to the facility.

Completion of the first phase (for the gymnastics club, boxing club and lounge) is expected by Dec. 1 to 15 of this year, and the curling ice (second phase) is expected to be complete by November 1990.

Clemmer said the facility will cost around the $1,000,000-mark to complete.

Council agreed to look into providing more funding for the facility but said they would not promise anything.

Fish and game urging duck restraint

Recognizing that severe declines in duck populations across North America remains a serious problem, the Alberta Fish and Game Association is encouraging duck hunters to participate in an international voluntary restraint program.

During the 1988 waterfowl hunting season, the North American Wildlife Foundation launched a "voluntary restraint" initiative. The program asks duck hunters forgo shooting a limit of ducks, or stop hunting temporarily, to ensure breeding populations are not further reduced.

In its first year, the program was endorsed by many wildlife management agencies, conservation organizations and thousands of duck hunters.

Speaking to a special board meeting of the Alberta Fish and Game Association held Sept. 9 and 10, president Jack Graham told provincial directors, "even though waterfowl hunters in Alberta have a minimal impact on continental harvest numbers, Alberta sportsmen should demonstrate leadership by voluntarily reducing their harvests of ducks."

The purchase of a hunting licence and waterfowl permit will continue to provide much needed funding for many important waterfowl enhancement programs.

Despite marginal improvements in habitat conditions during the spring of 1989, populations of ducks remain significantly depressed. Losses in breeding habitat in Prairie Canada, as well as overwintering habitat in the southern United States remains a critical issue, which must be addressed by governments and the public.

Local looking to don Grizzly sweater

Len Johnson hopes to wear the colors of the Olds Grizzlys this winter.

The 17-year-old defenceman and forward who toiled with the Drayton Valley midjets last year, will either be with the Alberta Junior Hockey League Grizzlys or their junior 'B' team.

He will be taking his Grades 11 and 12 schooling in Olds. Johnson, who's known for his big shot from the point, was one of 80 players who attended the Grizzlys camp.

His performance there was somewhat hampered with a knee injury he suffered during dryland training. He was off skates for a week.

There's a possibility that Johnson will be with the Olds club when they visit Drayton Valley Oct. 27 for a junior 'B' league game.

Curling rink gets provincial grant

The new curling rink received a financial boost from the provincial government last Friday.

MLA Tom Thurber presented members of the executive with a cheque for $50,000. The grant was awarded under the Community Facility Enhancement program.

The curlers had originally applied for $200,000 about 18 months ago.

However, curling club president Bruce Clemmer was more than happy to be on the receiving end of the $50,000 donation last week.

Prior to the presentation of the lottery funds, Thurber toured the new rink, being built adjacent to the Drayton Sports Centre in West Valley Park.

The 3,200-square-foot recreation area that will be used by the boxing and gymnastics clubs is quickly taking shape.

The steel beams for the main floor were being installed last week and the framing for the top floor is expected to go up in the next two weeks.

Anita Layden, Bruce Clemmer, MLA Tom Thurber, Kim Vander Ploeg and Cindy Vowk.

"Sport, recreation, cultural and other local facilities like this one help to bring together family, friends and strangers alike, to participate in activities which enrich the lives of all of us," Thurber stated.

Turkeys to trot Sept. 28

The sixth annual Frank Maddock high school turkey trot will be held Thursday, Sept. 28 starting at 11:40 a.m.

The start and finish line in the four-kilometre run is in front of the high school.

About 500 students from various schools in town participated in last year's event.

Draws are made for an assortment of prizes following completion of the event.

Driver injured

The 14-year-old driver of this truck sustained injuries and was treated in Rimbey hospital. The accident occurred one-and-a-half miles north and five miles west of Winfield last Friday morning.

MD looking into blind intersection

MD Brazeau is looking into the possibility of removing some earth from a hill on Oaks Bay Road to eliminate the 'blind' intersection.

There is a three-way stop on the road (two miles south of Highway 616), stopping traffic from the east, west and south.

Residents have been complaining that when looking south, the intersection is completely blind.

In a letter addressed to council, Dan and June

Stephenson (area residents) said they are concerned about their children having to cross the intersection to the school bus. "We would like the council to go out and inspect this intersection and hopefully it would get top priority before there is a serious accident there.

Dearest Ollie:

Of yourself you've taken good care,
Too bad I couldn't help with the loss of your hair,
I'll always love you, on that you can bet,
No matter how old or bald you get
In each of our lives there will come a time,
When turning 30 should be a crime.
So "Happy Birthday" I want to yell,
Because I think you wear 30 exceptionally well.

Love Wilma

Child seat buckle defective

The Alberta Motor Association, in cooperation with Transport Canada, alerts consumers that 14,609 units of Ultara 1 child car seats have been distributed across Canada with defective buckles.

The child restraint, model 420, has a swing-over arm that fastens by a push button buckle. Testing by the manufacturer revealed that the latch plate, which snaps into the buckle, will bend in a serious motor vehicle collision. As a result, the force required to undo the buckle exceeds Canadian safety standards, making it difficult to undo the buckle and get a child out of the restraint.

To date, no accidents have been reported which could have been attributed to the buckle release problem.

The affected seats were manufactured by the Evenflo Juvenile Furniture Co. between Nov. 14, 1988 and June 15, 1989. Repair kits, consisting of a new harness, tongue assembly, release button shield plate and installation instructions, are available free of charge from Evenflo.

More information is available from the AMA consumer information department in Edmonton, 1-800-222-6578.

MLA attends meeting

Everything from 'soup to nuts' was discussed at a recent meeting in the Tomahawk Area Plex attended by MLA Tom Thurber.

Thurber presented the Tomahawk and District Sports Agricultural Society with a Certificate of Organization plaque for the formation of the new society.

He also told residents he was offering to allocate $50,000 to the Tomahawk area (subject to approval by parks and recreation) to set up a park (for overnight or day camping) for the community and to attract people to the area.

He said there would also be approximately $10,000 a year for 20 years for maintenance.

The suggested location for the park was the old

Berrymoor ferry site.

The ag society will have to make application for the funding.

Residents took the opportunity to bring up other items of concern including the paving of Highway 624 north to Seba Beach.

"I've been here since 1905 and still no pavement," said Evelyn Lukaniuk. "Our children don't even want to come home because they say it wrecks their cars."

"The aggregate will be piled this winter and will probably be paved next summer," said Thurber.

Federal sales tax was also discussed.

"We (Alberta government) are definitely not supporting it," Thurber said. "We are doing everything in our power to minimize it."

MLA Tom Thurber presents plaque to agricultural society president Wade Trimble.

MD waiting

The Local Authorities Board will be making their recommendations to cabinet in less than a week regarding possible annexation of several areas to the MD Brazeau, manager John Eriksson said last week.

He did not know how long it would take for the cabinet (provincial government) to make its decision but said, "We all want to know, so hopefully they will do it as quickly as possible."

Moon Lake, Buck Lake, Alder Flats, the South Moose Hill area, the northern tip of the MD Clearwater, and two owners from Leduc are among those seeking annexation.

RCMP stumped

The RCMP request the public's assistance in solving a number of incidents during the summer regarding property damage.

Between July 22 and Aug. 9 five buildings and signs in and around town were spray painted.

Early in the morning of July 18 culprits using a truck, stole eight chairs and two tables from Slices Restaurant. The plastic chairs are white in color. The tables were 4' by 4' and made of wood and green in color.

On July 20 someone walked over parked vehicles on the east side of Mayhew Motors causing damage to several vehicles.

And, on Aug. 8, the liquor store in Drayton Valley was broken into at approximately 3 a.m. One bottle was found smashed in the aisle and two bottles of rye were taken.

Anyone who has any knowledge or witnessed any of these incidents is asked to advise the local RCMP at 542-4456 or to call Crimestoppers at 1-800-922-8477. Your identity will not be revealed.

Discovery of no-wheat bread a breakthrough

By Lorraine Brown
A Canadian food scientist is introducing the Third World to a new way to make bread — without wheat.

The technique could allow many poor countries now dependent on imported wheat to produce high-quality bread from local crops such as sorghum, maize or cassava.

The new bread-making method was developed by Dr. Martin Satin, chief of the Rome-based United Nations Food and Agricultural Industries Service, an organization that transfers established food technologies to developing countries.

Satin realized that those countries needed a way to end their dependency on imported wheat. Not only was it costing them a lot, it also meant that they were not developing their own agricultural products, which would give them greater economic independence.

Wheat has always been the preferred grain for bread-making because it contains a lot of gluten, the protein that gives wheat dough its stretchy, elastic qualities. Gluten allows bread to rise by giving the dough the ability to stretch and trap bubbles of carbon dioxide

Other grains don't contain enough gluten to produce bread that is risen and light in texture. However, by simply boiling flour from tropical plants such as cassava, maize, millet and rice, a gluey substance similar to wheat gluten can be produced, Satin found.

"Heating causes the starch granules in the flour to gelatinize," explains Dr. Vladimir Rasper, a food science professor at the University of Guelph, commenting on Satin's work. "When heat is applied, molecules that had been held in a tight structure disperse and separate from each other, leaving them free to form a viscous substance known as starch paste."

Satin found that if about 10 per cent of the flour (made from maize, sorghum, millet or rice) is boiled to produce a starch paste, and if this paste is added to the rest of the flour, it will give the dough enough elasticity to allow the bread to rise.

Once the paste is added, the process for making bread is the same as it is with wheat flour; yeast, sugar and salt are added; the mixture is kneaded; and the dough is allowed to rise, then baked.

Freak accident injures 2 Parents want school modernized

Two people were taken to hospital with minor injuries following a freak accident involving a horse on Highway 13, four miles east of Highway 22, last Friday.

Brian Hellervik, 41, of Winfield, was eastbound on Highway 13 when his vehicle hit a horse that ran out onto the road.

Hellervik, not injured, went to a nearby farmhouse to report the accident.

While at the farmhouse, a second eastbound vehicle, driven by Bernard Johnson, 72, of Rimbey, ran into the horse and Hellervik's vehicle. Johnson's vehicle flipped onto its roof.

Johnson and his passenger both sustained minor injuries and both vehicles are believed to be write-offs.

Recreational Const. Shamber said no charges will be laid.

Theft nets $21,000

Police are investigating the theft of over $21,000 in snowmobiles from a Buck Lake retail store last week.

In the early morning hours Sunday, Sept. 17, a thief or thieves stole a 1987 Polaris Cyclone 250X, 1990 Ski-Doo Formula Mack I, 1988 Ski-Doo Formula Plus long track, and a 1985 Ski-Doo Formula Plus from West Country Leisure.

Anyone having any information regarding this theft is asked to contact the Breton RCMP.

By Susan Mosciacki

Parents of students in Breton high school are signing a petition requesting the school be modernized in 1990, says principal Jim Musson.

"It's obvious to everyone that sees the building the poor condition that it is in," he said.

"It's an extremely depressing place for adults and kids alike.

"The parents will first ask to approach the board (Twin Rivers) at its next meeting and give a reason why they feel they should be first on the list of priorities," Musson said.

"This is six years now. Six years is a little too long. Over all these years, we have not even received routine maintenance.

"We were first (on the list of priorities) for two years with the County of Leduc, now we're third," he said.

Musson is worried because money will soon have to be spent on necessary repairs. "Is that going to prejudice our modernization?"

"Right at this point in time it's in the parents' hands," said Musson.

WCWGA wants increase for red spring and durum

The Western Canadian Wheat Growers Association (WCWGA) has called on Ottawa for an increase in the 1989/90 initial payments for hard red spring wheat and durum wheat.

The WCWGA estimates an increase of at least $20 per tonne for hard red spring wheat and durum would be justified based on current market conditions.

"The current initial payment of $155 per tonne does not reflect the reality of the shrinking world supply of uncommitted cereal grains. The potential for substantial increases in world wheat prices exists this crop year," says WCWGA president Harvey McEwen.

"Our analysis indicates export prices for red spring wheat and durum are at least $50 to $75 above current initial payment levels," says McEwen. "An increase of $20 per tonne would provide farmers with much needed cash while maintaining a comfortable margin of safety for the CWB pool accounts."

McEwen believes substantial price declines in spring wheat or durum are not likely to occur over the next several months. Both commodities are in short supply. The WCWGA also believes an increase in initial payments might encourage farmers to deliver their grain earlier in the crop year.

"In a year when farmers' income is predicted to drop 30 per cent or more, it is important for farmers to receive the maximum value for their grain when it is delivered in order to maximize cash flow," says McEwen.

Road surface stays

The surface of Township road 490 will remain as is, the MD council decided last week.

Residents in the area petitioned the MD asking the road (east of 50 St.) would be reclassified from residential to industrial. They also requested the residents be assured the road would be equal to or better than its existing surface prior to the reclassification.

Director of public works Richard Tatro said, "To properly rebuild would cost about $250,000. It's probably not an appropriate choice."

"What we are recommending is leaving the same surface-cold mix."

The approximate annual cost of maintenance is $3,000.

Tatro stated in a memorandum that the classification of the type of road and road profile into various classifications has not been formally established by the MD.

Tax sale set for Nov. 30

Council has set Nov. 30 as the date for this year's tax sale.

MD manager John Eriksson said properties that have had caveats placed on them in years past for outstanding taxes will be put up for sale.

He said reserve bids will be placed to protect the property owners and if no bid above the reserve bid is received, the MD will take over title one year after the tax sale date.

Frank's flapjacks

A pancake breakfast at Frank Maddock high school was a welcome treat for teachers and students last week.

MD will not take over bridge

MD Brazeau turned down an offer to take over ownership of the City Service bridge, west of Drayton Valley, for a token $1 fee in a council meeting last week.

Canadian Occidental informed the MD that unless they take over ownership, Can Oxy intends to remove the structure by year-end.

Richard Tatro, director of public works, said the bridge is off of the road allowance and is only a single lane Bailey type (easily assembled). He told council if the road system required extension in that location, the MD would require a two-lane bridge.

He recommended the MD not take over the bridge.

School board looks at bus for youth

The Twin Rivers school board is interested in getting transportation for a 12-year-old Drayton Valley youth.

The problem facing the physically handicapped youth surfaced during recent talks on the in-town busing problem.

The board was told by the youth's father that his son would be totally exhausted if he walked from their home in the MacKenzie area to H.W. Pickup junior high.

"I don't have the $200 to pull out of the sky," he stated in reference to the new family fee for in-town busing.

"There should be some way he can be helped," board chairman Vi Helm said at the Sept. 6 board meeting.

Superintendent Al Anderson says administration is looking at a public assistance transportation grant that may be available.

Ag analyst says wheat looks positive

This crop year is expected to be a positive one for selling wheat says an Alberta Agriculture market analyst.

"The 1989-90 crop year looks positive for Prairie farmers, both in terms of price and delivery opportunities," says Charlie Pearson in his quarterly situation and outlook.

A larger 1989 Canadian wheat crop will allow the Canadian Wheat Board (CWB) to undertake a larger 1989-90 export program, he says. Prospects for an average 1989 crop, coupled with an extremely small Canadian wheat carryover, means quota won't restrict wheat delivery opportunities, says Pearson.

Pearson says Canadian spring wheat prices are expected to be very similar to the 1988-89 crop year. He says he anticipates adjusted/final payments of $40/tonne for this crop year. The current Alberta based CWB initial payment for 1 Canada Western hard red spring wheat is $137/tonne, down $17 from 1988-89.

Durum wheat prices are expected to lose their price premium over other classes with increased supplies of domestic and world durum wheat. With adjusted and final payments, CWB 1 amber durum wheat should pay Alberta farmers $172/tonne, says Pearson.

Local feedmill wheat prices will depend on the quality of the Prairie wheat crop, he says. "A high quality crop would likely see feedmill bids in the $140 to $150/tonne range. That's similar to the past year's prices. An early frost would likely drop prices to $110/tonne or a 20 per cent premium to forecast barley prices."

Arsonists had better beware

Alberta Forestry, Lands and Wildlife has joined forces with the Crimestoppers program to combat arson-related fires in the province's forested areas.

The program, which will operate through the 41 Crimestopper communities in northern Alberta, is an attempt to apprehend anyone who deliberately sets a fire.

"On average, for the past 10 years, there have been about 60 forest fires set each year, and because of the growing number of communities and subdivisions on the edge of the forest, these fires are becoming a hazard," says Forestry Minister LeRoy Fjordbotten. "Also, the timber resource in northern Alberta has now increased in value."

The number of forest fires in 1988 was 837 with 191 of these caused by lightning, and 648 were man caused. Of these, 50 were deliberately set.

Crimestoppers is a non-profit, volunteer organization which offers a cash reward, anonymously, to people who call in tips which lead to the arrest of an individual who may have been involved in a crime.

Tips for gardeners on preserving vegetables

Knowing when your vegetables are ready to harvest or how to ripen vegetables picked before a frost are two common questions gardeners ask.

Dry or brown corn silk is one indication corn is ready to eat. Cobs should be checked to see if there are kernels to the tip indicating the cob is full.

Kernels should be at the milk stage. Check by piercing a kernel with your fingernail. If a white milky liquid squirts out, then the corn is ripe. If the liquid is clear, then the corn is still immature. If the liquid is lumpy, then the cob is over-mature but still edible. The over-mature corn won't be as sweet.

Corn that isn't used immediately after it is picked should be cooled. Cooling will preserve sweetness as sugar is converted to starch as soon as the corn is harvested. The corn can be refrigerated or soaked in ice water.

Vine-ripened tomatoes are another popular garden item. Although vine-ripened tomatoes are a goal, sometimes the late summer and early fall weather doesn't cooperate, so tomatoes have to be harvested when they are green.

Tomatoes will ripen indoors when they lose their dark green color and turn yellowish green.

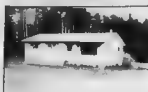

Tomatoes will ripen indoors but keep them in a sunny windowsill rather than wrapping them in paper and storing them in a box. Sun-ripened tomatoes will have 50 per cent more vitamin C than those ripened in the dark.

...and keep blood between brothers. The local blood clinic at the Legion Hall got 159 units of blood Aug. 13. Dracula would have been pleased.

Twin Rivers/health unit in agreement

The Twin Rivers school division has ratified a contract with the Alberta West Central Health Unit.

Trustees were told at their Sept. 6 meeting, that when the board decided to hire its own full-time speech/language pathologist, it did so with the understanding the health unit would provide partial funding for that position.

The amount of the grant has been set at $24,910 for the 1989-90 school year.

To receive the financial support, Twin Rivers had to enter into an agreement with the health unit.

Check out organizations before giving cash

It's supper time and the doorbell rings. The polite, well-dressed young man on your doorstep tells you he is collecting for XYZ, a very worthwhile charity.

He begs you to give generously, XYZ really needs your help.

You have never heard of XYZ but from what he tells you they seem to be filling a real need. Besides, it's payday, you have a little cash in your pocket and you really want to get to the supper table.

On the other hand, you've read about bogus charity canvassers in the newspaper recently.

How can you be sure your money is going to a legitimate organization?

The best way to protect yourself is to gather as much information as you can before making a decision. Ask questions. Most of the long-established, larger charities such as the United Way, the Heart Foundation, or the Kidney Foundation of Canada are well known. If you haven't heard of a group, ask if it is registered as a society and if the canvasser can give you an official tax receipt with the charity's number on it. An organization must be authorized as a charity by Revenue Canada to give out tax receipts for charitable donations.

What if the organization is not registered? It may still be able to raise funds under the Public Contributions Act. Fundraisers must have a permit to conduct a campaign. Permits are issued by the cities of Edmonton, Calgary, Drumheller, Medicine Hat, Red Deer and Grande Prairie. The provincial government issues permits for fundraisers outside those city limits.

If you have any doubts about the organization you are dealing with, ask for the canvasser to come back another day. Meanwhile, you can call your local Alberta Consumer and Corporate Affairs office or your municipal office in the case of the six cities listed above to check if the group has a permit and it is running a door-to-door appeal this week.

How do you know the canvasser really represents that group? Legitimate organizations usually make very sure their canvassers are readily identifiable. They may have name tags or pins naming the group, and carry official tax-receipt booklets and information leaflets and brochures.

If you have any doubts, ask for the canvasser's name and phone the organization to confirm.

Coulee road will remain open

The Coulee Road, three-quarters of a mile north of the old drive-in to one-and-a-half south of the airport, will remain open until further studies can be done on the feasibility of rerouting it.

Director of public works Richard Tatro said at last week's MD council meeting, "The bottom of the hill is a concern. The biggest concern is to keep people from getting hurt."

Tatro told council it would take a massive amount of earth to bring it into reasonable slopes.

Jack Starling, a resident in the vicinity of the road, addressed council. "I object to the closure," he said. "What I would like to see is this road upgraded or rerouted or looked at by the MD to see what we can do. This road services a lot of people."

Councillor Bob Booth suggested rerouting the road, possibly to the west. Council agreed to study the possibility.

Clean bins save work

Storing grain in clean bins takes time before harvest, but saves work later.

Old grain and debris should be removed from bins, elevators and other grain handling equipment and be taken to a landfill or burned.

If insects are encountered, farmers should consider spraying their bins with malathion grain protectant. After cleaning bins, spray should be forced into cracks and crevices. The mixture should also be sprayed outside bins to help prevent re-infestation.

The spray must have dried thoroughly before grain is loaded into the bins. Contact an Alberta Agriculture district agriculturalist or regional entomologist for insect identification. High grain temperatures attract insects and insect infestations can cause grain to heat. Bin grain temperature should be monitored regularly.

For more information on grain storage contact an Alberta Agriculture district agriculturalist.

Lions' annual tractor pull 'Bigger and better than ever'

Story and photos by Paul Cudla

The Drayton Valley Lion's Third Annual Tractor Pulling Championship turned out to be the largest ever held as a total of 36 units turned out Sept. 9 and 10.

"We seem to get bigger every year," John Luchyk, co-organizer of the pull, said.

While the weekend tractor pull had the largest number of vehicles since it started three years ago attendance was about even with last year.

"Attendance was pretty good; about par with last year," Luchyk said.

Bad weather hampered pull-action on Saturday as periodic rainfall muddied up the track.

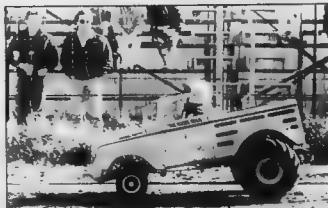

There were some concerns raised about track conditions. Every track is different, that's what makes it interesting," Luchyk said.

Overall winner in the limited modified mini Bs was The Thumper driven by Ed Michaels of Ponoka. Jumper II driven by Dave Darling of Parkerville placed second and the Dust Buster driven by Gary Tomiak from Vermilion placed in third.

In the modified class, local puller Ray Gusek and his Weekend Raider had the longest pull. Blue Baron, driven by Bud Baddick, Vermilion, and Homesteader, driven by Harold Nickel, Wabamun, tied for second. Wayne Banok in Sorcerer, from Wetaskiwin finished in third.

Luchyk said one of the bigger pulling event crowd pleasers was Wayne Banok's Breakaway truck which actually pulled apart into two.

Future tractor puller.

We should applaud, not condemn

This past week, a Canadian Press syndicated story accused Alberta Provincial Court judges of being too tough on drunk drivers.

The story, which ran in daily papers across the country, said that Alberta judges sent almost twice as many people to jail for impaired driving than judges in any other province.

What followed was an almost apologetic statement from Alberta's Chief Judge Edward Wachowich, in which he said, "I appreciate our statistics don't look good in comparison to the rest of Canada, but maybe the rest of Canada is easier than we are."

Next came a statement from the head of Edmonton's Criminal Trial Lawyers Association who said that the statistics reflect badly on the entire judicial system — judges, prosecutors and defense lawyers.

Instead of condemning Alberta judges, we and the rest of this country should be applauding what they are doing, which is getting repeat offenders off the road, once and for all.

As a nation, we have said that we will tolerate no longer the death, destruction and waste that drunk drivers wreak on society. We all know that impaired drivers ruin far more lives than just their own. The people of this country have stated in no uncertain terms that they want this menace removed from our streets and highways.

But when our judges begin to do just that, the "bleeding hearts" raise an outcry that they are being too harsh.

We believe that's garbage, pure and simple garbage. Alberta judges don't send first time offenders to jail for impaired driving unless the destruction they have caused was so horrendous and the drivers so callous and negligent that no other reasonable recourse is available. Most of those sent to prison for impaired driving are third or even fourth time offenders. No Alberta judge should even be slightly apologetic for dealing with these criminals (and that's what they are) in the manner that they have been. Considering the suffering they cause to innocent people, in many cases jail isn't harsh enough.

As far as reflecting poorly on our judicial system, we believe just the opposite is true. Alberta judges are simply sending a message to impaired drivers that their disregard for the law and the safety of others will not be tolerated.

Let Alberta set the example for the rest of this country. Let us all stand proudly behind our judges and what they are doing. Coddling repeat offenders has been proven to do nothing to eliminate the problem. If someone repeatedly breaks the law and seeks no help to prevent further repetitions, then let them spend some time in jail. If judges in the rest of the nation took the same hard line approach, perhaps we would begin to see the unnecessary slaughter on our roads come to an end.

Consumer's Corner

How much is too much?

Do you use less toothpaste than is shown on television toothbrushes? Is the full dollop really necessary? And, can you really brush your teeth too much?

Toothpaste advertisements show a generous helping of paste on their toothbrushes to encourage consumers to use more, and therefore buy more. The Canadian Dental Association (CDA) says it is not necessary to use a lot of paste, nor is it a hazard. A mouthful of foam is created with too much paste however, and that may prevent reaching all areas that need attention.

The CDA does not recommend an amount of paste, but how often you brush may be a concern.

Brushing more than two or three times a day is not advised. That can push up the gums and may cause them to recede over time. Brushing three times a day won't hurt, but one well-administered brushing per day is all that is necessary.

The CDA also recommends you brush with a soft-bristled toothbrush and used dental floss in the spaces between your teeth.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

"We're certainly not in it (firefighting) for the pay," jokes volunteer firefighter Jerry Baxter. "It's always gratifying to help your fellow neighbor."

Baxter, a machinist by trade, has been with the Drayton Valley fire department for the last two-and-a-half years.

The worst part of the job, according to Baxter, "is when you see people suffer — when they lose everything."

"It's not fun but somebody has to do it."

The job does have some rewards, says Baxter.

"The greatest reward is when somebody comes up and thanks you for helping them out."

"I really appreciate the support of my wife and children. They play a major role in my being able to do this."

Tourist booth again has successful season

Drayton Valley can chalk up another successful year for the tourist booth, according to tourism committee chairperson Natalie Gibson.

"There were 2,400 people through from different southeastern parts of America right through to Alaska," she said.

Approximately 40 per cent of the people were local, she added.

"We had excellent response and rating from the Battle River Tourist Association." She said they were told they were kind, considerate and up-to-date with the area.

More good news, says Gibson, is that "Alliance has stated they would possibly purchase the existing tourist booth in the event the proposed tourist booth/museum structure goes through."

New computer coming

The MD Bracess Public Works shop will be enjoying the latest in technology after council's decision last week to purchase a computer.

Ten thousand dollars was originally designated for an automotive scope that Richard Tatro, director of public works, said is not necessary yet.

He said a computer in the shop was a goal for the next several years but the need had arisen much quicker than had been expected.

He recommended the $10,000 be redesignated for a computer and related software.

Processors offering calorie-reduced luncheon meats

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
Alberta Agriculture

With youngsters back at school, packing lunches is back on the daily routine for many of us. Lunch often means sandwiches — and that often means prepared, processed meats.

If you've purchased any of these meats lately, you may have noticed some new trends. Processors are offering 'light' luncheon meats, with calories reduced by as much as 50 per cent. The reduced number of calories is a result of lower fat levels. This is in response to a trend in consumer demand for leaner red meat.

Beef and pork producers have significantly lowered the levels of fat in their product. This has been due to changes in production, grading and cutting practices. Consumers want well trimmed meat with very little marbling.

When these lean cuts are cured, smoked, sliced and packaged, the result is a 'light' or 'lean' meat which contains as little as four per cent fat. This can be compared with extra-lean ground beef which contains about 15 per cent fat and lean cuts of beef which range from 3.4 per cent to 11 per cent fat.

Other types of processed meat, such as weiners, sausage and bologna, have also undergone changes allowing for a lower fat content. Weiners and sausages typically contain anywhere from 15 to 30 per cent fat. However, again due to consumer demand, processors are lowering fat levels by about 15 per cent or more.

Sodium levels are, also, being significantly reduced so that some cured meats (bacon, ham, sausage) may have sodium levels reduced as much as 50 per cent.

Look for information on the label. 'Lifestyle', 'lean' or 'light' are some of the catchwords, but check the ingredient list and nutrient information.

Alberta's processors are doing their best to respond to our desire for products that help us live a healthier lifestyle!

Council bewildered by U.S. decision

The Canadian Pork Council, representing Canada's 35,000 hog farmers, is extremely disappointed and bewildered by a decision by the U.S. International Trade Commission that Canadian exports of fresh, chilled and frozen pork are causing or threatening to cause injury to the U.S. industry.

"The Canadian side had clearly demonstrated that relative to the 1985 investigation, when the commission had decided that imports were not causing injury, the present situation is even more convincing that a duty is completely unwarranted," said Bill Vaags, president of the CPC.

The CPC had pointed out to the commission current trends of declining pork exports to the United States, as well as reduced hog production in Canada.

"While we are discouraged by today's decision, we have by no means given up on having the duty revised downward or revoked altogether," added Vaags. "We will be examining the reasons for this ITC decision when they become available and assess how to have it reviewed."

He referred to the binational dispute settlement process provided under the Canada-U.S. free trade agreement which already has been activated by the Canadian industry along with the federal and Alberta governments to challenge the subsidization determinations of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Hard to say goodbye to 'grandma of grandmas'

By Chris Kreiser

Part of everyone's summers are the camping trips, family reunions, weddings, births to celebrate and family get-togethers. We had our share of fun and visiting but we had to say goodbye, too.

Cora Belle Mustard of Drayton Valley died in July. It was said at her funeral she touched the hearts of everyone who knew her. She touched ours because she was our grandma.

She called my children "little folks." They were drawn to her as if she held some special magic. I was too.

It may have appeared as if I was the one doing the good deed — spending time with a little old lady I barely knew. But anyone who knew Mrs. Mustard knows what a mistaken notion that was. I was the one who was blessed.

When we first moved to Drayton Valley I was lonely. I told everyone we adopted a grandma for Derek and Rachael's sake, but the truth is I needed a grandma.

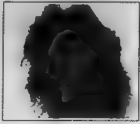

I often think of that first day, three years ago, when we set off for Shangri-La Lodge with a sense of adventure and lots of giggles.

Well done

Holly Bevan, daughter of Dave and Kaye Johnston, has been awarded a scholarship from the Calgary General Hospital where she is presently employed. She will enter the University of Calgary to complete a bachelor of nursing degree.

Coffee with Chris

The kids thought it was such a silly idea. You can adopt a baby but adopt a grandma?

My children got to know and love the 'grandma of grandmas.' She always had hugs and treats and a caring, understanding ear. Even though they had to shout to be heard, they delighted in sharing the week's adventures with her. In return, Mrs. Mustard filled them with a sense of pride by attending their Mother's Day teas and school parties.

She gave them a sense of self-worth by admiring and hanging up their drawings — their art.

Her love never stopped, and they felt it and knew they were important to her.

So did I. Her real joy at seeing me every time I came to visit made me glad all over. And her warm hug lifted my spirits like none other could.

She never chastened me for being late or scolded me for not coming to see her more often or even noticed my burning supper. She always had kind words; she was always understanding and forgiving. Many a time she comforted me with, "I was a young mother too, once, with little ones who needed attending. There just never seemed to be enough time to do

Floden wins Fantasyland weekend

Funeral services were held Sept. 5 for long-time resident Victor Saunders of Carnwood.

Victor settled in the the Carnwood area in 1927 where he and his wife Agnes raised five children. He remained on the family farm until recently.

Congratulations to Mary and Todd Nelson (nee Fisher) who were married Aug. 26. The couple will make their home in Breton.

Wayne Floden was the everything. Don't worry, dear. You know you really shouldn't bother with an old thing like me...but I'm sure glad you do."

Little did she know she was my sanity, my strength. She gave me advice, she made me laugh. And she beat me in Scrabble — hundreds of times.

We never thought of her as "old." She was 93. I once asked her how old she really felt. She answered 16! And added with a twinkle in her eye, "But I sure don't look 16, do I?"

She never stopped delighting us. The kids knew her as their friend, someone to learn from, someone to share themselves with, someone to love.

Whether she was reminiscing about the beautiful northern lights, or the time her wig fell off when she took her hat off, or even the day Rachael called her Mrs. Ketchup by mistake, we never got enough.

Her unconditional love was a gift we always wanted more of. We took for granted she would be ours forever. What we thought was magic that drew us to be near her, was really her love. She filled our lives with it.

I know there is rejoicing in heaven because she's home. But our family will sure miss her.

Each one of us is getting ready to make the trip

By Pastor H. Heinemann
Emmanuel Lutheran Church

"I'm getting ready to take a trip," the middle-aged man said to me when I visited him in the hospital for the first time.

"Where are you going," I asked.

"I don't know," he said, "because I have never been there before."

This was the first indication that this man knew, as his family and friends had

Witnesses

"Keep watching how you walk" was the theme of the two-day circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses held recently at their assembly hall near Onoway.

Witnesses and interested persons from Spruce Grove and Stony Plain were joined by those from Calmar, Glen Park, Drayton Valley and Breton to hear Bible discourses on how to walk as wise persons in imitation of Christ-Jesus.

The morning program included a theocratic ministry school, wherein Witnesses of all ages are trained to help others to walk wisely. This is a model of the weekly theocratic ministry school held in the local congregations.

The program on the second day was highlighted by the symposium: "Why multitudes walk in Jehovah's path." The points were made by means of interviews and demonstrations.

The program climaxed with the public talk "Light bearers in a dark world." This talk showed the need for light bearers in a world where many prominent authorities forecast dark days ahead.

ready to take such a trip. And while we do not know much about what the place is like to which we Christians go, God has given us some glimpses.

From Revelation we learn that in the blessed place called heaven, those who arrive "will never again hunger or thirst; neither sun nor any scorching heat will burn them, because the Lamb, who is in the centre of the throne, will be their shepherd, and He will guide them to springs of life-giving water. And God will wipe away every tear from their eyes."

The great difference between the Christian and the non-Christian is not that the Christian finds life easy and free of pain and trouble and the non-Christian always has it rough in life. Rather, it is that the Christian has the assurance that, as St. Paul said to the Romans: "What we suffer at this present time cannot be compared at all with the glory that is going to be revealed to us."

Like Abraham we look forward to the city that has foundations, whose builder and maker is God.

Calmar 4-H club makes safety kits

Farmers and provincial 4-H organizations will benefit from a Calmar 4-H club work bee that assembled 3,000 anhydrous ammonia safety kits.

About 20 club members and their leader Gordon Schaber, spent an evening putting together the kits for Sherritt Gordon Ltd. Each kit contains a pair of protective gloves, chemical goggles, a water bottle and safety information.

Sherritt Gordon dealers and United Grain Growers will sell the kits to farmers across Western Canada. One dollar from each kit sold will go to support the respective provincial 4-H organization.

"Because anhydrous burns are unforgiving, safe handling is critical. We appreciate the cooperation of the Calmar 4-H club with this worthwhile project. Club members gained valuable insight about safety as well as contributing to the 4-H movement," says Ted Youck, head of Alberta's 4-H branch.

Congratulations

Larry Hansen and Darlene Helntz were married Aug. 19.

Wilting tops sign of weevils

Wilting tops of pine and spruce trees at this time of year may be a sign of damage from white pine weevils, according to an Alberta Agriculture press release.

The first thing people notice is a wilting leader, or top, of the tree. Eventually needles on the leader and upper side branches will turn brown.

The adult white pine weevil looks like a beetle with a long projecting snout. It is small, about four to six millimetres long, and dark brown or black. As adult weevils, the insects bore holes in the leader and lay their eggs. Hatched larvae feed under the tree bark.

How to control the damage depends on whether the tree is pine or spruce. With pine trees remove the infected leader. Because the larvae tunnel down in spruce trees, remove the leader and down to the next whorl of branches. Leaders should be removed as soon as the damage is noticed.

The adults leave the trees and go into the ground to overwinter during August and September, so removing the leader may reduce overwinter weevil populations. Infested leaders should be burned.

A side branch can be trained upright to become the tree leader and retain the dominance of the tree.

A pesticide can be used to control the weevils. Methoxychlor can be used in late April to spray the insects.

Search ends in tragedy

By Susan Mosciak

The search for Laura Finch, a 74-year-old woman who walked away from Breton General Hospital Sept. 14, ended with the tragic discovery of her body last week.

A combination RCMP and civilian search team found her body in a dense bush area a quarter mile east of Breton Sept. 21, one week to the day after she went missing.

Finch reportedly had a habit of hiding to be undetected and could have been confused about where she was going, or where she was.

Breton RCMP Cpl. Pumm said no foul play is suspected and the investigation is continuing.

The cause of death was not released.

Hospital administrator Janet Young said Finch "went out the back door" of the hospital.

"She was in street clothes and people didn't realize she was from the hospital."

"It's just unfortunate the way it happened," Young said.

The week-long search by police involved the use of helicopters and dogs, as well as the assistance of civilians.

Traffic lights delayed

By Susan Mosciak

Installation of traffic lights in Drayton Valley has been delayed indefinitely because of a stop work order being enforced by TransAlta Utilities.

The problem, according to town Councillor Howard Olsen, is that there is less than five metres working clearance from overhead power lines.

The only apparent solution to the problem is to raise the power poles at a cost of approximately $50,000.

The town of Drayton Valley already has $180,000 committed to the project and progress payments have been made.

The town will not receive a grant expected from the street safe program as it is out $33,000, Olsen said. He also admitted council was partly to blame because the grant was not confirmed in writing.

Council should have been made aware of problem

Olsen and Mayor Bob

Mayhew made it clear, though, the town should not have to pay to raise the poles.

Olsen stressed that council should have been made aware of the problem before the contractor started the work, and the town would have had the option of shelving the project.

"This is why we hired these people, to look after this for us," Mayhew said after the meeting.

"I will try to do my very best to see this gets resolved before the election (Oct. 16)," he said.

"...it's time to talk to the big guns..."

Council will be scheduling a meeting between the town of Drayton Valley, a representative of the provincial government, TransAlta Utilities, ISL Engineering and the contractor to discuss an appropriate solution to the dilemma.

"I think it's time to talk to the big guns," said Olsen.

St. Anthony school will look into having a family tuition fee rate in place by next school year. They currently do not have one in existence.

The Catholic school board is looking into four inquiries concerning children playing on the St. Anthony school roof.

Judy Bedford is the new manager of the Sean's store in Drayton Valley. She comes here from Stony Plain.

Darrell Sharpe, manager for the past year, has been transferred to Kapuskasing, Ont.

RCMP Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey told town council last week that manpower is "up to snuff again." Delayed transfers made the local detachment short-staffed over the past several months.

The staff shortage did not hinder policing in Drayton Valley, he assured.

Mayor Bob Mayhew suggested in council last Thursday a nominal fee be set that would be significant enough to entice people to inform on people who commit property damage (i.e. graffiti), but not enough to be a burden to the taxpayers.

Councillor Howard Olsen expressed concern over the local chamber of commerce being involved in the upcoming election.

He told council last week that because he didn't believe the forum could remain unbiased, he may choose not to attend.

Councillor Jean Saunders also told council the involvement of the chamber was "inappropriate."

Pembina Consortium will be holding a grand opening of their new facility Nov. 21.

Bob Mayhew is one of two Canadians invited to speak at the 1990 International Privatization Congress in Saskatoon next May.

Voters have choice of nine candidates

By Frank Ryan

It appeared for a while that all six candidates who had announced their intention to seek a seat on town council would be elected by acclamation.

But three late entries, on the morning nominations had to be filed, changed all that.

Now, voters will have a slate of nine people that they can select six councillors from.

The three are Mohammed (Moe) Hamdon, Erich Wagner and Terry Kilborn.

Hamdon, who graduated from the University of Alberta in 1983 is assistant manager of Blocks Food Store.

The 29-year-old Hamdon has his degree in business administration and commercial marketing and a major in accounting.

He came to Drayton Valley in 1985.

Wagner is owner-manager of DV Printers and has lived in town since 1983.

Seeking a seat on town Election '89

Facing opponent not new for Mayhew

By Frank Ryan

Eleven people are running for town council in Drayton Valley.

Incumbent Bob Mayhew and Tom McGee, a councillor for the past three years, are entered in the mayoralty race.

Nine others are in the race for the six councillors positions in the Oct. 16 municipal election.

These include returnees Jean Saunders, Howard Olsen, Charlie Miner and Alex Salfi. The newcomers include Natalie Gibson, Grant Monsoeur, Terry Kilborn, Erich Wagner and Mohammed (Moe) Hamdon.

Facing an opponent for the mayor's job is nothing new for Mayhew.

After being elected as a councillor in 1971 he defeated Nevis LaBranche by 99 votes in the 1980 mayoralty race and in 1983 defeated challenger Alex Salfi by 200 votes.

Seven people are after the five seats on the separate school board.

They include returnees Tim Kjoirein, Joan Anderson, Marilyn Buchan, Dennis Mallett and Lorne Pinkosi along with newcomers

Terry Kilborn
"...the people should have a choice..."

Wagner has been active with the Lions club. He was instrumental in getting the recycling project off the ground and operating.

Although Kilborn didn't make his intentions known until the last day, he was inspired to run by a lot of people.

"I had a lot of encouragement," he said.

Like Wagner, he was also concerned at the possibility that the six candidates who had announced their intentions, would get into office by acclamation.

"I didn't like that. The people should have a choice," he added.

Kilborn, who is a realtor with NRS, has been in business for 25 years. He also has an extensive background in financial matters.

He is keenly interested in parks and understands the minor hockey system as two of his children played minor hockey.

Six people have entered their names in the County of Parkland's Division 7.

They are Lila Fahlman, Wayne Gent, Geoff Hampton, Johnny Krasowski, Sandy McNamie and Ben Richter.

Six vying for position

Several men have their sights set on a council seat in the County of Wetaskiwin Divisions 6 and 7.

In Div. 6, including the Winfield, Battle Lake, Norbuck and Yeoford areas, three men are vying for the prestigious position.

Gordon Sherwood will be seeking his second term on council and hoping to relieve him are Bob Blackmore and Ken Flug.

Wallace Wilson will be trying to retain his seat in Div. 7.

Paul Jensen and G. 'Bear' Werachler are also seeking the seat in that division.

Div. 7 includes the Buck Creek, Buck Lake, and Alder Flats areas.

Werachler was the first

Liberal candidate ever to have a strong showing (2,826 votes) in the Drayton Valley/Devon constituency.

'Bear' placed a strong second to MLA Tom Thurber.

Advance poll Oct. 10

Electors will have ample opportunity to vote in this year's civic election.

Town council authorized an advance vote to be held Oct. 10, at the Town of Drayton Valley Civic Centre.

The poll station will be open between the hours of 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Suspense ends with Dunham's key.

After weeks of suspense, the winner of the chamber of commerce/retail merchants' association car give-away winner was finally announced at a dinner in the Legion hall last Wednesday.

Lane Dunham, the eighth key winner, is the lucky man who will be driving around in a brand spanking new vehicle from Sunshine Ford, DV Nissan, or Woodland Chrysler Jeep in the very near future.

"It's pretty exciting. That sums it all up," Dunham said.

"I'm overwhelmed, excited and relieved. There was a fair amount of tension just before."

Accident claims vehicle, injures cattle

One vehicle was written off and several head of cattle were injured in a two-vehicle collision near Alsiike Sept. 16.

An eastbound vehicle driven by Marty Raskauskas, 24, of Warburg, collided with a northbound truck and horse trailer driven by Troy Tattersall, 21, of Calmar.

Neither driver was hurt but four of the cattle sustained serious injuries according to Breton RCMP.

Dunham said he will let his wife pick the car of her choice.

The father of two, Lincoln, 4, and Lindsay, 2, said he hasn't won anything since he was three years old.

"The last time I won anything was an electric frying pan when I was three." His mother and father bought him a ticket at a square dance.

The evening program for the second annual car give-away was a suspense-filled one for the 10 key holders.

Complete with drum rolls and trumpet, the draw was made from 10th prize to the first prize.

Entertainment was supplied by members of the Playworks Players performing arts group and Tineta Couturier sang two songs from her album that is soon to be released.

Linda Bennett, on behalf of the chamber of commerce and Const. Greg Fedor hosted the evening.

Local businesses supplied consolation prizes for the runners-up.

"Thanks to the town merchants and the chamber of commerce," said Dunham.

"Drayton Valley really is a great place to live. It does pay to shop at home."

Lane Dunham gives his wife Teresa a victory kiss.

Report shows lack of teen activities

A five-year recreation and culture master plan for the MD of Brazeau has identified a lot of problems.

Everything from a definite need for a second indoor arena in Drayton Valley to better facilities in Breton that would meet the needs of that community.

But, one concern that didn't get much more than a mention was the lack of things to do for teens.

In Drayton Valley, the report said most of the money was being spent on adult entertainment. Where youngsters could be involved in certain sports, they are not encouraged. There are no dances held for children or teens.

In Lodgepole, there is a gap for ages 10 to 18 years of age. 4-H is their only youth activity. There is nothing for the younger ones.

In Breton, the report says a swimming pool would provide programs for all ages.

No one should be startled by these findings.

The lack of things for teens to do has been around for years.

In the past, schools have provided a lot of activities for teens. But even the school dances seem to have disappeared.

Talk to a teenager, and they will likely tell you about the lack of things to do.

The MD's report has identified a serious problem.

While the problem might not be quite as bad as it appears on the surface, it might be time to form a teen council in the community that could help get the message out to others about what's available, and, at the same time, help identify some of the serious problems that exist.

Hockey draft tickets chance to support organization

Thousands of dollars are spent every week in Drayton Valley on lottery tickets.

The chances of winning the big pot is considered by many as a miracle, especially considering how many tickets are sold.

Now, local and area residents have a chance to support a Drayton Valley organization and at the same time, take a chance on winning some big money.

The Drayton Valley & District Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization is currently selling tickets on the NHL regular season hockey draft.

Only 500 tickets at $40 each will be sold. That's pretty good odds considering the prize money up for grabs.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

Cash prizes total $10,000 with $4,000 going to the winner(s).

Even the second place money of $2,000 or third place of $1,000 are pretty good returns on a $40-wager.

Besides taking part in the draft, it's a chance to support this community organization.

Reader doesn't support writer's 'socialist' viewpoint

Dear Editor,

It was hardly enlightening to read comments by your reporter, Paul Cudla (Newsroom Comment Sept. 12). Is he suggesting that senate reform only comes up when a government leader shows up poorly in the polls?

If we had an elected senate in the early 1970s, the feds wouldn't have been able to tax every increase in the price of oil away from Albertans, or force Alberta to sell oil at less than half world price to benefit Ontario and Quebec.

The reason Alberta is at the forefront of efforts for a Triple E senate is that Alberta has consistently been burned by Ottawa by tax, energy, transportation and equalization and joint funding policies.

I first heard about Triple E from the Western Canada

Concept and the Alberta Report. It is a good idea whose time has come, and since neither of the above mentioned are governing Alberta, it fails to responsible people in the governing party to start the ball rolling.

If your reporter wants to take shots at Getty at least find a valid complaint.

This type of comment wouldn't normally warrant a response, but two things caused me to write. First, Drayton Valley's population, more than any other in the country, is affected first and most by decisions about energy. The lack of a Triple E senate allowed our industry and businesses to be devastated.

Secondly, there are new people in our district who may not be aware of how important this issue is to Alberta and Drayton Valley.

If I wanted to support a socialist newspaper I would have subscribed to the Edmonton Journal.

Busing cut-off to Buck Creek resident

Dear Editor,

We've lived out in the country for the past 20 years and as far as services go we have two: road maintenance and school bus service.

This past week we lost half our services when our son was refused busing because we want him to attend school in Drayton Valley this year. There are four buses passing within a half-mile of our place (two go east and two go west), with room for extra students on all four buses.

We built our present farmstead three years ago, a nice high spot well situated to serve our business needs, never realizing someone would come along and draw a boundary line and upset our daily lives.

I really don't know what the school trustees hope to gain by enforcing boundaries that so many people are opposed to. We also own land on both sides of the boundary.

Do we or don't we live in the land of the free? Our forefathers fought and lost their lives to ensure freedom for future generations. All I want to do is choose a school for our son and I don't see this as a huge wrong.

I see no reason to be kept off the bus that our tax dollars keep on the road all because the school board doesn't respect that I should have a choice of schools.

Even the provincial minister of education has been contacted and he has no jurisdiction out here, so he can't do anything for us.

Because the board has expelled our 11-year-old from the bus he will be taking correspondence this year. I suggest we all take a long, hard look at our newly elected trustees, who are controlling us like we live in a communist state.

Separate school enrolment down

By Paul Curdia

The St. Anthony school lost a total of 42 children to the public school system over the summer.

The school board had budgeted for a total enrolment from ECS (early childhood services) to Grade 9 of 483 students but on registration day Sept. 5, St. Anthony had a total enrolment of 444.

"I am a little concerned of course. You don't want to lose any students at any time of the year," Tim Kjollien, Catholic school board trustee, said.

The 42 students moving into the public school system represents about 9.5 per cent of St. Anthony's present enrolment of 444.

"If the town population has gone up, you should be able to maintain your enrolment," Kjollien said referring to rising population figures for the town of Drayton Valley.

Only recent yearly enrolment figures are available thus only modern figures can be considered for turnover rates, but board members seem to agree the figure of 42 represented the highest number that had been encountered by the board.

Joan Anderson, chairperson of the board, said the Catholic school system superintendent was contacting parents of the 42 children in an effort to study the reasons for their move into the public system.

"It's a matter of looking at what are the reasons and then trying to correct them," Anderson said.

'90s are being looked at as turnaround decade'

By Paul Cudla

Rob Macintosh, a local environmentalist, said engineers are in a position to help tremendously in the struggle to save the environment.

Macintosh addressed about 16 engineers and stressed the importance of "shifting environmental ways of thinking into the mainstream."

He met with an APEGA (Association of Professional Engineers, Geologists, and Geophysicists of Alberta) delegation which included representatives from Gulf, Nova, Chevron, Amoco and Weyerhaeuser Sept. 20 at the Westwinds Motor Inn.

"What you can do, is take the levers that government uses to encourage industrial development and use them for the environment and not against it."

"Engineering has a tremendous role in being able to push for that shift sooner rather than later," Macintosh said.

Rob Macintosh

Engineers were given a run-down on environmental issues like chemically-induced cancer, growing scarcity of water resources, deforestation, and soil erosion.

"The '90s are being looked at as a turnaround decade for the environment," Macintosh said, adding later that "If the '90s are going to be the turnaround decade for the ecosystem then a lot more has to be done."

Achieving conservation

Macintosh offered various ideas on how environmental conservation could be achieved ranging from simple office techniques like paper recycling to more complicated oil-refinement processes like using carbon dioxide in tertiary production.

Neil Smith, production engineer at Amoco, was impressed with Macintosh's speech.

"One of the best ways to educate yourself is to come out and hear these points of view."

"One of the good parts of Rob's point of view is it's the consolidation point of view," Smith said.

Smith added it was important for engineers to meet with environmentalists and use their input.

"We're in a position where we can do something about it (the environment); our job is to mitigate the demand with the environmentalists."

After the speech, Macintosh echoed the importance for rallying engineering support for environmentalism.

"Engineers, like other professionals, are often people who are making key decisions for society, therefore if you can get their sympathies and involvement you can make gains."

Sharpen those pencils Political arena has been set

By Paul Cudla

Promises, promises. Here they come Drayton Valley so hold on to your baseball caps and get ready for the election bait storm.

In one corner we have the champagne, Bob Mayhew wearing blue pin-stripe trunks and sporting a second ice surface.

Wearing the red trunks and a power-tie, the challenger Tom McGee, fashioning a '90s-style bike-path/walkway.

So what do you want, Drayton Valley, pavement or ice? A cold choice either way. The political arena has been set. Let the best man win.

Now the onus falls upon the voter. Vote for experience he/she is told, a man who has coined fiscal responsibility in this town and introduced economic respectability.

But...no, wait, a second voice begs to differ, vote for a fresh approach, a family man, an approachable man.

The bottom line is that for the first time in six years the people of Drayton Valley do have a choice.

Comment

Some people (myself included) may have not been around in 1983 when Bob Mayhew won by acclamation. Shame, shame, town of Drayton Valley, is that any way to hold an election, or select a mayor? Perhaps non-election would be a more appropriate phrase.

Be prepared to be courted

Ladies and gentlemen it's time to exercise that suffrage, time to practice that 'X'.

Sharpen those pencils, practice that handshake, line up those babies, and prepare to be courted; elections are back, and they're as promising as ever.

But through it all, residents, you have to vote to get the right to complain about town politics.

If you don't vote you become a non-resident, unaccounted for, silent, and unimportant. However, carry the eligible and enthusiastic tag of a voter and be eligible to complain when something goes awry. You can be heard to cry about how your vote was wasted, or better yet, how 'if the candidate I voted for won, this wouldn't happen'.

It's your purpose as a resident of Drayton Valley to earn the right to gripe about local politics, and all you have to do is vote. It's easy and it's fun. Thousands can play.

So what is it going to be Drayton Valley — ice or pavement?

Ribbon-cutting ceremony Sept. 29

Renovations are complete at the Breton General Hospital and the staff are so proud, they will be holding a ribbon-cutting ceremony with tours to follow Sept. 29.

"We want people to know about the renovations we've been doing," said Janet Young, administrator.

The work was necessary because the laboratory was too small and the hospital needed safety and environmental upgrading.

"We had to renovate the administration area because that's where the (new) lab went," Young said.

The hospital now has a board room, new office, in-service room, ambulance bay, extension to the dining room, a larger outpatient room and doctors' rest area.

Barking dogs alert sleeping burglary victim in time

A 19-year-old man from Grandview Beach and a 17-year-old youth will be facing charges of possession of stolen property and break/enter and theft following an incident near Yeoford Sept. 15.

Dean Baumann was awakened by the sound of dogs barking and when he went outside to investigate, he found two young people in the process of stealing tools, a television set, VCR, etc. from his motorhome.

When the pair left in a vehicle, Baumann surreptitiously alerted them to the residence of 19-year-old Aaron Bakas, said Breton RCMP Const. Steven Shamber.

He confronted the two and asked them to unload his property from their vehicle and stand and wait while he phoned police. The pair complied. They were both arrested when Wetaskiwin rural detachment arrived on the scene.

City athlete runs record triathlon time

By Susan Mosecicki

Barry Saretzky

The title 'Ironman of Oiltown' now belongs to Barry Saretzky, a competitor from the 'City of Champions.'

Saretzky aced the one-km swim, 10-km cycle and five-km run in record time for this event in Drayton Valley. He completed the triathlon in 50:31 minutes.

The previous record was held by Les Sigal of Drayton Valley (53:54).

In the women's individual, Terry Bills recaptured her crown for the second year in a row. She finished with a time of 64:02.

Saretzky, of Edmonton, is a competitive swimmer and swims with the Edmonton Keyeno Swim Club. He is trying to make the national swim team.

"The triathlon was the first he has ever competed in. 'It makes me feel good because it's my first. Maybe I can take this further.'"

Saretzky said he enjoyed the race, but had slight trouble when he switched from the bicycle to running. "It was okay until I started to run — it was just an awkward feeling."

"I always bank on them being close and don't reduce my speed," said Bills after her commendable performance.

"The best part of the race, though, is when you're done," said Bills.

Sigal finished second in the men's individual. His time was 53:08. Third was Chad Anker (53:35) also of Drayton Valley.

Jean Tucks, of Edmonton, came in second in women's individual, finishing with 63:09, and Jocelyn Bystrom, of Evansburg, was third with a time of 77:15.

Pat Robinson, Pat Rurka and Michael Smeland, all of Drayton Valley, claimed first in the men's team competition. Their time was 53:14.

Second was the team of Scott Maclock and Derk and Ryan Unterschultz, from Drayton Valley, with a time of 54:20.

Darcy Lauder, Fletcher Bredin and Eric Schneider's team, also from Drayton Valley, finished with 60:28.

The route was considerably shorter for the junior and family teams.

Kevin Oscar, Troy McGinn and Kriston Maclock (Drayton Valley) took first place in the junior team event with a time of 29:41.

In the family competition, Loren, David and Tim Regnier of Drayton Valley finished first (29:28).

The Enselen family of Edmonton (Andrew, Stephen and Dick) were a close second with a time of 31:30.

Neptune Swim Club president Carolyn Maclock was pleased with the triathlon this year. "It went very well — very smoothly."

She said there were 29 competitors altogether. "There were more individual competitors; that's very good."

And they're off...

Dragster racing 'whole new ball game' for Klotz

By Paul Cudla

Fred Klotz is looking forward to a new racing challenge in the form of a front-end dragster he acquired this summer.

The front engine econo-dragster was bought for $4,500 from a racer in Stettler and Klotz has built up the dragster and is now ready to take it to the track.

"It's a complete new ball game for me," Klotz says.

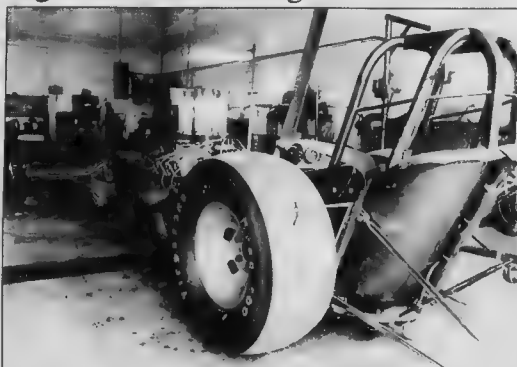

The dragster is not only new to Klotz but it is also new to the Drayton Valley area, as it will become the first one of its kind to be raced out of this vicinity.

"As far as I know it's new to this area," Klotz says, adding he has lived in Drayton Valley for 10 years.

After buying the car this summer, Klotz has built up the engine and the power train and has added alcohol injection by taking advantage of the mechanic shop he owns called FAK Automotive. The engine is a 454ci Chevy, which carries 550 hp.

Thus far, the car has reached a top speed of 137 mph in practice runs, but should eventually be able to run at around 155-160 mph.

After building it up, Klotz recently got an NHRA

Klotz's front engine dragster is track-ready.

(National Hot Rod Association) license which enables him to race the dragster at tracks all over North America.

"We'll be doing most of our racing in Calgary and Saskatoon," Klotz says, also expressing a desire to go to Washington and Idaho for racing next year.

Previously, Klotz raced a 1971 Camaro in the pro-street car class at Race-City Speedway in Calgary for about four years.

He admits though, that he was not very serious about the street-car racing, as he typically only raced about four or five times a season. Klotz says he will be more serious about racing the dragster.

"I've got enough dollars in it (the dragster) that I'm going to have to start doing something."

Klotz has yet to race the car in a competition as he went to Calgary's Race City last weekend, only to have races cancelled due to rain.

With one race left Oct. 1. Klotz looks forward to racing once this year and then going full tilt next year.

"It's quite the effect when you're sitting back there and hitting the throttle."

"Basically the acceleration is the best, you go from 0-140 mph in nine seconds."

Froese second overall in racer's series

By Paul Cudla
With one racing title already under his belt, and another virtually sewn-up, drag-bike racer Ken Froese is setting his sights on the overall driver's championship at Race-City Speedway in Calgary.

Froese wrapped up the CERA (Canadian Bracket Racing Association) point series Sept. 16-17. In addition, he currently leads the overall motorcycle racer's point series by 800 points (7800-7000), which represents the amount a racer can earn for a drag-bike win.

With one point race left in the season Oct. 1, Froese would have to experience an all-out collapse to lose the motorcycle racer's championship.

For the overall driver's series at Race-City, Froese finds himself in a second-place tie with a car racer, just 100 points behind another car racer with one race remaining in the season.

"I hope to do pretty good (on Oct. 1). The other two guys are coming on strong so it's not going to be easy," Froese said, adding he feels he will have to win the last race to have a shot at the overall title.

Froese has made it his goal this season to win the overall driver's series, after finishing second last season.

"There's nothing much I can do except watch them. I'm not going head to head with them, so it's a bit tough,"

Froese said, alluding to the fact the other two contenders are in the car-racing class.

Froese's most recent Race-City win came Sept. 3, which he won despite mechanical difficulties like a leaky radiator, and troubles starting his 350cc, two-stroke, specially-constructed bike.

Since then, he has experienced a bit of racing frustration.

He lost a race Sept. 16 by 0.015 of a second in the second round race which eliminated him before the semi-finals.

"It was the closest race I've ever been in. It was close but not close enough. I might as well have lost by a mile."

Froese trails by a slim 100-point margin in the overall racer's series.

Tae Kwon Do more than just a brawl; self defense only

By Paul Cudla
Deryk Hamilton might be considered a bit of a Tae Kwon Do prodigy as at age 17 he has already worked his way up to a black belt.

Hamilton, a Grade 12 student at Frank Maddock high school, started in Tae Kwon Do when he was 12, and has now worked his way up to assistant coach with Nel's Drayton Valley Tae Kwon Do Club. He has served as assistant coach for the past two years.

"I like teaching younger students. I like to see that my teaching isn't going in one ear and out the other."

"They really concentrate. They really want to be the best they can be. It's nice to see them grow from a student who doesn't have that much knowledge to a teacher, good competitor or practitioner," Hamilton says. It took Hamilton three-and-a-half years to obtain his black belt whereas it usually takes a student somewhere between four-and-a-half and five-and-a-half years to earn a black belt.

In appreciation
Deryk Hamilton

Hamilton says the biggest change from going from student to teacher is that now he is the centre of attention at practices.

"You bring yourself into a totally different position. Instead, the focus of all the students is on me."

The Kwon Do as compared to the other martial arts, emphasizes the legs over the arms.

"It's a very spectacular sport. When you go to Tae Kwon Do it's more than just a brawl."

Hamilton says Tae Kwon Do is a sport which offers both mental and physical benefits.

Physically it helps improve flexibility, coordination, stamina, conditioning, and toning and building of various muscles.

Mentally Tae Kwon Do will improve self-confidence, discipline, and self-determination.

But, Hamilton stresses, what Tae Kwon Do won't help a person improve is the ability to become a school bully.

"When a student comes in to Tae Kwon Do they learn self-defense only," Hamilton says adding that classes are taught to use Tae Kwon Do skills only when the physical self is being threatened. Kwon Do students are warned not to initiate fights.

Caps renew junior hockey

By Paul Cudla

A weekend training camp held by the Drayton Valley Oil Caps, signified the return of junior 'B' hockey to the town after a one-year layoff.

Grant MacDonald, head coach of the Oil Caps, said he was "positive" after looking at about 25 players over the three-day camp.

"I'm surprised, there's some good hockey players here. I don't think there will be any problem getting 20 junior-calibre hockey players," MacDonald said.

MacDonald stressed that at this point, organization was the key for the Oil Caps.

"The big thing is to get everybody organized and get 20 good hockey players out at the same time."

The Oil Caps had different numbers of players turning out on each day of the camp (between 17 and 26), but MacDonald said he was hoping to have 25 players at the next practice.

The one-year layoff for junior hockey in Drayton Valley has hurt some of the Oil Caps' recruiting efforts as a few local players have joined teams from out of town because of the lull.

One slight advantage the Oil Caps have thus far is that they are the first team of the seven in their division to hit the ice. Olds, Carstairs, Red Deer, Rocky Mountain House, Lacombe, and Hobbema are in the Oil Caps' division.

Kelso returns as president

Skate with us!
The Drayton Valley Figure Skating Club has again begun a new

The first general meeting held Sept. 19 was well attended. Anne Kelso is returning president along with Elmer Kupchak as treasurer and Debbie Town as secretary.

The new Canskate coordinator is Kathy Lemishka. The club is still looking for two people to fill first vice-president and director positions.

Karen Kirkwood and Susan Benson are returning as the club's professionals.

Bowling starting up

The Twilight Bowling alley promises to strike up a busy season this winter as three leagues are planned to run.

Mixed league bowling will go Monday thru Friday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and 9 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The Golden Age league will bowl Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday mornings.

Youths can take to the lanes in the youth league after school on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Dan Sieben, owner of the Twilight Bowl, said the lanes also plan to hold monthly tournaments.

"It will be relatively constant," Sieben said.

Teams are still needed for evening leagues.

A proposed bowling alley which was hoped to be built for this year, was cancelled due to a lack of funding.

To date, 66 have registered with Canskate, 15 in the CFSA program, 14 in powerskate and two in Canfigure. The last date to register for these programs is Sept. 30.

The powerskate program will be held Monday through Thursday from 5:15 to 6 p.m. and will run until Oct. 5. There are still some openings.

The season has started for CFSA and powerskate and Canskate begins Monday, Oct. 30.

The Canskate program is being revised this year and will be instructed by the professional coaches, rather than the amateur coaches as in previous years. The amateur coaches will be assisting the pros with supervised practice times. The club is hoping to get enough volunteer parents to help out with the games section of the program.

Canskate children (four years and older) will be given one-and-a-half hours' of ice time. Canskate will wrap up March 3 with the ice carnival.

The CFSA test program has two test days planned this year, Nov. 18 and March 31 at the Civic Centre.

The club will host the 1990 Winterskate competition Feb. 9, 10 and 11. It is estimated about 400 skaters from the northwestern zone of Alberta will be competing for medals at various levels of competition. First and second-place winners will go on to the provincial level of competition.

Perfect round scored

Perfection was achieved by one of the competitors in the first-ever cash/trophy Legion Dart tournament recently.

Larry Boudry, of Edmonton, played a perfect round (180) and received a Legion mug for his accomplishment.

The Early Bird dart tourney was played in round-robin style with 24 players competing.

Vic Cook and Wes Johnson, of Edmonton, took first-place trophies and split $66 in the doubles category.

Second-place competitors were Boudry and Tom MacVicar of Edmonton winning trophies and $40, and Arvo Leilop and Fred Nicholls of Drayton Valley finished third and won trophies and $30.

High score (177) trophy was captured by Roger Wollam of Drayton Valley.

Following the doubles tournament that lasted eight hours, "everybody was darted out and there wasn't much interest for the singles," said Sharon MacDonald, secretary treasurer for the Drayton Valley Legion dart club.

Book offers lifestyle tips for people on their own

By Christine Vanzella
Stony Plain Reporter

Living on your own can sometimes be an interesting experience, but a former Spruce Grove resident has just the book to help ease the transition.

The paperback is called Living Solo in a Complex World by Jason Sutherland and Diane Miller. It's filled with hints, recipes and other stuff, say the authors.

The two writers give conflicting statements on how they came up with the idea for the book, but decided somehow to write a bachelor cookbook.

"It's more or less a spoof," says Sutherland. (The recipes are not that serious.

Some of the culinary delights include The Old Green Onion Dipstir, Boring Old Meatloaf and Fettucini Somethingo.

But Sutherland says there are a lot of things in the book which can be taken seriously, including recipes and helpful household hints.

"About half are useable and the other half are basically craziness."

The former Grove and Stony Plain resident says the book is aimed at teenagers to people in their early twenties.

"The young single people that are just going out for the first time.

"We've tried to say it in their language," says Sutherland, adding the novel reads more like a message from an older brother or sister than someone's parents.

It took the co-authors about a year to compile and write the book, says Miller, adding it was also independently published.

"We had it in line right from the beginning to do it ourselves," she says, adding the first publishing run printed about 2,000 books.

Response to the book has been really good so far, Sutherland says, and the experience has been a worthwhile one.

Tourism

Alberta's profile increased

Federal Minister of State (Small Business and Trade) Tom Hockin and Alberta Tourism Minister Don Sparrow have jointly announced $1,493,503 in funding through the Canada/Alberta Tourism Agreement to assist a variety of projects throughout Alberta.

"Albertans are clearly turning the tourism industry into a leading economic sector in Alberta," said Hockin. "The tourism agreement supports projects involving marketing, development, hospitality and opportunity analysis."

Sparrow commended the private sector for their efforts. "Through the innovation of Alberta's entrepreneurs, the tourism agreement has increased Alberta's profile in the national and international marketplace."

Healthy environment everyone's concern

Using energy more efficiently puts money in your pocket and helps clean up the environment.

Burning oil and gas releases carbon dioxide, methane and other gases into the air. These gases trap heat in the atmosphere, creating a "greenhouse effect." The result is a gradual warming of the earth that has far-reaching effects on climate and precipitation patterns.

Since 1950, global emissions of carbon dioxide have tripled.

The health of our environment is everyone's responsibility. You can help reduce environmental damage by using energy wisely.

Be sure your home is well insulated. Check for drafts around doors and windows. If your heating system is due for repairs or replacement, consider installing a modern, energy-efficient furnace or a heat recovery ventilator.

Saving energy by recycling

Tossing away a beer can may seem unimportant, but consider this: when you throw away a can, 100 per cent of the energy it took to make it is wasted. When you recycle it, 97 per cent of that energy is saved.

Today we have the technology to recycle metal, glass, paper, motor oil and some plastics.

Even organic materials can be recycled. Gardeners can use kitchen scraps, grass clippings and leftovers from landscaping projects to create a compost heap. In this way, they return nutrients to the soils while safeguarding the environment.

By taking part in a recycling program you can achieve significant energy savings. It's a small step anyone can take that results in a valuable payoff.

Propane and natural gas: An ecological solution

Drivers can help protect the environment by converting their cars to propane or natural gas. These fuels contain no lead and produce only small amounts of carbon monoxide and other substances that contribute to the greenhouse effect and acid rain.

'People are so helpful'

Father Bob Cornell, the new pastor of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church, is extremely pleased with his recent move to Drayton Valley.

"I love it. The people are just so welcoming and so helpful," he says.

Before coming here, Cornell took a renewal course in theology at the University of Notre Dame in Indiana, and prior to that was a pastor at St. Luke's bilingual parish in Montreal.

He was particularly pleased when Archbishop Joseph

MacNeil (Edmonton) named him to Drayton Valley because he wanted to put his "roots" in Alberta.

He was in the militia and regular armed forces for 16 years, and is still in the militia. He has been posted in Edmonton and Cold Lake in the past and has spent the last 15 years (vacations) visiting friends and his "second family" in Edmonton.

Cornell says one of his goals is simply to do his best for the parish and community.

Touring Swedish musicians fall in love with Buck Lake

By Susan Mosicki

Buck Lake resident Edwin Erickson finally had the opportunity recently to play host to 27 Scandinavians (a group of musicians) visiting Alberta at his invitation.

Erickson spent six months in Scandinavia (Sweden and Norway) last year playing his accordion in the style of an old master, Carl Jularbas. He recorded a cassette while there which he says has been selling well.

He became good friends with the members of Jämtbälgen (the group of musicians) and he thought it would be a great idea to have them tour Alberta and play for Canadians.

More than 250 people crowded into the Buck Lake hall Sept. 16 to see Jämtbälgen play.

Earlier in the day, the residents of Buck Lake and surrounding areas put on a small rodeo for the visitors. This was a first for the Scandinavians.

One of the visiting musicians, Hugo Mattson, from Östersund, Sweden, said (translated by Erickson) they enjoyed the tour of Alberta and they particularly enjoyed Buck Lake. "I couldn't believe how people dug in and helped — there must have been 50 people in the rodeo."

Mattson said he will return to Sweden with memories of the Rocky Mountains, hot springs, the big fields and big machinery. He also said, "I can speak for the group. They loved the tour and they love the country."

The group also played for audiences in Red Deer, Calgary and Lethbridge.

They practised at Fairways West Golf Course, and in appreciation of the hospitality shown them by the owners, another of the musicians, Stan Edstrom wrote the "Steele" Golf Polka. Erickson will be returning to Sweden with Jämtbälgen until November.

"I love Sweden and I have to find a way in my life to be in both places," he said.

Edwin Erickson (with first accordion on left) accompanies Jämtbälgen.

Driving tips save energy, prolong life of vehicle

To save energy and to keep yourself and your car in the best physical condition possible, use your automobile only when it is absolutely necessary. If you aren't going far, take the bus, ride your bicycle or walk!

Some economic driving habits

If you drive, try to save energy in the following ways:

- Drive slowly. A car running at 100 km/h consumes 10 per cent more gas than a car running at 90 km/h.

Our Town In Review

Howard Pickup and Dale Gaehering were the only names entered in the mayoralty race.

September 26, 1979

The provincial government announced they would contribute $300,000 into potholes on the town's portion of 50th Street south.

Clean up the Brasseau, was the message a group of Lodgepole residents told MLA Shirley Cripps. The residents wanted the driftwood taken out of the dam reservoir.

The County of Parkland refused a waiver of taxes request by the Drayton Valley Ski Club. The club had asked for a cancellation of $1,200 taxes on facilities at the hill.

Secret sisters exchange gifts

Submitted by Darlene VanEmber

The first meeting of the Drayton Valley Oil Wives club welcomed several new members. Pam St. Laurent lit the friendship candle.

Members were encouraged to pay their dues in order to be eligible for perfect attendance.

During supper Oil Wives caught up with each other's activities over the summer. A number of interesting 'secret' sister gifts were handed out.

A raffle for an Oil Wives club T-shirt was won by Judy Dobransky.

The evening concluded with 12 Oil Wives displaying the latest in fall fashions. The fashions were the creation of two young ladies from Edmonton.

The next supper meeting will be Monday, Oct. 2 at 7 p.m., Elks Hall. Contact Delia for reservations or cancellations at 542-5171.

- Whenever possible, plan your stops. Sudden starts and stops wear out your tires and brakes and increase your fuel consumption.

- Keep an eye on your tires. Buy an air-pressure gauge and check your tire pressure at least twice a month.

- Rotate your tires when they start to wear. If your car has radial tires, replace the back tires with the front ones on the same side. If you have bias-ply tires, change the back tires to the front on the same side. Switch each front tire with its diagonally-opposite back tire.

- Air conditioning can increase fuel consumption by 20 per cent. Try keeping the windows closed and using the air circulation system.

- An engine that runs slowly wastes fuel; in fact, an engine running slowly for one minute burns more gas than it burns when it starts up. If you are waiting in your car, turn the engine off.

The winter car: An energy eater
In cold weather, engines can increase their energy consumption by 30 per cent. At -12 C, your engine heats up only after your car has travelled 15 kilometres. Driving short distances therefore wastes energy and money and should be avoided.

Although winter tires give better traction, replace them with summer tires as soon as the ice melts; winter tires running on dry surfaces increase fuel consumption by four per cent.

Consider buying radial tires which provide a five-per-cent higher fuel economy than bias-ply tires.

If you follow these tips, you will save energy and at the same time prolong the life of your car.

Society finds 21 Alberta children

Last year, the Missing Children Society of Canada reported 56,000 children missing in Canada. At the year's end 1,561 of them were still missing.

The Missing Children Society of Canada was incorporated in November 1986; a registered non-profit organization dedicated to the search for these children.

The society's caseload includes runaways, children abducted by non-custodial parent and children abducted by a stranger.

Every case registered is worked by a team of experienced, licensed investigators, who maintain strict standards of confidentiality and a close working relationship with law enforcement authorities across Canada and the United States.

They have a widespread poster and information distribution program, generally utilized in the more difficult cases where public information is needed to assist in furthering their investigation.

The society also provide a liaison and referral service for searching parents when dealing with the courts, police, lawyers, social workers, counsellors and/or the media.

The services offered by the Missing Children Society are provided free of charge to the searching parent(s). Since its official opening in May 1987, the society has registered 50 cases and successfully closed 26, 21 of which were in Alberta.

Shelterbelt trees offered

Over 2.5 million shelterbelt tree plants are available to Alberta farmers next spring to protect their fields and farmsteads.

One third of the plants have been allocated to farmers who applied early for shelterbelt trees through their district agriculturist. Farmers planning to put in a shelterbelt in the spring of 1990 need to apply as soon as possible for their trees.

Shelterbelt trees are provided free to encourage their use in protecting soil and crops from wind erosion and damage.

The shelterbelt must be longer than half a kilometre and be planted to prevent loss of soil, to reduce wind damage to field crops and to protect production fields, according to an Alberta Agriculture news release. Applicants must also sketch in where and how the trees will be planted in their application.

Free trees are also available to replace trees that didn't establish themselves over the last three years.

AGAST against tax

Canadians AGAST (against the goods and services tax), a group of non-partisan citizens of central Alberta will hold a rally at the Westermar Alexplex at Red Deer, Tuesday, Oct. 10.

AGAST is concerned with the "lack of control of government spending and the prospect of increased taxes through the proposed goods and services tax."

The organization believes there are people throughout Canada who share their concerns and want to get their message across in hopes others may follow their lead.

Dr. Michael Walker of the Fraser Institute will be the key speaker at the rally.

First Call continuing aggressive education campaign

Alberta 1st Call has announced it will continue to be aggressive in educating Albertans about the toll-free "call before you dig" phone number (1-800-242-3447) available for obtaining free site locations.

Membership participation is also mandate for the corporation. Rural and urban municipalities (cities, towns and villages), municipal districts and counties, pipeline companies, gas co-ops and all other owners and operators of subsurface utilities and facilities, are the targets.

The primary objective is to become a true, all Alberta, one-call service within the imminent future. To do this over 200 municipalities and more than 600 other facility owners must become members of the non-profit corporation.

RRAP up your low-income housing renovations

If you are in a low income bracket and your home needs electrical, plumbing, heating, structural or fire safety repairs, try RRAPing them up.

Mary Poloway, RRAP (Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program) coordinator, says RRAP is a home improvement program.

"You have to have a deficiency in one of those major items, then we can do other things — windows, floors, etc."

Poloway says people within the income levels set out in the program can qualify for up to $5,000 in home repairs.

"This is to help low income families stay in their homes under safe conditions," she says.

The maximum amount of $5,000 is divided by five years. If the family stays in the house for the five years, the total amount is forgiven, says Poloway. If, however, the family moves after three years, then $2,000 would have to be paid back.

After two written estimates for all necessary repairs are acquired, they are submitted with information on the applicant to Canada Mortgage and Housing for approval.

Once approval is granted, the repairs can go ahead and the applicant will get the money for the repairs after they have been completed.

The income levels are determined by bedrooms, says Poloway.

"If it's just a man and wife, I would go to the one bedroom column and it says in order to qualify your gross income must be $17,000 (combined income of both people) or less."

The gross income limit goes as high as $26,000 in the five bedroom category.

For more information contact Mary Poloway at 542-5676 in the mornings, or leave a message at 542-5327.

Autumn means time to check home heating system

Leaves are falling. The temperature's dropping. Now is the time for house dwellers to give their heating systems a thorough inspection and do any necessary maintenance.

A properly operated and well-maintained heating system will work most efficiently, safely and economically. Regular maintenance also reduces potential backdrafting, maintains efficiency and improves indoor air quality.

It's a good idea to have a qualified person do a thorough inspection of your furnace system every fall, at the beginning of the heating season. You can call your gas company for a free inspection. They will not do any repair work on your furnace but will advise on what needs to be done. A furnace cleaning or repair service will inspect your furnace for a fee.

In addition to the annual fall inspection, regularly inspect your furnace and do routine maintenance tasks.

For example, you should clean the filter regularly or change it as necessary. The Energy Conservation Branch of the Alberta Department of Energy publishes a free booklet titled Heating System Maintenance that describes do-it-yourself maintenance techniques. Call the Energy Matters inquiry service to order a copy at Zenith 22339. The call will be free.

What about cleaning out the whole system — furnace, ducts and vents? Some people say you should have this done at least once a year. Others think doing it every five to 10 years will suffice.

From an energy-efficient point of view, as long as you're keeping the filter clean and the motor maintained, you're probably going to get efficient service from your furnace.

However, if you're concerned about dust, and especially if anyone in your household is allergic to dust, you may want to have your furnace system power vacuumed on a regular basis or have a more efficient furnace filter installed.

Also, if you've done major renovations to your home, or if you're buying an older home, you'll probably want the system thoroughly cleaned.

Courses swinging into gear

Powerhouse Further Education adult courses swing into high gear this week.

Some of the courses started last week but Powerhouse coordinator Val Tucker says things really get going this week.

Tucker was extremely pleased with the turnout at their recent adult education night.

"It was one of the best ever," Tucker says.

Craft courses were very popular. There was also a lot of interest in the three personal living courses and Tai Chi. Jive was so popular, that two sessions have been arranged and another is being considered.

Unfortunately, only three people signed up for the drivers 55-plus course and 15 were needed. As a result, it has been scratched, at least for the time being.

Drop tax or face mutiny

Guest Editorial

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney must be told to drop plans for a federal sales tax now or face a tax revolt and risk losing the next election.

Given the opportunity, some Leduc Chamber of Commerce members will send that message back to Ottawa with Wetaskiwin MP Willie Littlechild this fall.

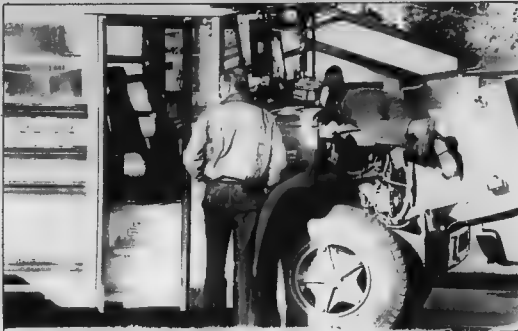

Chamber members resolved to invite Littlechild to a public meeting in November to express their displeasure about the proposed goods and services tax and then repeat their concern in a letter to the federal government.

Littlechild can expect vocal chamber members to describe the tax on most goods and services as a money machine to cram federal coffers at the expense of the consumers and small business. They are angry that the proposed tax strayed from an original commitment to being simple and across the board, calling it a gutless cop-out by politicians who would sooner take heat for increasing taxes in less resistant areas than cut government spending.

It's important that Littlechild hears this message since he insists constituents will support the tax once they understand it. Littlechild describes the proposal as fair, saying it has the potential to broaden the tax base as well as contend with the deficit. Combined with efforts to cut spending, the proposal goes a long way to addressing concerns about fiscal management, he says and adds, people will support the tax if they see it's going toward deficit reduction.

Most Canadians want to deal with our fiscal situation but our choice would be for further reduction in spending, not another confusing tax which will predictably continue to increase and never disappear.

The Conservatives are counting on Canadians-being pragmatic people — to ultimately realize the government needs the money and accept the tax as a necessary evil. What the feds must be told is Canadians aren't so accepting, rather angry and are not going to take it any more. Littlechild should heed this advice because it will be delivered with the threat there will be political consequences if the warning is ignored. —Leduc Representative

Students' dream come true

This school bus broke down in front of St. Anthony school last week. Unfortunately, for some reluctant students, it didn't keep them from getting to school as usual.

Unique safety program introduced

The Alberta government has announced an innovative new safety education program — the Mobile Safety City.

Mobile Safety City, developed for Grade 1 and kindergarten students, takes a creative approach to teaching pedestrian and bicycle safety. Beginning with classroom instruction by a Motor Transport Services' safety education representative, the program culminates in the school gym, where students can travel the streets of the city either on foot, tricycle or scooter and put into practice what they have learned.

Because the city is a mobile facility, safety education is brought to areas outside of urban centres.

"There is no substitute for hands-on experience," says Transportation Minister Al 'Boomer' Adair, "and the Mobile Safety City provides a creative learning environment that is both practical and fun. Because the program travels to the schools, the high cost of busing is not a consideration and safety education is more accessible to smaller areas in Alberta."

It's up!

The new church building in Drayton Valley is now open for service. The building was dedicated on Sunday, September 18, 1988.

Parents hoping to solve school upgrading problem

The Breton Parents' Association met Sept. 19 at the Breton high school with a large number of parents in attendance.

Executive for this year includes Michael Hermanson as president, Tom Incey as vice-president, Ursula Springer will handle the secretary's duties and Linda Steeves is treasurer.

The association is presently actively seeking the modernization that has been promised to the Breton high school for six years. As the school has been recently moved to third on the priority list of Twin Rivers school division, there is concern that once again the high school will be passed

A delegation of parents will be asking for a spot on the agenda of the Oct. 4 meeting of the school board in hopes of resolving the problem.

Breton elementary school has adopted the theme: Together we are the future.

Betty and Keith Blise are the new parents of a daughter, Brittany Ann, who was born Sept. 17 at St. Albert.

Get well wishes to Rose

Saunders and Jim Saunders, patients at the Breton General Hospital.

Card parties at the Funnell Community Centre start Oct. 4 at 8 p.m.

Labor Day was a scene of excitement at the home of Ray and Janet Ellis when all their family and all of Jim Robb's family gathered for a Robb family reunion. Special guests were Bob, Audrey and Sherry Whittaker from Greenfield Park, Quebec. There were 47 people in attendance at the reunion.

Lloyd and Edna Ellis celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Sept. 2 at the Funnell Centre. A highlight of the evening was when eight of Edna's family arrived unexpectedly from Manitoba.

Janet Ellis entered five fairs this year at Breton, Winfield, Buck Lake, Alder Flats and Thorsby. She received top points and a plaque at Winfield and Alder Flats and a second runner-up trophy at Thorsby.

The team trophy is on display at the Treasury Branch in Breton.

Keyboard not a kazoo — shop carefully

By Samia Vallemand
Today's hills are alive with the sound of computerized music. More than 100,000 electronic keyboards are now sold to Canadians each year.

There are small, under-$50 ones in toy stores and more elaborate setups that will cost up to $750 in department stores. Then, the music stores can offer "professional" keyboards and synthesizers and the sky is the limit.

Just who is buying all of these instruments? Pop musicians, certainly. Classical musicians buy them too, but non-professionals make up the bulk of the market for keyboards under $800.

Steinways they are not. Still, a keyboard is not a kazoo. A musical innocent may not be able to use it at all. It helps if a prospective player can at least identify the notes on a piano keyboard and read music. On the other hand, playing a moderately priced keyboard will be much like reading a comic book — fun for a while, but no challenge — if you know a good bit about music. The Consumers' Association of Canada surveyed 41 electronic keyboard models, ranging in price from $55 to $750. It appears manufacturers are adding more and more features to the units each year, yet prices have steadily decreased. Now even some of the less expensive models have sophisticated-sounding features.

Our product information office will be happy to give you a more in-depth look at this subject. Call between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. on weekdays at 420-0747.

Skinner takes gold

Alder Flats News

By Joan Elmont

Alder Flats school welcomes three new teachers this year. Bev Anderson, who taught at Legal last year, will take music, business and grade 7/8 computer.

Fred Frank, teaching for the first time, will take computer, physical education and bio-chemistry.

Alan Welde, who taught at Alder Flats five years ago and has since been teaching at Gwynne, is "glad to be back" and will teach grades 9-12 language arts, the resource room and 9/10 social studies.

A pot-luck supper to welcome all new teachers will be held Sept. 28 at the Alder Flats Legion Hall, commencing at 6 p.m.

Clayton Skinner, who won a gold medal in volleyball at the Summer Games in Brooks also won a gold at Stony Plain when his team defeated Sherwood Park in the Zone 5 playoffs. He also won a bronze at the Western Canadian Elite Games (held in Red Deer) against teams from the four Prairie provinces.

Brother Cordell also won two golds playing on the same team.

A 60th birthday party was held for Stein Edstrom at Em-Tu Town Sept. 11. Edstrom is one of a group of Swedish musicians presently touring Alberta.

Violet Grove News

By Sylvia Davidson

Violet Grove Community Club resumed its monthly meetings Sept. 5.

The annual pig roast supper and dance will be held Oct. 14. Phone 542-4578 or 542-3471 to reserve tickets. Otto and Pat Stordalvoll spent five weeks in Sandanavia this summer, touring Denmark, Sweden and Norway and visiting Otto's sister and brothers in Sweden and Norway.

The Pete Calvert family held their family reunion in the Last West Hall in Rimby July 15.

Art and Betty Frey also held a family reunion in Violet Grove recently.

A warm welcome is extended to Lloyd and Sandy Wright and boys who have moved to the area from Cammore, AB. Harold and Lillian Smithinsky held a card party recently. The winners were Wes and Sylvia Davidson. A video of the Smithinsky's Inuvik, N.W.T. trip was later enjoyed by everyone.

Albert and Edith Grinde vacationed in Hawaii this summer.

Our first bingo held at the 4-H hall Sept. 19 was rewarded with a good turnout. The next bingo is scheduled for Oct. 24 at 7:30 p.m.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Five years of volunteer firefighting haven't changed the reason Mike Dykstra got involved in the first place: to help people.

He was in the Edson fire department for four years before joining Drayton Valley's one year ago.

Dykstra recalls several distressing fire calls over the five years. "Once we were in a house and there were three adults and a child — burned. It's something you never forget, that's for sure."

"Generally, there are more good situations than bad, but they never make up for the bad."

He says, though, when the firefighters manage to save somebody it is really satisfying.

Dykstra and his wife will be proud parents of their first child in a short time.

Health Care Connection

Medical students invited

The Rural Health Care Association of Alberta (RHCAA) is sponsoring a health profession recruitment event called the Health Care Connection - 1989, to be held in Edmonton Sept. 28 at the Coast Terrace Inn.

The purpose is to bring hospital, health unit, and community representatives together with students from selected health care professions to discuss career opportunities in rural Alberta. This event has proven to be an important component of many health care facilities' long-term recruitment strategy.

A 'trade show' style 'connection' provides an informal and relaxed atmosphere for this exchange. About 2,700 students have been invited from the fields of nursing, medicine, physiotherapy, dentistry, occupational therapy, pharmacy, speech pathology, social work and psychiatric nursing.

"More than 30 students who attended the 1988 event chose to pursue the lifestyle and career challenges awaiting them in rural Alberta," says Cynthia Buis, consultant to the RHCAA for this event.

House league action is underway. House league names are: Pine, Spruce, Cedar, Hemlock and Redwood. Two Grade 6 VIP (Values Influence Peers) programs have started.

A heart-felt thanks goes to the many people who contributed to an extremely successful graduation. In particular: Mrs. Prentice, Mrs. Setterlund, Mrs.

Sperling and Mrs. Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Kuhn, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson; and the Kinsmen Club.

Starting up the new high school year is always a bit chaotic, but we are now running smoothly. We appreciate the patience and tolerance of students and parents during the initial stages of the year and assure them that efforts for success are underway.

In spite of the fact that a few teachers and students have been ticketed for violations on 43rd St., it is comforting to see the RCMP ghost car out assuring the safety of the students.

True nature of Christianity hidden behind policies

By Pastor John Martens
Pentecostal Assembly

'Christians' at war?
'Christian' political parties?
'Christian' churches?

It seems the term Christian has become so maligned and misused through the centuries that I somehow doubt the average person really understands what it means.

From the crusades of the Middle Ages to the Inquisition to current day wars in the Middle East, the politics of South Africa, the true nature of Christianity has been hidden behind the policies and practices of the people who carry the banner 'Christian.'

From the Pastor's Pen

One is left watching the latest news wondering what a Christian really is. How would I know a genuine Christian from a fake?

Even Jesus anticipated the problem of false Christianity and said: "Watch out that no one deceives you. For many will come in My name...and will deceive many."

Jesus taught that simply doing something under the name of Christ didn't make a person Christian. Rather, being a Christian results from having a relationship with Christ. He told of a coming judgement day, when those who falsely called themselves by the name of Christ would be told: "I never knew you, away from me, you evil doers!"

The importance of a relationship with God is seen throughout the scriptures. Abraham was called 'the friend of God,' Enoch walked with God, David loved to dwell in the presence of God.

Jesus taught that when anyone loves Him the result will be twofold. Firstly that person will love and obey the teachings of Jesus. Secondly, Jesus said: "My Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our home with him." So fellowship or a close relationship with God results.

God has shown His love to us by sending His one and only Son into the world so that we would live through Him. Everything Jesus did, from the humility of leaving heaven's glory, to the agony of the cross, to the gifts He has now poured out through His spirit, it was and is an expression of God's love.

Jesus' love was costly. It was sacrificial. It unconditionally extended itself to a world that neither loved nor knew love as God intended it. With His life Jesus defined love in a new way for mankind. Love is more than emotion, or passion. Love is dynamic showing itself in actions and in truth, not lies.

Jesus made it very easy to see who was His disciple. He said anyone who loves Him would obey His command. His command was to love others in the same way He loves: in a selfless way, a giving way, sacrificially, with the goal of bringing life to others by drawing them into that same fellowship with God through Jesus Christ.

A real Christian? Though not perfect, he will make a sacrifice, like Jesus, to bring you into a life-giving relationship with God through the Lord Jesus Christ.

New teachers welcomed to community

Three new teachers have joined the staff of Buck Lake school.

Gina Foster, a substitute teacher at Alder Flats and Buck Lake and taught for one year at Alder Flats, is now permanently on staff teaching Grade 4.

Sheila Zimmerman, of Winfield, has her first teaching post with Grade 1.

Robert Lewis, who has spent several years traveling the South Pacific and Europe, has now put down roots in Buck Lake to teach Grade 3.

Challenge, excitement found in joining 4-H

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
Alberta Agriculture

Being in 4-H may be easier than you think. 4-H has fantastic projects, exciting programs and excellent camps, tours and exchanges. 4-H provides an opportunity to gain experiences and meet new friends. It is a challenging and exciting route to the attainment of personal goals.

4-H stands for head, heart, hands and health. These symbolize the objectives of this educational movement for young people. It teaches the head to think, plan and reason; the heart to be kind, true and sympathetic; the hands to be useful, skillful and helpful; and it promotes good health for effective home and community service.

Young people between the ages of 10 and 21 can join 4-H. Together with at least seven other members they can choose from over 30 different projects. In the Drayton Valley district, we now have nine clubs with projects ranging from dairy, swine, beef and light horse to foods, clothing, rodeo and dog training.

Volunteer leaders and assistants also play an important role in 4-H. They attend club and project meetings and act as advisors to the group. Basically though, members run the club themselves—a terrific opportunity to learn leadership skills.

The amount of time involved in 4-H is up to the individual member. As with everything else, the more you put into 4-H, the more you benefit.

For more information on the 4-H program and clubs in your area, contact me at Alberta Agriculture, 542-5368. Being in 4-H is easy, fun and educational. Why not check it out...and learn to do by doing.

Decore denounces Tory secrecy and fiscal woes

By Paul Cudde

Liberal leader Laurence Decore visited the Drayton Valley area and stressed the importance of financial responsibility.

Decore explained a method of fiscal management he termed as an "efficiency audit system" at an Elks Hall luncheon Sept. 29.

The audit system, which Decore used as mayor of Edmonton is simply an internal examination of governmental revenues and expenditures.

By using an audit system, Decore said, the provincial government could make strides in reducing its $10-billion debt.

"It can be done and it will be done by the right party," Decore said.

Decore cited the provincial government's loan of $12 million to Gainer's owner Peter Pocklington as a specific example of Tory mismanagement of finances.

The loan to Pocklington was made on the condition he build a hog-producing plant by Oct. 1, and make renovations to his present plants. Pocklington has received half of the loan.

"So this hog producer has now received $6 million that he has put in pocket."

"Pocklington hasn't even bought the land," Decore said showing a bit of foresight.

On the weekend, it was announced the provincial government was not giving Pocklington the other $6 million because of his failure to meet the conditions of the loan.

Decore is one of four MLAs who are rejecting the provincial 30-per-cent pay raise by returning all but five per cent (cost of living increase) of the hike which he said gave him a "clear conscience."

The opposition leader also spoke out on the Tory government's apparent stifling of freedom of information.

After reading the GAST document, Decore noticed the federal government was planning to tax provinces on all land bought and sold.

Decore's attempt at finding out the amount of land bought and sold by Alberta over a one-year period was unsuccessful as the Tories would not reveal the information.

"There are only three provinces which don't allow freedom of information and I'm sad to say that this is one of them," Decore said.

Decore's visit of Drayton Valley included a stop in Buck Lake for a pancake breakfast, a tour of town hall, and a walk through the streets of the town.

During his walk through town he startled a few residents as he jokingly introduced himself as 'Laurence Decore, mayoralty candidate.'

Decore's visit to Drayton Valley was part of the Liberal party attempt to be more accessible to rural ridings.

The visit also served as a chance for Decore to meet with Garth Werscheler, Liberal candidate for Buck Lake. Werscheler amassed the highest total of votes — 2,828 — for a Liberal candidate in the Drayton Valley/Devon constituency.

Council candidate questions political forum neutrality

By Susan Mosciak

A candidate for council may not attend the political forum this Thursday because he feels it may be biased due to chamber of commerce involvement.

"Some (members of the chamber of commerce) are actively campaigning on behalf of Tom McGee. That's a conflict (of interest)," charged Howard Olsen.

"I happen to think the chamber of commerce is being used by the executive to further their own personal political career," he added.

However, immediate past president of the chamber of commerce, Marty Prentice, says he feels seeking public office is a "logical stepping stone" for board members.

"I fail to see how any moderator or group of people that are arranged by Natalie (Gibson, another council candidate) and Grant (Monsour, chamber president and council candidate) can be unbiased," Olsen says.

"They're (the chamber) appointing the Toastmaster. I can appoint a Toastmaster and say he's neutral, too."

Another candidate, Jean Saunders, said she will be attending the forum and doesn't feel it will be biased, however she said the chamber involvement is a "problem."

"The chamber shouldn't be hosting the election forum when so many are so closely involved. When the president of the chamber (Grant Monsour) is running, that's sufficient involvement. That becomes a problem," said Saunders.

"It not only needs to be fair, it needs to appear fair."

Prentice said there is nothing in the chamber bylaws that would prevent a member from running for council.

"For me, it seems a logical stepping stone. The chamber might even, in a sense, be a good training ground."

"What may happen is if a board member of the chamber does get elected, it may be up to them to resign," said Prentice.

He said it is not unusual for the chamber to sponsor a forum. It has sponsored several political forums in the past including the last municipal election in 1986, the last federal election and second last provincial election. He indicated the reason for no political forum for the last provincial election was lack of time.

The 1983 municipal election forum was sponsored by The Western Review because Drayton Valley did not have an active chamber at the time.

Chamber secretary Karen Kirkwood said the average cost to the chamber to host a forum is approximately $900 to $1,000.

Local News Briefs

Due to a shortage of ice in town the Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association hopes to get some additional ice in Evansburg.

The IGA hopes to move into its new store in early December.

The town has been updating its community directory. When it's completed, copies will be available at the town office.

The Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association hopes to host either the pee wee or bantam provincials this season.

The town is having some problems with some of the heat coils in the seats at the sports centre.

When the new railings were installed, some of the heat coils in the top row were damaged.

The plumbing contractor is looking into this.

The yellow paint on the portables at the Evergreen school is peeling.

The Twin Rivers school division is aware of the problems.

If you couldn't get through to the town office last Monday there was a reason.

For some unknown reason their phones were out of order from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

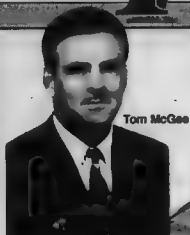

The Baptist Church on 50 Avenue had a retaining wall installed last week in an attempt to keep the water out of the basement.

According to manager Manny Deol, council's plans for a roadway network in the southwest corner of town have been scrapped.

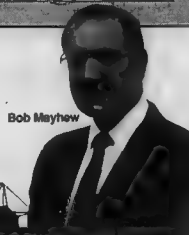

Deol says the town has decided to go with the two present accesses into the sports centre and West Valley Park.

The town will not be participating in any way with the new parking lot at the Eldorado school. Originally, the town was asked to contribute some money to the project.

We asked our mayoralty candidates...

Tom McGee

Bob Mayhew

Q. We've seen some expansion (Jehovah Witness Church) northwest of town, across Hwy 22. Is that the way the town plans to expand?

Mayhew: It's my hope that general expansion will go that way. It's not suited for residential.

McGee: I see light industrial in that area.

Q. What sort of economic growth in the form of a major industry do you see for Drayton Valley?

Mayhew: I'm working on a tree nursery. There's also spinoff from oil and forestry. If the town's run well, there's a chance of attracting industry. I've talked to Taiwan people interested in economic development.

McGee: A wafer board plant that could be built in conjunction with the mill. It would reduce most of the problems the mill has. A tree nursery and other spinoffs that will come in cooperation with the MD.

Q. When will the town take steps to annex Poplar Ridge?

Mayhew: We won't do it without taking it to the MD. It's been discussed.

McGee: Only if the people in Poplar Ridge are consulted and if it's their wish.

Q. There were significant increases in taxes for some residents this year. What guarantees do they have this won't happen again?

Mayhew: The increase was due to the assessment. I don't like that process. I don't see an increase for a long time.

McGee: I maintain we can run the town and services at the tax base we're at with new economic growth. Should have no problem maintaining.

Q. A second indoor arena and the proposed walkway systems are both important. How do you rate them in order of importance?

Mayhew: The first stage of the walkway is a much needed storm management project. Work will start on this next year. I will fight for a second arena. We'll have partners in it. Want to work with the reps.

McGee: The walkway is more than just a walkway. The first stage is a storm water drainage system that's badly needed in town. And a second ice surface should be planned with the users.

Q. What are your three main priorities?

Mayhew: Continued financial responsibility. To see Drayton Valley debt-free. Organized growth of services people want.

McGee: People have to tell me what their desires are. Priorities should be set by the people. To see the town grow in an orderly and sound financial direction. To bring West Valley Park to its greatest potential. Not just for the tourists but for the people of Drayton Valley.

Q. Does the absence of a mental health therapist concern you? And, can council speed up the process to see this position filled with a full-time person?

Mayhew: Not aware of the problem. But, the establishment of an FCSS will help in this regard.

McGee: It concerns me a great deal. FCSS has been a long time coming. It's time we reacted quickly and got this program started.

Q. What's being done to improve on the health concerns emerging from the mill?

Mayhew: The Pelican Steering Committee was established to monitor this. I'm pleased with the job that's being done.

McGee: The government is now concerned with the problems. Through lobbying and cooperation with the mill we can bring the quality of life back to its high standard that people deserve in Drayton Valley.

Q. If the mill was to expand again, would you allow them to add on closer to town? Or, would you ask them to build somewhere else?

Mayhew: With annexation they could move away from the residential area and still be in the corporate limits.

McGee: No. I would rather see them expand to the south.

Q. A lot of local committees have town council appointed chairmen. Why? And will this practice continue?

Mayhew: Communication is easier. Will continue. Hope people aren't slighted.

McGee: Council did this because they thought they were losing control, going in a direction they didn't feel comfortable with. That needs to change. We need to respect the people who serve on the committees who are striving to make Drayton Valley a better place to live.

Q. There's been a lot of talk about tourism. So far it's only been talk. What concrete steps are being taken?

Mayhew: I'm 100 per cent for tourism. We have to make sure the town is ready. One of the best moves we took was joining the Battle River Tourism Association.

McGee: A tourism action committee has been established and they are identifying some of the needs.

Q. Does Drayton Valley attract enough summer traffic to build a fancy tourist booth?

Mayhew: I think we should have a permanent booth in a select location. Not working on a skid shack operation.

McGee: I'd like to see a tourist booth built in conjunction with a museum in West Valley Park. The facility could also house a concession, washrooms, etc. and be the place we hold our Canada Day celebrations.

Q. The consortium has trouble getting funds for courses every year. Do you see the town assisting with this?

Mayhew: I'd like to see a real need for the consortium in town. Will continue to assist.

McGee: Secondary education is of prime importance. Will help in any way I can.

Q. Most towns our size have a museum. We don't. Can town council assist in seeing this dream come true?

Mayhew: Part of my platform is to see this come true. I want to see something different. Something that people will drive out to see.

McGee: I favor this in conjunction with a plan for West Valley Park. The cultural issue should also be addressed. Maybe a small theatre.

Q. If elected, would you be willing to write a bi-monthly column in the Western Review in order to keep people better informed?

Mayhew: No, but I will work in harmony with the paper. Plan to continue the town's newsletter.

McGee: Yes. The paper is a viable tool. It's one of many things a mayor should be doing in the community.

Opinions

Candidates avoiding a serious problem

Candidates in the forthcoming municipal election are talking about a lot of things.

Their election platforms include such projects and issues as a second indoor arena, walkway system, expansion of West Valley Park, tourist booth, campground to continued progress.

But there's one issue most of the candidates seem to be side-stepping.

That's the mill and its related problems.

While we don't hear about the problems of emissions and noise that much anymore, the problems still exist.

Some Drayton Valley residents who live in the southwest corner of town have privately been trying to get something done about the problems. But, without much success.

They've talked to members of town council's appointed Pelican steering committee, town staff and even the former MLA. But the problems are still there.

No one's denying the mill has been good for the local community. People just want to be able to sit on their lawn furniture in their own backyard or patio without getting covered in ash that continues to come from the mill.

A second indoor arena, a walkway system, a park in Aspenview, a new tourist booth and museum are all good projects...but it's time the candidates for council took dead aim at one of the most serious problems in town — the mill.

Ever since the Pelican steering committee surfaced, the community hears very little about any progress. Maybe their meetings should be public and not private.

It's certainly a big enough problem.

Hard working, talented people earn 'bouquets'

A bouquet to everyone connected with the recent graduation ceremonies at Frank Maddock high school.

Several people who attended the day's events have commented on the event. They were impressed to say the least.

Especially with the folder that contained the student's diploma and a sketch of the school. And, also that the student was allowed to keep the cap from their wardrobe.

The yearbook committee is also to be commended for the excellent job it did.

While I'm handing out bouquets, there's some other people I'd like to single out.

Sandy Moroz, who sang One Moment In Time at the conclusion of the grad ceremony. It drew a well-deserved standing ovation.

And, to Tineta Couturier, for her singing at the recent trade fair. Another impressive performance.

Tineta and Sandy are two excellent examples of good local talent.

A funny thing happened during the recent Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association convention in Calgary.

Just as the fire safety awards had been handed out, the fire alarm sounded at the Westin Hotel.

'What does it take to be native?'

Dear Editor,

It struck me today how "Canadian" (myself included) have this problem with identification.

As I sat eating breakfast at a local restaurant, a lovely woman casually and quite innocently asked me if I was English. "No," I said. I hesitated, aware that I caught myself from blurting out "Irish and Scottish."

"Irish?" she asked. That's when it struck home. Hey, I'm not three-eighths Irish, three-eighths Scottish, two-eighths French as I had so deftly calculated and communicated so many times previously.

Dear Editor,

With the help of the people of Drayton Valley, our campaign has reached over $1,000,000 this year!

Beehive officially changes its name

Bruce Nichols is very proud of two announcements he made recently regarding the Beehive.

"We're officially Drayton Valley Association for Community Living," said the executive director.

The name change, according to Nichols, was "an attempt to try and get away from focusing on the disabilities instead of the abilities."

The decision to change the name was unanimous at the annual meeting in June.

Nichols also said he won't be leaving the association to work for Arch Enterprises.

"I've changed my mind. The biggest reason is our association is doing so well...but we've still got a long way to go."

"The association has gone through enough changes."

"The appeal of bigger dollars wasn't enough. I expect to be here at least two (more) years."

Due to the Thanksgiving Day holiday on Monday, Oct. 9 next week's paper will be published on Wednesday.

The Western Review office will be closed on Oct. 5.

The advertising and editorial deadlines for next week's paper will still be Friday noon.

I'm a Canadian. I'm a full-blooded Canadian, damn it! My mother was born here. Her mother was born here. My father and his father were born here. Their flesh and bones were made from the elements of this land, as are mine, and to which they will some day return.

What does it take to be native? How far removed from the ancestral migration must one be before becoming a native? Were not the Indians themselves, at one time, newcomers to this land?

Yes, my ancestors were foreigners. But, I'm not a newcomer! I'm not a foreigner!

This is where I belong. I was born here. I have the right to celebrate my life as a Canadian. A native, full-blooded Canadian.

And, as a member of a troubled world, I'm privileged. Can I now uphold the responsibility of this privilege?

The little things count

Comment

By Susan Mosciold

It really is the little things that count.

One of the more recent 'little things' has been an official name change for the Drayton Valley Association for the Developmentally Handicapped (the Beehive).

From now on, it will be called the Drayton Valley Association for Community Living.

Doesn't that have a nice ring to it? For an association that is dedicated to getting the clients out into the community and helping them fend for themselves, a name that includes handicapped seems somewhat of a handicap in itself.

Emphasizing abilities rather than disabilities in this manner can only be a change for the better.

These people are testing their wings in rough air that many of us navigate with ease. It's nice to see the wind blowing with them instead of against.

Facility granted accreditation certificate

The Drayton Valley and District Health Complex has received notification that the facility has been granted a two-year accreditation certificate.

The official accreditation comes on the heels of a survey team's visit to the hospital in mid-May.

The hospital was notified by the Canadian Council on Health Facilities Accreditation.

According to a letter from hospital board chairman Arnold Jorgensen, the accreditation council recognized that all areas of the hospital were functioning at an above-average level. Some concerns were noted in the quality assurance program and pharmacy services which prohibited a maximum three-year award.

Accreditation is a certificate program resulting in a snapshot assessment of the standard care provided by the health facility compared to recognized standards of care throughout Canada. The process involves an in-depth review by an external health care body looking for evidence of quality clinical records, staffing standards and professional qualifications of staff.

"This status gives assurances to the citizens of the district that health care is provided at a standard acceptable to the accreditation council," Jorgensen stated.

On behalf of the board, Jorgensen expressed his sincere thanks to all the medical and hospital staff in achieving accreditation status.

Public offered opportunity to question candidates

Candidates vying for seats on town council in the upcoming municipal election have been invited to attend a political forum Thursday (Oct. 5) at 7 p.m. in the Legion hall.

The forum will be coordinated by the chamber of commerce and moderated by an unbiased Toastmaster from Edmonton.

The two mayoralty candidates (Bob Mayhew and Tom McGee) will have a maximum of 10 minutes each for their speeches and the councillor candidates will each have the opportunity to speak for three minutes. The moderator will choose the order of the speeches, and randomly draw for the candidates' seating positions.

The public will also have the opportunity to ask questions of the candidates.

Questions will be limited to one minute and directed to only one candidate. They will be restricted to municipal issues. Questions that continually address the same issue will be monitored to ensure a fair cross-section of issues is covered.

The candidate will be allowed two minutes to respond.

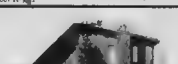

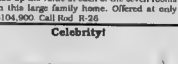

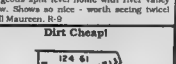

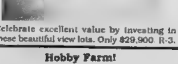

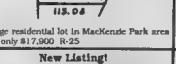

Questions of an abusive or slanderous nature will not be allowed.

Walkway has dual purpose

The town hopes to cure one of its major drainage problems next year.

Council is currently looking at plans for a storm management project along 43 Street.

If the project goes ahead as council hopes, it will also serve as the first phase of a walkway proposal currently being investigated.

According to Councillor Tom McGee, the town has already started lobbying with the provincial government to see if they will cost share in the drainage project.

McGee says the town has experienced severe water problems along 43 Street. In some cases, the water has got into the high school.

The intention of the storm management project is to build a swale, starting near Celebrity Heights and extend it all the way north. There it would hook up with a swale already in place, then take the water into the Northview pond.

Plans call for the swale to be built along pipeline right-of-way on the east side of 43 Street.

While the main purpose of the swale will be to carry water, it will also double as the first phase of a walkway.

McGee sees the walkway being used for walking, jogging and bikes in the summer with cross-country skiing a good possibility in the winter months.

While anticipation of the walkway proposal grows, the town will continue to talk with the provincial government to see if they are interested in cost sharing the much-needed drainage project.

Poplar Ridge/Country Style residents can't vote Oct. 16

Residents living west of 80 Street will not be allowed to vote in Drayton Valley's municipal election on Oct. 16.

Town manager Manny Deol says this will include the residents of the Poplar Ridge and Country Style trailer parks.

The Elks Hall will be the only poll in Drayton Valley. The poll will be open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Review wins major awards

The Western Review has won three major awards in the Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association (AWNA) annual competition.

The paper took seconds for best all-round newspaper and editorial page in its class that included papers with a circulation between 3,000 and 4,999.

And, Steve Fletcher's photo taken during last year's Remembrance Day services earned him a third in the human interest category. Fletcher is now on staff at the Grande Prairie Daily Herald Tribune.

All three awards were presented at the recent AWNA fall convention in Calgary.

Earlier this year The Western Review earned a third for the best sports photo in the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association competition.

Two years ago The Western Review was awarded a special award of merit for its "A Year In The Life of Drayton Valley" feature in its year-end edition. It also captured thirds for best editorial page and front page.

Steve Fletcher's winning photo was taken during last November's Remembrance Day services in Drayton Valley. It shows RCMP Const. Doug Hill assisting one of the ladies who laid a wreath at the cenotaph.

Light problems solved

By Susan Moscioli

All of the problems regarding the installation of traffic lights in Drayton Valley have been resolved, according to town councillor Howard Olsen.

Olsen said the work would progress this week without any cost to the town.

The Electrical Protection Branch and TransAlta Utilities have approved a three-metre clearance from overhead power lines, said Olsen. This was the "norm" until recently, he added.

The power poles will be raised, some of the concrete bases will be moved slightly, and the flat tops of streetlight poles will be cut off and recapped, thus providing the clearance required.

Taking aim

Jack Bannard's back yard serves as a trap range.

Trap enthusiasts take to back yard

By Paul Cudla

The growing sport of trap shooting has taken hold in Jack Bannard's back yard.

Bannard has been shooting for about six years, but has just gotten "serious" about it this year.

"I've only missed about two weeks since July," Bannard said.

Bannard's back yard trap-shooting range is part of the Evergreen Shooting Club and serves members of the club who are void of a range — for the time being.

The Evergreen Club hopes to have a fully equipped permanent range at their site in place by next season and Bannard is hopeful the range will attract some new members.

"I'm hopeful that it will really catch on out here."

"Once we get the trap range, I'd like to see the membership jump."

The makeshift range at Bannard's, about eight miles west on the Cynthia highway, has hosted up to 11 shooters at once for Wednesday evening shoots. Weather permissible, the trap-shooting range has been active every Wednesday night since July.

"I just come out to relax and shoot a few rounds."

"I enjoy hunting but once I started shotgun, I enjoyed it more."

Since a friend got him started in trap shooting Bannard said he "kind of got hooked."

"It sharpens your senses. There's a lot of guys who strictly trap-shoot as a full-time hobby."

Shotgun enthusiasts who would like to stay sharp between hunting trips still have plenty of time to try out Bannard's range as he says it will stay open until "the snow gets too deep to shoot."

Derby entries double

Rick's Fishing Derby is a way of verifying those slightly exaggerated catches.

This year, there are numerous anglers in the pursuit of truth in fishing.

"Entries have been way up this year," Colin Donovan, manager of the fishing department at Rick's, said.

Donovan has received 35 entries so far, in five different categories — pike, trout, walleye, perch, and Rocky Mountain whitefish. The 35 entries represents a doubling in the amount of entries received at the same time last year.

The derby began May 20 and runs until Oct. 10.

The luckiest/most skillful angler in each of the five categories wins $100 worth of tackle.

"Although the fishing has not been all that good this season, our entries are up," Donovan said, adding high water levels have caused problems for fishers.

The fishing derby is open to everyone and accepts entries at a small fee for the first weigh (entrants pay for the first weigh only, the rest are no charge). Any fish caught in Alberta is eligible except those caught in private ponds.

Club fees to increase

Due to a large bank loan the executive at the Drayton Valley golf club is looking at a major increase in membership fees.

If the new fees are accepted by the members at their Oct. 26 meeting, memberships for both men and women will jump from $260 to $350 and the family membership will go from $530 to $700.

"We have a terrific bank loan ($550,000) to pay," says club president Vi Helm.

Membership and green fees are a major revenue for the club.

Helm says a couple of alternatives would be to turn the club over to the bank or allow private ownership to run it.

She doesn't like either one of those options.

The club did not raise its membership fees this year.

And, memberships jumped from 575 to 631 this year.

A good turnout is expected at the Oct. 26 meeting, 7 p.m., at the clubhouse.

Clayton Skinner

Skinner passing knowledge

Clayton Skinner, a member of the Alberta South volleyball team that took gold medals in the summer games in Brooks, is now passing on some of his knowledge to a girls team in his school.

Skinner is helping coach the team at Alder Flats school in basic skills including blocking, hitting, attack and defence coverage. He has his Level I in coaching.

The 16-year-old has been playing volleyball since Grade 8, and is now still very involved in Grade 11.

"My goal is to make the juvenile team (16-17yrs.)," says Skinner.

In one manner or another, Skinner says his intention is to stay involved.

"If I can't make a paying job at it I suppose coaching would be something I'd enjoy."

Yzerman keeps active on ice as coaching assistant

By Paul Cudla
The game of hockey is in Mike Yzerman's blood.

So in order to keep his interest in hockey active, Yzerman has volunteered his services as an assistant coach with the bantam (15 and 16 year old) selects team.

"I like hockey and basically I'll use any excuse to get on the ice," Yzerman says.

Yzerman moved to Drayton Valley about a month ago to take the position of social worker with the Department of Social Services.

"I enjoy it so far, the work and the people. It's been a while since I lived in a small town," Yzerman says.

And if Mike's last name looks and sounds familiar it's because his younger brother Steve is the captain of the Detroit Red Wings.

In appreciation
Volunteer coach
Mike Yzerman

Mike started coaching in hockey schools with his brother Steve about 10 years ago.

"I've had enough experience with hockey that I think I have something to give. It's (coaching) a good way to get out in the community and meet people."

Yzerman says he has always enjoyed working with children as his job as a social worker proves, and he is looking forward to coaching hockey at the bantam age.

"The age group is interesting. They start to play an adult brand of hockey."

The bantam team has been practicing for about two weeks now, and Yzerman has noticed that skating seems to be one team strength.

"The strong part about the kids up here is that they skate well."

"At the bantam level it is very hard to teach someone how to skate."

The bantam team looks to be a team which plays Yzerman's favorite style of hockey.

"The team has some size. I like a team that's fast and physical.

"You want a team that will do the corner work as opposed to having a dipsey-doodle team."

Starving fall fish waiting for fishermen

In the fall, most outdoor enthusiasts turn their thoughts to hunting. Being an avid hunter myself, I can hardly blame them for that.

However, I can also tell you that using every spare moment in pursuit of furs and feathers in fall is a mistake, for this is the time fishing comes to a peak.

Fish must store energy to make it through the long winter, and they are very hungry at this time of year.

So while you're sharing the woods with more hunters than game, the lakes and rivers are jumping with starving fish. The only thing missing is you.

In autumn, the char species (brook and bull trout) are in the pre-spawn stage. Spawning requires great amounts of energy and this nutrition is derived from many sources, including aquatic beetles, nymphs, and minnows. Your best choice of

Focus on Fishing

By Colin Donovan
Local avid fisherman imitations include backswimmers, dragonfly nymphs, streamer patterns or rapalas.

That is not to say that bait fishing won't work just as well.

Fall also sees an increase in activity among rainbow, walleye, pike, and perch. For rainbow, the aforementioned lures work very well, while for the others, minnows, jigs, and deep-diving crank baits are all effective fish

Rocky Mountain whitefish are also spawning now, and a Big game hunting season on horizon

By Paul Cudla

With the local big game hunting season on the horizon fish and wildlife Officer Fred Kreiser is stressing two basic hunting regulations.

"Hunting on occupied land and species identification are the two biggest things," Kreiser says.

White-tailed deer, mule deer, moose and elk hunting opens for the area west of Highway 22 on Oct. 30.

"The largest complaint area I have is hunting on private property," Kreiser says.

Kreiser said it is up to the hunter to gain permission to hunt on private land.

"The regulations are clear enough. The onus is on the hunter."

Ignorance is no excuse according to Kreiser, as detailed maps are available at any map distribution centre.

Doing homework is an important aspect of the hunter's responsibility.

Hunters are encouraged to pick up guides at the fish and wildlife office so they are aware of what areas are open and can easily identify the species of big-game they are looking for.

● Hunting violations can be reported 24 hours a day, seven days a week, by calling 1-800-642-3800.

● Anyone interested in a hunter's education course should contact fish and wildlife before Oct. 6 at 542-6767.

This fall there are several outstanding and informative conferences just for coaches throughout all of Alberta.

The big one is the third annual provincial coaches symposium, co-sponsored by the Alberta Sport Council and Alberta Recreation and Parks, which is being held Oct. 12 to 14 at the Edmonton Inn.

About 100 Zone 4 coaches are expected at that zone's conference Oct. 21 in Red Deer. "Coaching our youth" is the theme and guest speakers include a top sport psychologist as well as top ranked coaches.

Educational sessions will be the highlights at Zone 5's two coaching conferences - Oct. 21 in Hinton and Nov. 18 in Morinville.

In addition to educational sessions relating to the psychological and physiological aspects of coaching, there is an impressive list of guest speakers, all of whom have coached athletes to Olympic medals.

ASSE offers students unique opportunity

"Qualified high school students are offered a unique opportunity to spend an academic year or summer holiday in Scandinavia, Germany, France, Switzerland, Britain, Holland, Spain, Australia, New Zealand or the United States, Italy or Mexico as part of the ASSE international student exchange program," says Ben Hannan, Canadian director of ASSE.

"Until a few years ago, only a fortunate few could afford to spend a school year or summer abroad. Now, ASSE has changed all that," he says.

Students, 15 to 18 years old, qualify on the basis of academic performance, character references and a desire to experience life abroad with a volunteer host family.

"ASSE families abroad are carefully screened to provide a caring environment in which students can learn the language and culture of their host country," explained Hanna. Summer exchange students live with a family abroad who speak some English. Academic year students need not have learned a foreign language as they receive language and cultural instruction as part of the ASSE program. ASSE students attend regular high school classes along with their new teenage friends.

"ASSE exchange students learn by living the language and culture of their new host country," adds Hannan.

Students or families interested in more information about the ASSE program should contact David Hatto at (403) 797-3950.

Man charged for prowling

A 32-year-old Calgary man will be appearing in Drayton Valley provincial court later this month following three separate incidents Sept. 22, including one where a woman in bed scared a man out of her bedroom.

Michael Anthony Steele has been charged with one count of unlawfully being in a dwelling house, and two counts of prowling at night upon the property of residences concerned.

In less than one hour, a man was observed standing in the bedroom of a local residence, on top of a garden shed right beside a second house with an indication of entering, and prowling in the back yard of yet a third residence.

All three incidents occurred between 43 and 45 Avenues, and 54 and 56 Streets.

Steele will appear in court Oct. 19.

Winfield high running low

The future of the Winfield high school is still hanging in the air because of low enrolment.

"We've lost a lot of students," said vice-principal Rod Drebert.

He said there are only 11 high school (Grade 9-11) students in the school and they are using distance learning to provide courses for them.

Grade 12 students were sent to Breton high school in September because only six were enrolled for the 1988/89 school year.

As far as next year goes, Drebert says, "We'll wait and see. It doesn't look very promising."

PUBLIC NOTICE

The following letter was received from Municipal Affairs:

Dear Mayor and Council:

On August 3, 1989, Municipal Advisor Garth Bancroft conducted a follow-up to the Municipal Corporate Review completed in 1988.

I reviewed such documents as minutes, by-laws, the financial system and policies relevant to your municipal operations.

The council meetings are continuing to be conducted in an effective and efficient manner. The council and administration are working together to achieve the best economical growth and operation for the Town of Drayton Valley. One system recently implemented is the reading of water meters and billing of water meters with Northwestern Utilities. This has not only reduced costs but achieved a system that is beneficial to the ratepayers of the Town of Drayton Valley. I commend council and administration for undertaking the initiative to implement such a program.

The financial reports were not available when attending the municipal office of the Town of Drayton Valley. This is due to a change from one computer system to another. With near completion of the computer system, the flow of information will increase to council. This is important when making decisions regarding financial matters.

The by-laws were completed to date and cover the operations of the Town of Drayton Valley.

The completion of an organizational chart ensures an appropriate chain of command. I noted that the Town of Drayton Valley has an organization chart. However, there was some discussion regarding changes which may occur within the treasury. I would suggest that a review of personnel and responsibilities may assist when making a final decision regarding treasury.

The overall operations of the Town of Drayton Valley are good.

Yours truly,

Garth Bancroft
Municipal Advisor

Agriculture fair participants' enthusiasm undampened

Winnie Hammerlind, (left) with Cecil Anderson, shows off her awards.

Unseasonably wet summer weather did not dampen the spirits of Agriculture Fair participants who withstood the elements and submitted entries.

"We had a good fair considering the weather we had was not conducive," Olga Brown, fair chairman, said.

The 16th annual Agriculture Fair ran Aug. 26 and 27 and had 90 exhibitors and about 1,700 entries. Awards for the fair were handed out Sept. 23 at the Masonic Hall.

Winnie Hammerlind took two of the major awards as she captured the grand aggregate and senior citizens' aggregate. Junior aggregate winner was Janice Vanderwell. The family aggregate award was shared by the Tinney and Vanderwall families.

A total of $2,300 was handed out in prize money to award winners.

Brown said the amount of entrants was lessened because of the weather but added "the quality of displays was excellent."

Seba Beach took the school trophy for presentations as they beat out Everygreen, Eldorado, Tomahawk, and Lindale. Schools totalled 900 displays this year.

Drayton Valley crops coming off slow

By Shaun Polcser
Drayton Valley area farmers are starting to make headway against the frequent rains through late August and early September that have delayed harvesting and affected the quality of crops across the province.

During that time, about two-thirds of the days had rain, which made it difficult for farmers to get machinery on the fields without getting stuck in mud and causing severe rutting.

The delays from the poor weather also affects the quality of the yield, deteriorating the longer the crop sits in the field.

District agriculturalist for the Drayton Valley area, Elaine Ryl, said that even though field conditions were improving with the recent spate of nice weather, bushel weights were down, and the cereal crops had shown a darker color, an indication of weathering.

Widespread killing frosts in the first week of September did nothing to improve the situation. Some area farmers reported frost two nights in a row and the temperature plunged to as low as minus seven in some places.

"There will be lower quality grain this year," said Ryl. She estimated about 50 per cent of the grain crop was off the field, and that at least one more week of decent weather would be all that's needed to get the figure up around 85 per cent for the district.

She added those figures were highly variable across the region.

"Some producers haven't even been able to get on the land yet, while others are almost finished."

Some areas where farmers were having difficulty are around Breton, Tomahawk, and Alder Flats where drainage is not as good as it is in other areas of the district.

"They're getting stuck a lot," Ryl added.

In spite of the slow going on cereal crops, progress on the hay crop is going well. Although the first cut is proving to be of low quality, the second cut is coming along much better, said Ryl, who expects cutting and baling should be completed shortly.

There is a bright side in all the gloomy news, however. In some places hit by drought and low water tables over the last few years soil moisture has been replenished and dugouts are full, which could mean improved seeding conditions in the spring.

FMHS welcomes several exchange students

By Shaun Polczar
The world is becoming a smaller place to live each day, and more and more, people are becoming citizens of earth.

This is the general consensus of members in the International Students Club at Frank Maddock high school, who are learning to see the similarities in people from foreign lands and cultures through their differences.

The club is a collection of exchange students whose various nationalities literally span the entire globe. They are in Drayton Valley for the current school year to experience the lifestyle and landscape of Western Canada, and to share that experience with their hosts.

The net result is an understanding and kindred between friends which promises to bring nationalities closer together.

Georgianne Rurka and Michelle Smeland, two students at Frank Maddock, say the function of the group is to help exchange students with any difficulties or obstacles they may face while adjusting to new surroundings.

"We help them with any problems they might have with school, teachers, the language, or anything else," says Michelle, who acknowledges it is not always easy being a stranger in a strange land.

She went to West Germany last year on the exchange program, while Georgianne studied in Quebec.

Together, they organize shopping trips into the city, movies, and other activities. This winter they plan to go skiing in Jasper, and recently celebrated the 17th birthday of Ana Isabel Duro Fernandez, who is from Santiago de Compostela in Spain.

"Big country...lots of open spaces...the world is a small place to live..."

In all, nine exchange students are attending FMHS. They have only been in the country for about a month now, and already they have no shortage of good things to say about Canada.

Clifford Jerred, 16, from a town called Ware north of London, says he likes Canada because "it's a big country, with lots of open spaces," and described his thrill of seeing a moose cross the road one night.

Kristina Bear, 17, from Hamburg, West Germany likes "the friendly people" and "West Edmonton Mall," while Axl Kling Von Schultz, 18, also from West Germany, likes the fact that Canada is not as crowded as Europe seems to be.

He is currently taking driver training to get his licence, which is considerably cheaper than it is in Germany.

Marianna Mattedi, 16, is from Salvador, Brasil; Jennifer Kwong, 19, comes from Hong Kong; Laura Patiño, 18, resides in Mexico City; while Karina Marquis, 15, is from northern Quebec.

Richard Meje came on an exchange last year from the Philippines last year, and is currently applying for citizenship.

Michelle readily agrees that exchanges such as these make the world smaller.

"It's so hard to believe that I was half-way around the world and now I'm back," she says, pausing to gaze at her new friends and nod her head in a combination of appreciation and approval. "Yes, the world is a small place to live."

Representatives of the globe: This collection of exchange students at Frank Maddock high school come from every continent but Africa and Antarctica. They will billet with Drayton Valley families for various terms throughout the school year.

Lions continue recycling

Despite low prices the Drayton Valley Lions Club has decided to continue operating its paper recycling project.

Erich Wagner, spokesman for the Lions, says prices dropped from $60 per ton a year ago to a high of $20 all the way down to a low of $5.

So far the Lions have sent four semi-trailer loads (35,000 pounds) of paper into an Edmonton plant and received approximately $250 per load.

Most of the money is going back into community projects.

Wagner says the Lions, who initiated the project, had a long discussion on the prices, labor and total operation. "It's been a lot of work," he admitted.

Plans are for a second paper outlet in town. The location hasn't been decided on.

At the present time a paper shed is located behind the Beehive Workshop.

It would be appreciated if people dropping off paper, would use paper bags and not plastic. "The plastic gums up the machines," Wagner says.

Protection plan is extended

Agriculture is one of Alberta's most important economic sectors, and as our major renewable resource industry, will continue to play a leading role in Alberta's future.

Alberta's farmers have always had to contend with outside forces such as international subsidy wars, weak price situations, and damaging weather conditions. Farmers and ranchers have no control over these factors which affect their productivity and ability to sell.

Because this government is committed to ensuring long-term viability of our agriculture sector we have, over the years, implemented programs and policies to help offset these problems. One such policy is the commitment to reducing farm input costs.

On Sept. 18 the minister of agriculture announced a one-year extension to the Alberta Farm Fertilizer Price Protection plan. The plan will now continue until July 31, 1990. This extension gives advance notice of program deadlines to help Alberta farmers with their future planning and is in response to changes in the needs of Alberta farm families.

Alberta farmers buy about $300 million worth of fertilizer each year. Fertilizer payments can represent as much as 30 per cent of a producer's cash input costs, so the price protection plan

Report from the Legislature

Will

has been a very important part of this government's strategy to help reduce farm input costs.

The program extension is estimated to be worth savings of about $21 million to the province's farmers. To date, the protection plan has paid out in excess of $75 million to more than 39,000 Alberta farmers.

With the extension, fertilizer purchased and applied up to July 31 will be eligible for the fertilizer rebate. Farmers have until Jan. 31, 1991 to submit claims under the program.

The program will continue to pay grants calculated on the basis of $50 per tonne of actual nitrogen and $25 per tonne of actual phosphate used during the eligible period. The program covers fertilizer used on Alberta farmland only. Eligible applicants can include individual farmers, corporations, partnerships and other organizations farming land owned, leased or rented for the purpose of crop or forage production.

Re-elect Geoffrey (Geoff) Hampton

Councillor

Division 7

County of Parkland

To the Electors of Division 7

Over the past three years, I have, as I promised in 1986 done my best to make Division 7 a better place to live in. During the past 2 years a large area around Tomahawk and Moon Lake have become part of Division 7. I have addressed concerns expressed by people in these areas and will continue to do so if re-elected, treating all residents of Division 7 in a fair and equal manner.

The roads in Division 7 have been a challenge, particularly this year. New approaches to grading and maintenance are being applied and new methods of dust control experimented with. Up-grading and oiling of rural roads will continue within, of course, budget allowances. 757 and 759 secondary Highways are being rebuilt and OH BOY. 759 will be paved next spring. 624, the bath of the public works dept. has to be next for rebuilding.

Manned landfill sites are now established in our Division reducing drastically, unnecessary fires and blowing garbage. At the moment the provincial Government is conducting a survey for a regional waste disposal system for the County of Parkland. This is a vastly improved method of solid waste disposal.

I worked hard to get a fire truck into the Seba Beach area and was delighted when an up-graded ambulance service was established in Entwistle, for the general area of Division 7.

My school responsibilities have proven no less challenging and exciting than the municipal ones. Working with Mrs. Capps, trustee for Entwistle, brought many improvements both physical and academic to that school.

At Seba, the only E.C.S. to Grade 12 school in Parkland, the grounds have been newly landscaped, tennis courts have, in cooperation with the Summer Village of Seba Beach, been built, the grounds fenced and a field trip bus acquired.

I am becoming acquainted with the Tomahawk school, it's concerns and enjoy my visits to school functions meeting parents, pupils and staff.

The knowledge and experience I have gained in the past three years give me the ability to serve you better as your councillor for another term.

So re-elect Geoffrey (Geoff) Hampton. Be confident that the same genuine concern for dealing with your problems will continue and be assured that all areas of Division 7 will be treated in a fair and equal manner.

On October 16, 1989 Vote Hampton: Geoffrey

Yellowhead East gets BDC grant

The Community Futures Committee of Yellowhead East will receive $2,185,000 over the next five years to establish a business development centre (BDC) and $702,000 to implement the Self-Employment Incentive Options of Community Futures, a part of the Canadian Jobs Strategy.

The business development centre option will assist small business in the creation of permanent employment through business advisory and investment funds. New and existing businesses will be able to use the centre's services.

The first year of funding for the BDC will amount to $150,000 in operating funds and $250,000 in investment funds, and funds in succeeding years will depend on the operational success of the business development centre and the demand for its services. Financial support from the government for the centre is available for up to five years.

The self-employment incentive option allows unemployed workers to test new business ideas. Grants in the form of allowances in lieu of unemployment insurance or social assistance benefits can be provided for up to one year so they can establish new business.

Community Futures is geared to helping workers in communities which have serious economic problems but show potential for growth.

Yellowhead East was selected for Community Futures support in July 1988. Since then, a committee chaired by Bernie Hornby has assessed community needs and has examined the options available under the program.

The Community Futures committee may recommend one or more program options under Community Futures to support small business development and to help workers start businesses, learn new skills or relocate to seek jobs.

History forecasts strong voter turnout for Oct. 16 election

By Frank Ryan
If history repeats itself, there should be a good turnout at the municipal election Oct. 16.

According to Western Review files dating back to 1971, the turnout at the polls was much better when there was a mayoralty race.

In 1986 when Mayor Bob Mayhew was returned by acclamation his competitor this time round, Tom McGee, led the councillors' race with 480 votes. Jean Saunders followed by 452, Howard Olsen had 408, Charlie Miner 400, Alex Salfi 398 and Dave Lundberg 373.

Six years ago when Mayhew defeated Alex Salfi by 200 votes in the battle for mayor, Claire Carefoot led the councillors with 1,134 votes. Emile Lambert was next with 981 followed by Charlie Miner with 859, Tom McGee 856, Howard Olsen 783 and Bill Panice 690.

Another mayor's race in 1980 when Mayhew defeated Nevis LaBranche by 99 votes, also drew impressive totals for the councillors. Charlie Miner led the parade with 737 votes followed by Ken Koskinen with 716, Alex Salfi 695, Lorna Haley 684, Robert Booth 673 and Jim Wolff 593.

A three-way race for mayor in 1977 also drew a good turnout. LaBranche led the mayors' race with 473 votes followed by Claude Albert with 346 and Maurice Snelgrove with 288. Alan Day led the councillors with 849 votes followed by Terry Mulgrew with 767, Bob Long 765, Howie Jansen 751, Jeanette Vatter 663 and Alex Salfi 636.

Another mayoralty race in 1974 created a lot of interest. Lloyd MacLean defeated Al Chesterman 353 to 281 in the race for mayor.

Bob Huber led all councillors with 465 votes followed by Nevis LaBranche 380, Fred Baumann 387, Claude Albert 348, Betty McGee 310 and Fred Holton 302.

When Lloyd MacLean was elected mayor by acclamation in 1971 the councillors vote was done.

R. Smith topped the councillors with 380 votes followed by Mary Helm 358, Mrs. C. Waugh 367, Bob Mayhew 358, Bob Huber 355 and Alex Zubot 267.

Wall damage a mystery

RCMP are investigating a damaged wall at the Evergreen school.

Principal Chris Kelly says the wall, in the Grade 6 entrance way on the west side of the elementary school was smashed. The hole is about three feet in diameter.

The stucco and a plastic liner in the wall were removed. According to Kelly, it's a mystery why anybody would damage the wall.

Love is teacher's greatest reward

By Shaun Polcozer

For Kathy Hall, being awarded a provincial recognition certificate for excellence in teaching was better than winning the lottery.

"I was really excited when I found out," she said. "I was on the phone and started jumping up and down — everybody thought I had won the lottery, but it was actually better than that."

Hall was one of 153 teachers chosen from across the province to receive a first-tier local recognition award for excellence in teaching.

From these 153 teachers, 20 were selected to receive provincial recognition at the first annual excellence in teaching awards ceremony to be held in Calgary Nov. 4.

The excellence in teaching awards were developed by the Council on Alberta Teaching Standards in consultation with the Alberta School Trustees' Association, the Alberta Teachers' Association, the Conference of Alberta School Superintendents, the Alberta Federation of Home and School Associations, the Association of Private Schools and Colleges, and Alberta Education.

To be eligible, a teacher must have been certificated and teaching at a school in Alberta.

Hall won the award for her contributions to the special education program she has been teaching at Evergreen school in Drayton Valley for the last seven years.

She currently teaches grades 4, 5, 6 and 9 with a variety of learning disabilities that range from poor hearing, slow learning, to mental handicaps and autism in a class called the Opportunity Room.

Rather than teaching curriculum per say, Hall specializes in individualizing curriculum so it is easier for the children to learn it.

More important than the award, for her, is the love she receives from those she teaches, which is ultimately the biggest, and best, reward, she says.

"I get love back from them," she admits, "unrestricted, unconditional, love. They're my kids, not my students, but my kids."

The recognition from winning the award is important because it shows somebody appreciates the work she is doing, something which she says feels all teachers deserve more of.

"There is no way I could have won this without all the support from everybody else — the teachers' aids, the staff, and the administration. Only part is done by me," citing the influence of the whole learning environment on a child's developmental

MAP organizes local chamber

A chamber of commerce management assistance program (MAP) is helping the local chamber to be a better organization and more effective to its members, says chamber president Grant Monsour.

The program, sponsored by Alberta Economic Development and Trade, involved chamber members from Drayton Valley, Red Deer, Ponoka, Wetaskiwin, Camrose, Rocky Mountain House, Leduc, Caroline, Innisfail, and other areas.

Workshops and counselling phases over the past four months focused on strengths and weaknesses of the chambers, and encouraged them to develop skills to strengthen them.

"Overall our rating is pretty good," Monsour said. "But we are not properly identifying what we do to our membership. The membership doesn't fully understand our role."

"The chamber has been given a framework for setting a mission statement."

The purpose of the program was to give insight into what the chambers can do to improve their services to members and the community.

"It all comes from the basic premise that the government feels the chambers are very important in the community," said Monsour.

PUBLIC NOTICE
RURAL ROAD NUMBERING SYSTEM

The Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77 has been implementing a road numbering system east of the Saskatchewan River, which is the same as presently in place west of the river. You may have noticed these signs being installed over the past several months.

The system is similar to street numbering in towns and cities. All north/south roads have been assigned a Range Road Number increasing from east to west. The east/west roads have been assigned a Township Road Number increasing south to north. Roads that do not follow the standard grid system and some main roads have been assigned a formal name (e.g. Oakes Bay Road).

The road numbers relate to the ranges and townships in which the roads are situated. To illustrate, the following is the numbering system for Range 5, Township 48 south of Cartwood.

TOWNSHIP 48

RANGE 5

You will note that the east range line is assigned Range Road number 50. The next range road one mile west is Range Road 51 and the numbers continue to increase each mile westerly to the next range line (Range Road 60). Similarly, Township Roads begin on the South boundary and increase numerically to the north. In this example, Township Road 480 is in fact Secondary Highway 616 and is numbered as such. Also, Range Road 53 has been assigned the formal name Greenwood Lake Road.

The Rural Road Numbering System will assist both emergency services and the general public in locating and describing the roads in our community.

Getty speaks at convention

By Frank Ryan
Premier Don Getty spoke to 100 editors, publishers and owners at the Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association convention held recently in Calgary.

"You're an important part of the communication network. You provide a service to Albertans," the premier stated during his opening remarks.

Some of the issues he touched on were the Code report, the federal government's proposed nine per cent sales tax and environmental issues.

He also told those in attendance that such issues as the economy, education, seniors, roads, health and rural Alberta didn't get the attention they should.

On the matter of forest projects currently underway in the province Getty stated, "We went out and fought for them. They could have gone elsewhere."

"We won't accept the tax. They will have to impose it on us."

"They won't go ahead if there's any risk to the environment. No one wants to damage the environment."

On the subject of Michael Wilson's proposed nine per cent tax, the premier made it clear Alberta had the lowest taxes in Canada. And they didn't want a tax.

"We won't accept the tax. They will have to impose it on us," he said.

During a 20-minute question and answer period the premier was asked about life in rural Alberta, the senate election, rural health care, grants to municipalities, land banks and distance education.

On the subject of rural health care, several questions dealt with the shortage of doctors.

The premier admitted it was a problem. One that he didn't have the answers to.

"Many ideas have been tried and didn't work."

"I don't have a magic solution to the problem."

At the end of the question and answer period, the premier joked that no one had asked him about the MLAs' recent 30 per cent pay hike.

During his presentation Getty introduced Bert Brown, the Tory representative in the senate election race.

Dressage

Horse and rider become as one

By Susan Moscicki

Val Loosmore is having "whopping fun" training with her horse, Matador, in the sport of dressage.

"To me, it's the very peak or pinnacle of riding and I think people are missing out," says the Drayton Valley resident.

Dressage is the systematic training of a horse in its work to improve its natural paces and make the animal more supple, athletic and obedient.

"It's the training of a horse from a very basic level to the very highest level," Loosmore says.

"All the power comes from the hind quarters and you have a well-collected horse in front.

"It's much more of an art. Some people say it looks like ballet on horses."

The beauty of dressage, Loosmore explains, is that the horse and rider become as one and it is hard to tell the rider is giving the horse any direction.

"It really is tremendous, much more popular in the east than west, but it's catching on."

Loosmore claimed the trophy for reserve champion in medium level dressage at the Canadian National Arabian championships in Regina, Saskatchewan recently. Only one point separated Loosmore from the first-place horse and rider.

She won on an Anglo-Arab called Top Katt that has been sold and replaced by Matador (Mat), an Hannoverian originally imported from Germany.

"When I'm riding him it's just marvelous because he responds to every little aid."

"You have to train (for dressage) all year round. I train at least five days a week," Loosmore says. "It requires total dedication but it's really worth it."

Val Loosmore displays her trophy for 1989 reserve champion and a trophy she won to qualify for entering.

In the effort of better parenting Back to routine - one step at a time

By Chris Kreiser

Now that the best part about school (the bus ride) is no longer a novelty, it's back to routine.

In the interest of better parenting I attempted to change two things this year. I determined to have breakfast prepared before the kids got up, rather than hurriedly shoving a piece of toast into their hands as they were running for the bus, with a quick kiss on the cheek and a "have a nice day" mumbled in an unconvincing monotone.

And, I was going to make an effort at being cheery in the morning...which is not an easy thing. My family has learned not to talk to me before my first cup of coffee, which normally doesn't occur before 10 a.m.

But no more. With my new attitude I began getting up earlier and waking the children with a smile — only to be confronted with Rachael's plea of mercy: "Mom, I can't get up. My body is too weak!" And Derek's logic: "Mom, I just got these blankets warm, I can't leave now!" (Said with a look of incredulous disbelief.)

Coffee with Chris

Not to be daunted, I smile, I hug, I encourage, I field negatives into positives. I also look forward to breakfast...it's got to be a better situation.

Derek sits down at the table. Within seconds there's a loud wail. "Mommie!" Rachael accuses, "Derek's spilt his milk."

Derek glares at her. "Shut up, Rachael."

"Don't have to," she counters.

"Do too!"

"Don't!"

"Do too!"

"Don't!"

"Do too!"

"Don't!"

"Do too!"

"Don't!"

"Do too!"

"Don't!"

"Do too!"

"Don't!"

"Do too!"

"Don't!"

Finally Derek admits defeat and with despair in his voice, mixed with longing, quietly states, "I wish I had a brother."

It makes me wonder what was so bad about waking the little darlings up and announcing they had six-and-a-half minutes to get up, get dressed, eat their toast and catch the bus. In the interest of good parenting I could even remember to smile as I said "Bye, have fun in school."

It's back to routine more than I imagined. Hey, routine is good.

Dated at the Town of Drayton Valley in the Province of Alberta this 28th day of September, A.D. 1989.

Robin Wenbourne
Returning Officer.

It's easier to catch tuberculosis or flu than STD

(The Alberta government has launched a sexually transmitted disease awareness campaign, running from Sept. 4 to Nov. 4. This is the first of a three-part series.)

From a medical standpoint, catching a sexually transmitted disease (STD) should be very difficult.

Most germs that cause STD are fragile. They don't survive very long, and they're fussy about their host environment. They prefer warm, dark and moist conditions.

Most STD germs are easy to kill and even easier to barricade from entering the body. In medical terms, it would be far easier to catch tuberculosis, or hepatitis, or simply the flu.

What's baffling medical professionals is that some people actually invite these fragile germs into their bodies. And in Alberta, we have a fairly high rate of sexually transmitted diseases to prove it.

So how does one invite STD germs into the body? You start by providing an ideal environment: the warm, moist conditions in the genital area. Then you mistakenly assume your sexual partners are "clean." But the clincher comes when you decide not to use a latex condom.

A latex condom acts as a barrier to prevent STD germs from entering the body. A condom that's lubricated with Nonoxonyl-9 goes one step further by actually killing some STD germs.

So while you can't do much about your body's ideal germ-cultivating environment, and there's no way of knowing which sexual partners may be harboring STD germs, there are easy steps to take to avoid STD infection.

- Create a barricade by using a latex condom — every time you have sex. It doesn't help to use a condom once in a while.

- Use latex condoms containing Nonoxonyl-9 for extra protection.

- Don't try to guess who's carrying STD germs. Most germs are invisible to the naked eye — and yes, even "clean" people can have germs.

If you have any doubts at all, sometimes it's best to say "no" to sex. And if you notice any unusual symptoms, see a doctor or your local STD clinic (Edmonton, Calgary, Fort McMurray). Most sexually transmitted diseases can be cured or treated.

Above all, don't be a gracious host to STD germs — especially since it's so easy to keep them out of your life.

MS Society desperately needing volunteers

The Drayton Valley chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society is issuing a call for volunteers.

The volunteers are needed to help with the annual door-to-door fund-raising campaign, which will be conducted Oct. 17 and 18.

The non-profit group is hoping to top the $2,000 level this year, with monies to be allocated for research into finding a cure for this crippling disease.

MS is a disease which strikes people of both sexes in the prime of life between the ages of 20 and 40, affecting the myelin sheath of nerve fibres which relay messages to the rest of the body.

The result is paralysis which can leave victims dependant on crutches, or in worst cases, wheelchairs.

Because no one is sure how MS is acquired, there is no known cure for the disease.

Canada has a disproportionately high percentage of victims in relation to the rest of the world, and Drayton Valley, with approximately two dozen MS patients is even higher than the national average.

Anyone wishing to participate in the fund-raising campaign can contact Julie Strocher at 542-4142 or show up at the next meeting of the society Monday, Oct. 11, 7:30 p.m. at the health complex.

Residents urged to share ideas at society meeting

Last month, MLA Tom Thurber presented the Tomahawk and District Sports Agricultural Society with a certificate of organization plaque for the formation of the new society.

He also clarified information regarding the parks and recreation grant of $50,000 which could be allocated to the Tomahawk area to set up a park for overnight or day camping, to attract people to the area. One suggested site for the park is the old Berrymoor ferry site.

Terms of the grant include $10,000 a year for 20 years for maintenance of the park location. As this matter concerns all residents the society would appreciate hearing from anyone with concerns or recommendations for development of a park area.

Another possible location for this facility is the grounds surrounding the curling rink.

Increased traffic for Tomahawk is one consideration for this park, but fear of vandalism is a major concern for some residents.

The Ag Society meets the third Monday of each month. Residents are urged to attend and share their wishes and ideas with the society so they may proceed in a way suitable to all for the advancement of the community.

A workshop will be held at the centre on Oct. 23, from 7 to 10 p.m., to change over to an agricultural society from an association. District home economist Bev Brooks and Louise Welsh from the County of Parkland will be on hand to explain the operation of an agricultural society and advise what funding is available for fairs, farmers' markets, workshops, etc. Plan to attend this important transitional meeting.

While Thurber had the floor residents took the opportunity to question him on many subjects including paving of highways 769 and 624 and the proposed federal sales tax.

School news
Oct. 23 has been set for the annual Heritage Night. There will be more information on this outing later and tickets will be available at the school.

Tomahawk Silver Tops

The first fall meeting will be Thursday, Oct. 25. The group would love to see an increased membership and would like to remind everyone that people aged 50 are eligible for membership. The club provides cards and games, floor curling, pool and shuffleboard. Silver Tops get together each Thursday at 1 p.m.

Exchange students enjoying their Canadian visit

MLA Tom Thurber was in attendance at the Sept. 20 Breton Chamber of Commerce meeting. A number of issues were discussed including the modernization of the Breton high school.

High school French teacher Jill van Tol, is once again taking part in an exchange program with the province of Quebec.

Currently, Marie-Claude Morrisette, 16, is staying with the Durrant family in Breton. Tanya Durrant will be going to Marie-Claude's home in Malartic in February. Each visit is three months' duration.

Marie-Claude says although Breton is small, she is enjoying her stay. She finds school work easy and enjoys having a brother in the Durrant family (she has two sisters at home).

Breton high school is also enjoying the company of Paula Bergman, 18, from Uppsala, Sweden. Paula is here by way of an international program, ASSE. She will spend 10 months in Canada with her host family, David and Pat Cropley of Lindale.

Paula is enjoying her Canada stay and says she really enjoys farm life. The city of Uppsala is the fourth Thao Dam from Viet Nam and Julie Sakolath from Laos have returned to Breton high for their second year as well. The class of 1979 held a 10-year reunion in Breton Sept. 23 and 24, with a good number of students in attendance.

Whist drives will be held the first and third Thursday of each month with the first outing scheduled for Oct. 19 at 8 p.m. in the library.

A volunteer is needed for the library for Friday mornings, on a once-a-month basis. Call Marilyn Worden at 339-2436 if you could fill this vacancy.

A Christmas centerpiece craft class will be held at the agriplex Oct. 25. Call Joyce Goerz by the 18th to register.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Volunteer firefighter Dave Dusterhof says he has been a member of the Drayton Valley fire department for the past 13 years because "after a while you just get used to it. You just keep coming back and you enjoy it."

"You always have the chance to help people out."

"There are those that you just can't do anything for," says the lieutenant.

"Sometimes you don't have a happy ending."

"I don't know if people are aware of the amount of time they (volunteer firefighters) put in. A lot of them take their holidays in the summer and go to fire school."

"That's where it pays to have an understanding family."

First Canadian satellite to be launched in '94

Canada's first earth observation satellite will provide Alberta with new technology, increased employment and business opportunities.

The federal and provincial governments, with the exception of Newfoundland, have signed a memorandum of understanding on participation in the Radarsat satellite project.

Radarsat will be launched in 1994 to circle the globe from pole to pole providing high-resolution images of the earth. Radarsat will provide valuable economic and scientific information on the environment, ice conditions, crop yields, forest management and geological formations.

Alberta will prepay $240,000 for Radarsat data and participate in planning the distribution of Radarsat data nationally.

"Alberta's involvement in Radarsat provides an opportunity to represent our interests as a user of Radarsat data and those interests of Alberta's private sector companies," said Telecommunications Minister Fred Stewart, after the signing of the agreement.

"The implications of Radarsat for Canadians and the world are enormous in the area of environmental improvement and conservation. Alberta will also benefit from the development of new technology, increased employment and business opportunities."

Be a brother; lend support

By Rev. Wes Herbert
DV United Church

Henry returned to his brand new car to find a young lad admiring it.

"Gee, sir, it's awesome! How much did it cost?"

Henry replied, "I really don't know; you see, it's a gift from my brother. Would you like a ride?"

"Boy, would I!" And off they drove. On returning the lad asked, "Could you wait one more minute?"

He bounded into the house and returned, carrying his little retarded brother.

Community welcomes Bauman family

The Lindale School Association held a pot-luck supper and meet-the-teacher evening Sept. 14.

The executive for the coming year includes Allan Goodard as president; secretary-treasurer Correen Townsend; social convener Debbie Goodard and sports rep Cheryl Hall.

Anyone wishing to become involved with the parents' association can get in touch with these people.

From the Pastor's Pen

"Jimmy, look at it. Ain't it a beauty? And you know, his brother gave it to him." He added, "Jimmy, when I get to be a man I'm going to be that kind of a brother."

Be that kind of brother. "Let brotherly love continue" (Hebrews 13:1) Let faith be practical, embracing the fragile threads of understanding and friendship.

When divine love enters our hearts, God gives to friend and stranger the warmth of human fellowship.

Grab another hand, everyone needs support. Reach out and touch another with the human warmth of God's divine love.

Publication will help farmers make the right decision

Many farmers have successfully used grain dryers to make a profit from crops that autumn rain clouds have tried to wash away.

Racing against time and the weather at harvest usually brings up the economics of grain, especially in a year like this one where rain is playing havoc in the harvest season, according to an Alberta Agriculture press release.

An Alberta Agriculture publication, The Economics of Grain Drying, can help farmers make a decision whether drying grain is right for their operation.

The publication is a guide that helps farmers answer four basic questions: what are the advantages and disadvantages; is it profitable; how will it affect cash flow and what are the risks?

By artificially drying grain, farmers can gain harvest time both in hours and days and minimize field losses, but there are other considerations the guide outlines.

More information and the publication are available from Alberta Agriculture district offices.

Crib monitors can give parents peace of mind

By Samia Vallewand
Consumers' Association
Baby's nursery has gone high-tech. One of the most popular gadgets is the nursery monitor, a one-way listening device that enables parents to hear what is going on even though they may be elsewhere.

It is particularly useful for listening in on a napping child or for monitoring older siblings as they play. According to the manufacturers, these devices can give parents a bit more freedom and peace of mind.

Unfortunately, not all of the seven models CAC tested performed equally well. While the best models let you tune into baby's every sigh and whimper, another also let you listen to unwanted signals, such as radio programs. Still another only provided static hiss and crackling.

Performance aside, some of the monitors had features that would make the units more convenient. Some had lights that enabled you to see at a glance if they were turned on—that would help conserve power. Some were dual-powered. Others could mount on a wall.

While crib monitors are designed to be used with small children, they are not toys. However, all of the tested units were safely constructed with secure battery compartments. As well, they were all durable and could still function after a fall from a dresser on to a hard floor.

All new parents would probably welcome a baby monitor. Our product information office can provide you with the ratings for sound quality, range and versatility.

Flu vaccine now available at health unit

Influenza occurs annually in Canada, generally during the winter months. Persons at greatest risk of complications (ie. pneumonia) causing serious illness and death are the chronically ill and the elderly.

Since influenza is highly contagious, those living with others who are chronically ill and/or elderly are at an increased risk.

Influenza vaccine is the single most effective way of preventing influenza. The Alberta West Central Health Unit provides flu immunization for all people 65 years and older and for those under 65 with chronic health problems.

Flu immunization will give protection against three different strains of flu. The vaccine changes each year to offer protection against the current types of flu. In 1989-90 the vaccine contains A Taiwan, A Shanghai and B Yagamat.

Flu vaccine remains effective for about one year. Therefore you should receive the vaccine annually. For optimal protection, immunization is recommended before the end of November.

Most people have little or no reaction to the vaccine. Redness and swelling may occur at the injection site for one or two days. Also, a few people may experience mild fever, tiredness, weakness or generally unwell. If your reaction is unusual or lasts longer than two days, call the health unit. People with a severe allergy to eggs should not receive the influenza vaccine.

The vaccine is now available at the Alberta West Central Health Unit, 542-4415.

Man freed by Jaws

By Susan Mosicki
Firefighters worked frantically with the Jaws of Life (an extrication device) to free a local man from the wreckage of an accident on the Cynthia Highway near the Pembina River bridge last week.

The man sustained injuries, although not life-threatening, when his vehicle went out of control and apparently rolled several times before hitting the ditch.

He was the sole occupant of the demolished tractor and flat deck carrying a load of drilling mud additive that spilled over the highway for approximately 100 yards.

Another accident on the Lodgepole Highway over the weekend claimed the life of a Gainford man.

Firemen, ambulance attendants and civilians combined to safely free the accident victim from the vehicle.

Mayhew/McGee: past record versus change

By Susan Mosicki
Charges of political apathy cannot be pressed against local residents after an outstanding show of nearly 300 people at the forum held by the chamber of commerce last Thursday.

Mayoral candidates Bob Mayhew and Tom McGee had 10 minutes each, and council candidates three minutes, to make their presentations to the crowd after which the audience was invited to ask questions of the candidate of their choice.

Bob Mayhew

Mayhew, who drew first position, told the crowd, "In 1971 to '74, I was elected to council and my portfolio at that time was under development.

"In 1980, I ran for mayor under the format that if I became mayor I would run your town as the mayors can do...I would run this town as a business. At that time we found the town of Drayton Valley had a per-capita debt of around $3,200. We nearly were taken over by the province but with the assistance of town council, a lot of hard work and a lot of ripping and tearing, we've got it down to under $1300 per capita today.

"It was my policy of introducing to council a 'pay as you go' program. To work from reserves and not borrow money."

"I will fight like hell...my record stands in front of you..."

Some of Mayhew's future goals included a second ice arena, a park in Aspenview, a council administered family social services, continued orderly development of Lions West Valley Park, to see that the storm management system is compiled and can be used as a bike path and walkway and to investigate and, if financially possible, to build a skateboard. "There are kids around town with skateboards every place you go. They have no place to use it. I'd like to build one.

"If you re-elect me, I'll fight like hell. I think I can work on my history. My record stands in front of you. If you like what I've done, vote Bob Mayhew."

Tom McGee

In his presentation, Tom McGee said, "During my campaign, I have been promising an open-door policy because I want to see you, the real voice of Drayton Valley, have a say in what happens to your town and community.

"I need your support...Let's make a positive change."

"You are paying hard earned tax dollars to the town of Drayton Valley. You want to know that you're getting the best and most efficient use of these dollars. I am dedicated to that policy.

"As your mayor, I have promised there will be no increase in taxes for the next three years. This can be done. With good financial management and a cooperative council.

"My long-range plans include working toward accomplishment of a walkway and drainage system. Ladies and gentlemen, it's a long-range plan but it's vision.

"A second ice surface is another goal. We have to get the input from the users before we build facilities."

McGee said he is also committed to Family and Community Support Services. "Not only is this an organization that we need but it's funded 80 per cent by the provincial government and it's been in place since 1981 and we haven't accessed it."

Making West Valley Park a tourist attraction is another of McGee's goals.

"My approach is common sense management...of our tax dollars and an open-door relationship with you, the people of Drayton Valley.

"I need your support. Friends, the future is now. Let's make a positive change."

Candidates field several questions from concerned residents...

In a question directed at McGee, Don Regenwetter, a local resident, asked, "There's been a lot of controversy around town as to the placement of Pelican Mills within the boundaries and so close to the town."

Members of the local air cadet squadron travelled to CFB Namao last Sunday for gliding. Two weeks before that 32 cadets flew in a Twin Otter at the base, located just outside Edmonton.

Twin Rivers school employees will be receiving a monthly newsletter with their pay slips. It will be called the Twin Rivers Review.

The chamber of commerce reports it sent out 80 letters to the service industry in an attempt to tie an oil show into the recent trade fair. However, the idea was scrapped due to a poor response.

Rocky Rapids Community League received $5,000 recently came from the Recreation, Parks and Wildlife Foundation in conjunction with Alberta lotteries.

Election '89

Howard Olsen

Howard Olsen stressed his past performance on town council and his role in the economic revitalization of the town.

Olsen, who has served on council for eight years, pointed to numerous improvements in town services like streets and water systems. He also mentioned his service as head of the Pelican Steering Committee.

"We can still operate our town on good, sound planning and business practices, and because of this with my past record I would ask you for your support in the upcoming election."

Mohammed Hamdon

Mohammed Hamdon said he was "young enough to offer new, fresh and innovative ideas," to town council.

Hamdon, 29, is currently assistant manager of the Block's grocery store and is a graduate of the U of A with a BA and commerce degree.

He said his background proved economic responsibility and gave him a working knowledge of finances. Saying he was in favor of no tax increase for the town, Hamdon said "this can be done by voting in members who have shown fiscal responsibility."

Hamdon is running as a council candidate for the first time.

Election '89

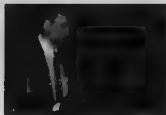

Jean Saunders

Jean Saunders said she was committed to continuing a hold on taxes and seeing the town "never" uses a debenture again.

She is supportive of the creating a tourist booth and historical centre in the Lion's West Valley Park and the building of a second ice surface when financially viable.

Saunders helped negotiate Drayton Valley's move to the Battle River tourist division and said her next challenge was to "show the residents and business people in Drayton Valley how tourism can benefit us all."

Saunders is running for her second council term.

Charlie Miner

"Our town has survived some very hard years," Charlie Miner said, adding, "I believe in the town of Drayton Valley. It's one of the best towns in the province of Alberta as far as I'm concerned."

"I believe that our town is now financially stable."

Miner, who has served three council terms, said it was now possible for the town to look at providing "some of the extras for our citizens." Extras which may include a second ice arena, a bike-path, upgrading and beautification of the roadway entrances and further development of the West Valley Park area.

Alex Salfi

Salfi has served on council for three terms and wanted his record on council to stand as an example of his service.

"I understand the term 'controlled spending,'" Salfi said adding council had helped reduce the town debt from $14 million to $7 million and assisted in the building of three new facilities.

"I am committed to my family and this community as I chose to raise my family in this town," Alex Salfi said.

Salfi said he supports the building of a second arena and methods of increasing tourism.

Council candidates call for support

Grant Monsour

Economic responsibility and recreational accessibility were the two main points of Grant Monsour's speech.

Monsour said the long-term $4-million debt facing the town of Drayton Valley can "be easily wiped out at the end of three years" by controlled debt management.

He said he was in favor of holding open forums for the "priority and planning" of recreational facilities.

Monsour is running for town council after previously running for the PC candidacy in the Drayton Valley/Devon constituency which he lost to Tom Thurber by seven votes.

Terry Kilborn

Terry Kilborn provided one of the more light-hearted speeches as he unintentionally forgot his notes and had to ad lib.

Kilborn said he got caught up in the excitement of his 26th wedding anniversary and left his notes at home.

"Which you'll be happy to hear because I was going to talk for a long time," Kilborn told the forum crowd.

Kilborn, a first-time candidate, said he foresees a "rocky road" on the economic path for the town.

He has run a business in town for 25 years and said one of his main attributes was fiscal management.

"I do not have the record and experience that some of the incumbent members of council can show, but however, we all have to make a start somewhere."

"Because of my business experience I feel I do have the necessary experience to be able to help this town," Wagner said.

Wagner is another first-time council candidate.

Natalie Gibson

"I have three minutes to dangle my election promises and paint my grand visions," Natalie Gibson enticingly orated.

Gibson, running for the first time, stressed the importance of working with the residents of the town on council and improving relations within the community.

"I have ideas, but they need work. I have solutions but they need advice. I have projects but they need community input."

"It isn't enough to be just concerned I want to see results," Gibson said.

Gibson emphasized the importance of easing the tax burden by attracting business and industry, and promoting tourism.

'89 mayoralty race continued boundaries. Mr. McGee, were you part of the council that decided with Pelican and the provincial government to in fact place the mill within the town boundaries?"

"Yes, I was part of that council," McGee said. "When I was told, and let me tell you ladies and gentlemen, I was told, that there was going to be a mill in Drayton Valley, it was with 70 other realtors and many other concerned business people in the Westwinds hotel. So when I looked to my right, of course they had moved a tremendous amount of dirt already. Isn't that interesting gentlemen that I didn't know about that?"

Bernadette Lee asked Mayhew, "We are both local business people in this town and you are a mayor, obviously, and yet you are not a member of our chamber of commerce, nor have you given them any support. Could you tell me the reasons for that?"

"I supported the statement of the chamber of commerce in Drayton Valley as a mayor. I'll continue to support the chamber of commerce as mayor, but what I do personally, Ma'am, is my business," Mayhew answered.

"What qualities are you bringing to the mayor's chair?"

"I'd just like to know what qualities both these gentlemen figure they're bringing to the mayor's chair?" was directed at McGee and Mayhew by Dave Thorn.

McGee's response was, "My ability to communicate with people, to hear people, to listen to people and to understand people. To be personable and approachable is by all means the first and foremost for any public figure."

"My qualities as a mayor has proved itself, I think, over the last number of years by changing the financial position of Drayton Valley," said Mayhew. "I didn't do this by myself. I'm not a dictator. The only way a mayor can get his way is by encouragement. If you do your homework right, you present good, sound ideas, and you can back them up, then council will go along with you."

Councillor Howard Olsen

took exception to McGee's statement regarding the placement of the mill and, after the forum, said he would not support him as a councillor if McGee becomes mayor.

McGee's response was only, "That is one man's opinion."

Olsen had publicly stated in the last issue of The Western Review that he was seriously considering not attending the forum because he felt it could be biased because of chamber of commerce involvement; however after the forum he said everyone was given an equal chance and he thought it was run fair.

School conditions concern parents

By Frank Ryan

Parents who have students attending the Breton high school are concerned about the conditions of their school.

Breton Parent Association spokesman Dave Ellis expressed his concerns to the Twin Rivers school board meeting in Lindale last Wednesday night. He also left the board with a 359-name petition and a list of 21 concerns they had with the present condition of the school.

Ellis referred to the situation as being serious.

One of his main concerns was over where school modernization had been placed on Twin River's list of priorities.

"In the County of Leduc we were number 1. Now we're third in Twin Rivers," he told a crowd numbering close to 100 in the Lindale gym.

Ellis outlined some of the major problems at the school.

These included the floors sinking away, a stage curtain that is both a disgrace and fire hazard, ceiling tiles falling down on the students' heads, no safety glass in the doors or windows, the windows are rotting in the frames, there is a crack in the music room wall where the daylight shows through, inadequate wiring throughout the school, the roof does not drain properly and moldy odor comes from the drinking fountains.

Deputy superintendent Gary Unterschultz says Twin Rivers has made application to Alberta Education to have modernization at three of their schools. These include Eldorado, Lindale and Breton High, in that order.

Carl Daneluk, assistant deputy minister with Alberta Education says a decision is expected within two weeks on their 1990 capital spending.

He did not indicate if any money had been allocated to Twin Rivers for school modernization. Despite the grim picture of conditions at Breton high painted by Ellis, Daneluk says there are schools in Alberta in worse condition.

But after touring Breton high, he is convinced the school should be looked at in the not-too-distant future for modernization.

Paper on Wednesday

In order to provide our readers with local and area municipal and senate election coverage next week's edition of The Western Review will be published on Wednesday.

This will include the mayoralty and councillors' race in Drayton Valley, the separate school board election and results from Breton, Estevicville, Evansburg, Wildwood, the County of Parkland and the County of Wetaskiwin.

Opinions

If you don't vote you have only yourself to blame

Next Monday is election day. The day (Oct. 16) that people get a chance to exercise their vote.

If history holds true, there should be a good turnout at the local polls.

In the past a mayoralty race has always sparked a lot of interest. And with two running for mayor and nine candidates after six councillor positions, things will hopefully run true to form.

Unfortunately, apathy toward elections, especially at the federal, provincial and even some municipal elections, hasn't been that encouraging in Drayton Valley in past years.

But this year 11 people are letting their names stand for public office.

And, the people of Drayton Valley who are eligible to vote, should do so.

So often, the person that complains the loudest after an election, is the same person who didn't vote. If you don't vote, you'll only have yourself to blame.

We will also see an election in many of the surrounding communities for council, schools and hospital.

People who are letting their name stand for office are to be commended. Being a local politician or sitting on the school or hospital board isn't as easy as it looks. People who get elected spend a lot of time away from their job and families. They're often criticized in their decision-making.

They've showed their keen interest by running for office. The rest of us can do our part by VOTING on Oct. 16.

Membership fees major source of golf club income

It will be interesting to see how the membership reacts to a major fee increase when the golf club meets later this month.

The executive will propose at the Oct. 26 meeting that membership fees for men and women jump from $260 to $350 for the 1990-91 season. And the family rate is scheduled to increase from $530 to $700.

If the fees at the Drayton Valley golf club are not increased president Vi Helm doesn't like the alternatives.

The alternatives to raising the fees in order to pay off a $550,000 loan could be (a) the bank would get the course or (b) private ownership would take over.

The sale of memberships is a major source of income for the club that last year

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

expanded to 18 holes.

The increase will undoubtedly get some golfers wondering how the proposed rates for the 18-hole course rate with other clubs.

At Fairways West (near Alder Flats) the men's rate this year was $200 while the women were required to pay $165. Their family rate was $475.

At Devon, population 4,000, both men and women paid $485 this year. They don't have a family fee but their associate fee was $340. The major drawback to this was that golfers couldn't play on weekends or holidays.

At Camrose, population 12,000, both men and women paid $410 this year.

While $350 and $700 is a lot of money for some golfers, don't be surprised if the local membership votes in the increases.

We've been to a number of local golf meetings in past years where a fee increase was introduced, and was accepted with very little opposition.

The golfers who refuse to pay have several excellent courses in the area to choose from.

Canadian brand of hockey transcends separatist tendencies

By Paul Cudla
 'I'm a Canadian, damn it!' A reader sent a letter to the editor last week which exclaimed his nationalism and explained his struggle with the Canadian identity. The letter tugged at my nationalistic heart-strings and urged me to seek the true cultural and historical definition of Canada.

After antagonizing myself thoroughly with pseudo-intellectual political analysis and historical research, one simple word continued to pop up as a synonym for Canada...hockey.

Where else does one start

Alternative parking sought

Dear Editor,
 I am writing to comment on the situation that exists in regard to parking at the intersection of 50 Ave. and 50 St. surrounding the lights.

Although this is an extremely busy intersection there is parking on the roads heading south and east into the intersection and also as you exit the intersection to the west.

The vehicles are parked so close to the corner they leave a turning lane that is virtually inaccessible. They also obstruct vision and add to the general confusion of vehicles entering (and sometimes even backing out of) the businesses situated on the corner.

Worst of all, this corner is used by many of the children attending Eldorado school.

When the two-hour parking limit for the downtown area was discussed, employees were asked to park in nearby lots. Perhaps it's time those vehicles parked near the intersection find alternative trying to pin-down our national identity?

Canadians do not simply watch, participate or admire the game of hockey, they own hockey.

No other aspect of the Canadian culture and lifestyle unifies the country like hockey.

Almost every Canadian remembers the Paul Henderson goal in 1972, or the Mike Bossy tip-in goal to beat the Russians in Canada Cup '84, or the most recent and perhaps greatest moment in hockey, the Mario Lemieux goal with under a sources for parking, hopefully monopolizing the new Eldorado school parking lot.

 Toni Lachance

Comment

minute left in '87 to beat the Russians 6-5.

And almost every Canadian can tell you where they were during those shining moments of Canadiana.

The game of hockey doesn't discriminate. It didn't matter that Lemieux is French Canadian. He isn't skating political argument for or against Quebec separatism. Similarly, Western Canadian hockey players aren't endorsements for Western reform.

When any player from any of the 10 provinces and two territories pulls on a maple-leaf emblazoned sweater they are playing Canada's game for Canada.

Perhaps this is the best and only legitimate argument against separatism: the fact that it will weaken our national hockey team.

You can take the game away from Canada by placing NHL franchises in L.A., St. Louis, etc., but you can't take Canada away from the game.

You can put Russians, Swedes, Finns, and Americans in the NHL, and other countries can play their own version of hockey, but the bottom line is hockey is still Canada's game.

Hockey is our game! We invented it, perfected it, and the best league in the world, the NHL, is 80 per cent Canadian players.

Generally, Canadians are a quiet and humble people who tend to avoid bragging, boasting and flag-waving.

But when it comes to hockey a Canadian will glow with patriotism and wave a flag in your face at the drop of a puck.

So with the NHL season just underway, it's time to fire up the tube, grab yourself a cold one of your choice (over five per cent) and huddle around each and every Saturday night for Hockey Night in Canada.

Drop the puck!

Man awakens in time to find mattress and house on fire

The thick, black smoke curled out of the bedroom of the burning home.

A local man was forced to flee his home last week when he awoke to find his mattress, on which he was sleeping, in flames.

Rick Miller, tenant of the home on 45 St. at the corner of 50 Ave., was alone in the house at the time of the fire (11:14 p.m.) and was not injured.

Sheldon Fuson, fire chief, said damage (mostly heat and smoke) is estimated at approximately $13,000 and although it is known the fire was accidental, the cause has not yet been determined.

The fire took only two or three minutes to get under control but it took another half hour or more to completely extinguish.

Local jailed

Donald A. Strickland, of Drayton Valley, was given a jail sentence in provincial court last week.

Head-on claims life

By Susan Mosciak

The death of a 29-year-old Gainford man on the Lodgepole Highway Friday evening could possibly have been prevented if he were wearing a seatbelt, according to RCMP Const. Greg Fedor.

"A seatbelt would have given him a better chance," Fedor said.

Darrell Dale Deus was crushed against the steering wheel of his half-ton truck when he hit a 1.3-metre-high pile of gravel head-on on the highway.

A 30-06 rifle embedded into the dash on impact, preventing the seat of the vehicle from collapsing.

Deus entered a construction zone on Highway 621, 10 kms west of Lodgepole, where the pavement ends. Four hundred metres were clear before he hit the 400-metre-deep pile of gravel in his lane.

No barricades were posted by Fair Eye Construction, the contractor, however Fedor said the following day with an overcast sky the gravel was clearly visible on the road at the same time of day (7:30 p.m.).

Deus died as a result of injuries sustained in the accident.

Fedor said it is unknown at this time if alcohol was involved.

Victor Gascon of Drayton Valley second on the scene, said, "We had to open the truck and check him. He was dead at the time. He died on impact, I imagine."

He also said a barricade was put up approximately 10-15 minutes after the accident occurred.

RCMP and Alberta Transportation are investigating.

Vehicle theft sparks new policy

By Susan Moscioli
The recent theft of a town of Drayton Valley half-ton truck has caused officials to set a new policy regarding their vehicles.

Facilities foreman Darren Urkevich's town vehicle, left parked outside the arena with keys inside and unlocked, was stolen and driven to the Tomahawk area before being stopped.

RCMP Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey said the truck was found undamaged and a 12-year-old youth has been charged with theft of a motor vehicle. He has been remanded in custody until a court appearance Oct. 26 in Edmonton.

"It was a good thing it didn't have tragic results," said recreation director Paul Nielsen.

"We are talking with all our staff about not leaving the trucks in that state. I don't think we'll see any more town trucks with keys in it."

Nielsen said this incident was precedent setting for the town. "We generally have never had to deal with it. This exemplifies the need to be aware."

"There are times when it is advantageous to leave (the vehicles) running like in the middle of winter," Nielsen said in cases like these they would have to use a second key.

Speed boat racer gets 'Lucky' in competition

By Paul Cudla
Harold Nelson bought a speed boat a year-and-a-half ago for recreational purposes only, but has since turned it loose on the river racing circuit.

"Mainly what I bought the boat for was cruising up and down the river, and water skiing. I never intended on racing it," Nelson says.

When Nelson bought the boat, the previous owners told him about CBF (Canadian Boat Federation) racing so Nelson decided to try it out.

He took his 17-foot speed boat "Lucky," equipped with a 260 hp, 351 Ford stock marine engine, to two races last year and won both.

Nelson, 26, took a first in 'D' class races at Peace River and Red Deer.

"At the Red Deer race last year, the river was really low, there was hardly any water," Nelson said.

This year he has also taken in two river races, and placed second at Trail, B.C.

and second at Whitecourt.

The strategic aspect of river-boat racing is 'reading the river' correctly therefore avoiding low spots and gravel ridges.

"It takes a little while to be able to read a river," Nelson says.

By reading a river correctly boat racers avoid dragging the bottom of a river and in turn save time.

A typical boat race lasts about 80 minutes two ways as boats in 'D' class reach speeds of around 60 mph. Races run in two stages on courses which average about 40 miles.

"On a tight river, you get the adrenalin going pretty good."

Nelson says he enjoys the "challenge" of boat racing and the sheer enjoyment of racing.

"It's not really competitive. Everybody is not at each other's throats. They make the races fun."

Boat races average about 15-20 competitors in total from 'A' to 'D' classes. 'A' class boats can reach speeds of 100 mph.

Nelson is planning on moving up to 'C' class racing next season which means a change in boats and increased competitiveness.

"I think I'll just stick to C, it's more fun and less expensive (than higher classes)."

A winner in a C class race comes under a unique regulation which serves to keep boat racing affordable and competitive. Winners of 'C' races must allow the other racers in the class the opportunity to buy the boat engine for $3000.

This rule, Nelson says, ensures that no racer gains an unfair advantage by using a high-price super-stock engine.

Nelson is looking forward to boat racing next year and says he "plans on doing it for a while...until I get hurt."

Curling fees rise slightly

For the first time in two years Drayton Valley Curling Club members will experience a slight increase in their yearly fees.

Fees for the 1989-90 season will rise to $135 from $125 for the season which starts Oct. 30 and ends March 31.

"It breaks down to about six dollars a game," Bruce Clemmer, president of the curling club, said.

The increase was voted in unanimously at an Oct. 11 meeting which was attended by about 100 members.

The curling club is looking for a few more teams, and a few teams are looking for one or two curlers.

Construction on the new curling rink is moving along as Clemmer said the rink will hopefully be usable for curling by Dec. 15.

The Drayton Valley Curling Club is welcoming seven new executive members who are: second vice-president, Rick Jenkins; draws and bonspiel, Pat Cameron; Deb Vain Ember, Kelly Starling, and Dave Starling; fund-raising committee, Floyd Smith and in bookings, Charlene Jenkins.

Derrick Boxing Club changing facility

The new and improved version of the Derrick Boxing Club has moved to a new and improved facility this season.

"Everything is all set up and ready to go," Lawrence Duperron, club organizer, said.

The Derrick Boxing Club season which started Oct. 10 has relocated to 5228-52 Ave. (just west of the post office).

"We have quite a few members coming back," Duperron said, adding the club hopes to have between 25-30 members at the start.

Among the members is national team heavyweight Shelby Hardin.

Duperron said the boxing club stresses discipline, conditioning, defensive and offensive boxing. The club competes in about six tournaments a year, and holds daily camps. The season runs until the end of April.

The Derrick Club hopes to host the bronze gloves again this year on Nov. 11 and 12.

Razor Sharp

Some people say Razor Ruddock hasn't got a prayer, Well that's not right, let's give our guy some words to use in there, Like, 'Lord I pray send down to me some qualities of hope, Cross-section of the Ali shuffle, sting and rope a dope.

"Pray send a Sonny Liston stare, a Marciano heart, Combined with wiles of Billy Con so I may play the part.

"Almighty King of every Ring, please plant a fighting seed, Joe Louis jab, Joe Frazier fire and add Joe Walcott speed.

"And if, Dear Lord, it pleases You, the Razor has a hunch, That we could do much worse than add the great Jack Dempsey punch.

"These words are few, Dear Lord above, but sending them out there, At least confirms one thing for sure, the Razor HAS a prayer."

Ski hill looking to expand runs

The Drayton Valley and area ski hill is looking at making some major improvements to services for the upcoming ski season.

In addition to snow-making equipment which has already been acquired, the hill is looking to put in additional runs, more lighting, a toboggan hill and a half-pipe for snowboarding.

But to make it all possible, ski club president Dale Rendflesh is asking for volunteers to help with the clearing of land.

The club is having a workbee Oct. 14 and anyone interested in helping with the improvement of the hill is urged to attend.

"If they come out and volunteer their time we can make it happen," Rendflesh said.

Rendflesh said the ski hill supplies recreation for Drayton Valley and area and combats the old 'nothing to do for the kids' complaint.

Season pass fees have been decreased for this year to $90 for adults and $70 for students. Family passes have also been decreased as a first family member is charged $90, second $70, third and fourth $40 and fifth members are free.

MLA Thurber takes senate reform support to the airwaves

By Paul Cudla

Tom Thurber, MLA, took his strong support for senate reform to the airwaves Sept. 28.

In a four-minute speech on the CBC-TV program Provincial Affairs, Thurber outlined the premise and reasoning behind senate reform.

"I feel strongly about senate reform, and when the opportunity came up, I took it," Thurber said about his appearance on the show which features weekly comments from MLAs on a variety of topics.

Thurber said the historic senate election Oct. 16 was an attempt by the province of Alberta to gain equal representation in senate by region rather than population.

"We (Alberta) don't have equal representation because of our population base," Thurber said.

In citing a specific incident which exemplified the need for senate reform, Thurber referred to the Trudeau-era National Energy Program (NEP).

"Probably Alberta has suffered the most of any Western province at the hands of the federal government over the years," Thurber said.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has already stated he will not recognize an elected senator but Thurber said Alberta is "forcing Mulroney's hand on this."

Thurber added Alberta will send the prime minister the name of a provincial senator despite federal resistance.

"I would think that he would cause quite a stir if we sent one (a senator) down and he refused to recognize it."

"Legally he doesn't have to recognize that name but morally he darn well better," Thurber said.

The provincial government will spend $150,000 to advertise the senate election and encourage voter participation. Thurber said the costs of the election were justified by the historical implication of the reform effort.

"It's an important enough issue that somehow we have to get everybody involved."

The six senate election candidates are: Bert Brown, PC; Bill Code, Liberal; Stan

Waters, Reform; Tom Sindlinger, Independent; Ken Paproski, Independent; and Gladys Taylor, Independent.

MD unifies fire coverage

By Susan Mosicki

The MD Brezeau is looking into purchasing the assets of the Breton and Rural Fire Protection Association, at a cost of approximately $25,000, to provide universal fire protection coverage throughout the municipal district.

"We feel it's a municipal responsibility to provide fire protection," said manager John Eriksson.

Coverage in the Breton area in the past has been provided by a co-op (user pays), Eriksson said. "Before, they had to pay for fire protection. We didn't think that was fair."

"The MD is going to buy out our pumper unit — buy out members," said Breton fire chief Allan Smith.

He said there are about 235 members at $100 each, plus the MD will be purchasing the 11 per cent share the village of Breton has in the unit and paying off the debentures against it.

According to Smith, the purchase is proposed for Jan. 1, 1990, after which the association will become a fire brigade.

"The department is going to continue functioning pretty much as we do now." One of the main differences, Smith said, will be having more time to concentrate on training.

"It's a change of diet. It's a little bit exciting."

"When we've settled with the co-op, it (coverage) will be universal," said Eriksson.

Parents want smaller classes

Kindergarten parents in Breton took their concerns to the Twin Rivers school board last week.

Pearl Johnson, speaking on behalf of the kindergarten parents, made the presentation to the board at their monthly meeting held in the Lindale school gym.

"We feel the class is too large for a proper learning atmosphere."

"Some of us have been in the class as parent of the day, and we felt everything was disorderly. With 26 children things are not getting done properly."

"We feel our children would benefit from a smaller, more personal, environment."

"We would like an educational learning experience, not an experience in learning on how to compete for time and attention," she told the trustees.

No decisions about the situation in the Breton kindergarten as outlined in Johnson's letter were discussed at the Lindale meeting.

It's time for a change.

It's time for an approachable mayor.

It's time for consultation rather than intimidation.

It's time for cooperation rather than control.

It's time for sharing of ideas.

Let's all work together and make a positive change.

BRTA adopts marketing plan for area

Battle River Tourist Association (BRTA) has formally adopted an upgraded marketing plan for the Battle River country, Zone 5 region.

The plan, which was updated in consultation with the tourism operators in Zone 5, covers the time period from April 1, 1990 to March 31, 1991.

The zone marketing plan forms the basis for the allocation of dollars for marketing activities within the zone. Dollar allocation for projects is based on budget allocations and action plans identified in the marketing plan which is available from the BRTA office. The processing of applications for funding under Team Tourism is administered for Zone 5 by the BRTA.

The Team Tourism program, which began in late 1988, provides $20 million from Alberta lotteries funds over a five-year period. A ceiling limit has been set for each zone for each year. The amount for the Zone 5 area is $200,000 per year.

Marketing activities are cost-shared on a 50/50 matching basis by private sector and Team Tourism funds. These 50-per-cent private sector dollars can be leveraged by forming consortia with two or more operators.

Under the Team Tourism program 'operators' include the zone itself; municipalities; organizations with an interest in tourism in the region, such as chamber of commerce and non-profit groups; individual tourism facility operators; service industry operators in combination with a tourism component; and consortia made up of any combination of the above.

Marketing plans and Team Tourism applications are available from the BRTA office at Box 1615, Camrose, AB T4V 1X4.

Pine and spruce trees shed in fall

Yellow and brown needles in the late summer and fall aren't necessarily a sign of a diseased pine tree, according to an Alberta Agriculture press release.

Most often this is just the natural shedding of needles.

Most pines only keep their needles for three to four years. Eventually they turn color — yellow and brown — and fall off the tree. Those needles aren't replaced. But, trees get new growth on branches in the spring.

Make sure the needle shed is the natural process, check trees carefully for other signs of insects or disease. If trees are under stress from drought, poor soil fertility, transplant shock or pesticide damage, they will shed even more needles. Consult a horticulturist or district agriculturist if you aren't sure what is causing the needle shed.

Pines aren't the only evergreens that shed their needles. Spruce trees shed six- to seven-year-old needles. Because spruce are more dense than pine, the browning is not as noticeable. The needle shed is also very noticeable in cedars.

Spitting blood in officer's face nets $750 assault fine

A Drayton Valley man, fined a total of $1,400 in provincial court last week, was rebuked by the judge presiding over the case, according to RCMP Const. Al Kaufmann.

George Raymond Lillico, 41, was fined $750 for assault of a peace officer, and $650 for refusing to provide a breath sample for an Alert (road-side screening device).

Lillico had spit blood in the face of Const. Mark Fleming at the time of the assault.

"Judge Shamchuk said that in his opinion, the public didn't have the right to assault police officers," said Kaufmann.

He also said the judge was very concerned because of AIDS and didn't like the fact that Lillico had spit blood in the officer's face. "He thought that was uncalled for."

Autumn rains help spring lawns

A rainy fall could help farm families preparing their lawns for the winter.

Lawns don't need water as frequently as they do in the summer, but they do need water before the ground freezes so there is moisture available for roots in the spring.

If fall weather is dry, lawns should be watered occasionally so moisture can get to the roots. Moisture shouldn't be frequent, because grass growth should be slowed down.

As well, fertilizer shouldn't be applied any later than mid-August, so the lawn has enough time to harden off before winter. Lawns that are actively growing in the fall, may be damaged by an early winter.

Mowing should be continued as long as the grass is growing. Lawn shouldn't be left to grow too long in the fall because it may be susceptible to snow mold. Long grass can also be a hiding place for mice. They can do considerable amount of damage to a lawn.

Nor should grass be cut too short. This could expose the crowns of the grass to freezing or desiccation injury, particularly if there isn't adequate snow cover. A normal mowing height of four to five centimetres (one-and-a-half inches) is best.

• Children playing with ignition sources caused 169 Alberta fires last year, three deaths, 37 injuries and $2.5 million in property damage. Matches and lighters were used in 70 per cent of fires started by children.

Zero should be alcohol limit for probationary young drivers

New drivers should not be allowed to consume any alcohol at all before driving, says Ken Quinn, chairman of the Alberta Motor Association's board of governors.

"Our province now requires new drivers to serve a two-year probation," Quinn says. "During this time beginners are expected to develop their driving skills and to demonstrate they have learned appropriate driving behaviors."

"Drinking and driving is not an appropriate behavior. Especially when you're inexperienced behind the wheel, alcohol can have a ruinous effect on your driving ability. To reflect this, the legal blood alcohol limit for probationary drivers should be 0.00 per cent, not 0.08 per cent," he said.

Establishing this limit would get new drivers into the habit of avoiding alcohol prior to driving, says Quinn. It would also emphasize driving is a privilege that can be restricted, not an unlimited right.

Because most new drivers are young adults inexperienced with alcohol consumption, it would also help them separate learning to drive from learning what happens when they drink, said the volunteer leader of the 397,000-member province-wide association.

"Perhaps because they have so much to lose, young drivers have been the object of more studies and experiments than any other group of drivers. Measures such as drinking age laws, night-time curfews, probationary licences and educational campaigns are being tried with varying degrees of success in virtually all developed countries.

H.W. school seeks PAC

H.W. Pickup junior high is looking to set up a parent advisory council in its school.

This group of parents would serve in an advisory capacity and help staff formulate policy decisions.

Such a body was previously in existence two years ago, in 1987, but disbanded due to lack of interest.

To initiate a renewed interest in the idea, the school has called for interested parties to come forward in order to organize the council.

"It is something we are required to do under the new school act," said school principal Colin Cavanagh, who also indicated thus far, there had been no response from parents.

"We get a lot of input from them, anyway," he said, adding there has been good participation in the absence of the committee over the last two years.

He explained that a PAC would be "a sounding board for parents," and that any with children attending the school, who are interested in more information should contact him at H.W. Pickup.

Hwy projects put on hold

A number of highway projects in the area will be delayed until next year.

Joe Schlaut, district transportation engineer with Alberta Transportation says work on Highway 769 from Seba Beach to Tomahawk will be completed next year. The contract for the job was awarded last week to Gilfoyl Holdings Ltd.

Changes to the entrance into Pelican Mill and the passing lane on Highway 620 near Violet Grove will also have to wait until next year.

However, transportation has its hands full with some major problems on Highway 39, just past the entrance into the Willey West campground.

Schlaut says transportation has repaired that section of the road six or seven times this year. A ground spring is causing most of the problems.

The department plans to install a sub-surface drainage system this year, with hopes that it will solve the problem.

Twin Rivers buses down 20 per cent

The Twin Rivers school division reports ridership on their in-town buses has decreased by 20 per cent.

The trustees were told during last Wednesday's monthly meeting that as of Sept. 22, 165 bus passes had been sold.

A letter from former division secretary-treasurer Bill Weber to the trustees stated, "Therefore, it would appear that despite the decrease, the service is sufficiently in demand to attract most of the parents to continue to buy passes."

Superintendent Dr. Al Anderson suggested the board leave things as they are and review the situation next year.

No action is planned in regards to a Sept. 6 petition presented to the board by Mike Sellwood, Cathy Nelson and Andy Dorman.

The petition was signed by 259 people representing 428 year to $100 per student and $200 per family.

The petition was signed by people against the board's decision to up the in-town bussing fee from $30 per Weber's report to the board stated the petition only represented eight per cent of the electors.

Grass fires raise total calls 43 per cent

The Drayton Valley fire department responded to 43 per cent more calls in 1988 than 1987 according to this year's annual report.

Fire chief Sheldon Fuson said the reason for the rise is "because of the heavy grass fire season in 1988."

Rural calls showed a substantial increase of 84 per cent while in-town responses were down by 11.6 per cent.

Rural calls were not only more frequent but also required more man hours to be expended. There were 38 in-town calls in 1988, taking 57 hours total, but requiring 441 man hours.

Rural calls totalled 105, expending 289 hours, requiring 1813 man hours.

Total value of in-town incidents was $2,406,000, of which $2,260,500 was saved showing a loss of $145,500.

In the rural areas, $24,955,550 of property was in jeopardy, $24,379,640 of which was saved. The loss totalled $575,910.

"When you look at the number of calls it looks horrendous," Fuson said. "But when you compare the dollar loss to the dollars saved — we're doing a good job."

The department ran $5,691 under budget which, in the report, was "attributed to the actual spent on maintenance of equipment being less than anticipated, in addition to the fact that the firefighters performed some of the maintenance themselves."

Actual budget expenditure in 1988 was $102,860. The approved budget was $108,551.

Per capita cost (5,500 residents) of fire protection is $19.90 per year or $1.08 per month.

Good Luck Tom McGee For Mayor

As a former Drayton Valley Town Councillor and someone who still considers Drayton Valley home, Murray & I want to wish Tom all the best.

Tom's team approach in the past to fiscal responsibility will work well with his enthusiasm for building a stronger community. Murray & I urge all our friends to get out & support Tom McGee for Drayton Valley's future.

Quintessence will warm winter season

For those who have been dreading the thought of the oncoming winter season, there will be the warmth of outstanding musical talent to look forward to, brought to Drayton Valley by DV Presents.

The first show of the season, a return engagement of Quintessence, a five-piece orchestra from Toronto, will be a special treat for lovers of light classical, as well as some pop and country music. "I would say they are the best musicians that we've had in our town," says Mary Poloway, president.

They have so many credits individually (and as a group).

Quintessence will be playing Oct. 26 at 8 p.m. at H. W. Pickup junior high.

"We promote the arts, giving groups an opportunity to travel through the province," says Poloway.

The purpose of bringing the groups to Drayton Valley is "to bring entertainment to our community that enables people to see entertainment of this calibre. Many people can't go to Edmonton to see them."

DV Presents, in its 12th season, brings them here with the assistance of Alberta Culture, she said. "If we had to do it completely on our own the tickets would be double."

Mayor to speak at Saskatoon privatization conference

Mayor Bob Mayhew has been asked to speak at next year's International Privatization Congress in Saskatoon.

If he is re-elected Mayhew says he will attend the May 13-16 event.

Mayhew is one of two Canadians being asked to speak at the event. Other speakers have been invited from Europe and the United States.

Mayhew will be asked to talk about the services the town has contracted out. At the present time the town contracts out its utility readings, snow removal and some of its staff are hired on a contract basis.

Five years ago he talked about a similar subject and it's his belief the Saskatoon speaking engagement resulted from that.

The congress registration kits will be going out to 60,000 key government and business leaders throughout the world.

Speakers are being asked to submit a copy of their presentation two months before the actual congress, so it can be circulated to those attending.

Use fall for spring bulbs

Fall is the time to plan for one of the signs of early spring.

Tulip, daffodil, crocus, grape hyacinth and scilla bulbs should be bought and planted in the autumn. Look for large, firm bulbs with no signs of mold growth.

Bulbs can be planted in September or as soon as they are available. They should be planted at least three weeks before the ground freezes so they can establish roots.

If they don't, they may rot in the ground. Dig at least 30 cm down when preparing the soil.

Twin Rivers to get new van

The Twin Rivers School Division is looking at buying its own half-ton van.

The matter was raised at last Wednesday's trustee meeting held at the Lindale school.

A report to the trustees station said various situations had come up where a Twin Rivers vehicle would be an asset.

At the present time one of the office staff picks up and delivers the mail on a daily basis. They use their own vehicle at their own expense with liability implications.

There are also occasions when freight and bulky materials could be transported, if the division had its own vehicle.

After a lengthy debate on the subject, administration was directed to look into the matter and come back to the board with some costs.

The board was also asked at last week's meeting to consider in-town mileage for the Twin Rivers office staff.

A report to the board suggested the superintendent, deputy superintendent and psychologist all receive $250 per month with $150 monthly for speech-hearing and ECS coordinators and $75 for the reading clinician. No decision was made.

In another Twin Rivers office related matter, the board okayed the use of Parcels Plus to handle the division's courier services. This will include schools in and out of town.

No STEP for staff

The chamber's tourist booth is looking for some new funding.

Natalie Gibson, who heads up the chamber's tourist committee, says they have been informed there will be no funds available through the STEP program next year. In the past the chamber used STEP funds to pay its summer staff.

As a result the chamber's tourist committee will have to look elsewhere for financial help.

During the past summer the chamber's booth registered 2,885 visitors.

According to Gibson, this is up slightly from the previous year.

In comparison the David Thompson Tourist Association reports that 23,000 people signed the register at the Rocky Mountain House booth. Bowden was next in line at 22,017 and Red Deer had 16,000 recorded visitors.

Parents 'calm' over sex education

By Shaun Polczar

Drayton Valley parents showed last Tuesday night that sex education in the schools is not a major concern.

That is, if apathy can express opinion. Only one parent attended an open meeting at Frank Maddock high school last week to discuss the new CALM curriculum that is now mandatory for all Grade 11 students in Alberta schools.

"This must mean that parents have no major concerns to address to us," said principal Al Day, who said the meeting was organized out of respect for parents' feelings.

Sexuality is a contentious issue he said, because it gets into values and morals, which many feel should be taught in the home.

The course strives to get students to make informed choices and take responsibility for various lifestyle decisions.

Substance abuse, financial and career planning, and health issues are covered in addition to sexual relations, which consists of only a small part of the entire course.

Parent Rosemary Corpuz said she was more curious than concerned, and wanted to see how the material was to be presented.

She came away satisfied her son will receive good information on such subjects as sexually transmitted diseases, especially AIDS.

Principal Day said that if any parents wanted to exclude their children from the program, a letter saying so is all that would be required.

"We will then provide those students with an alternate learning experience," said Day.

The Twin Rivers school board has no objection to a planned expansion at the Pleasant View mobile home park.

BRTA lobbies gov't

Battle River Tourist Association (BRTA) members gathered at the Alberta 4-H Centre, located near Westeros, last month.

A number of area entrepreneurs had set up displays and tours of the centre were enjoyed by the 70 members and guests present.

BRTA members moved to forward a letter to Prime Minister Brian Mulroney in support of lobbying by the Tourism Industry Association of Alberta (TIAALTA) and the Tourism Industry Association of Canada (TIAAC), in regard to the sales tax reform proposal; the uncertainty of VIA Rail; the termination of the Canada/Alberta tourism agreement and the drastic reduction in Tourism Canada's marketing efforts.

BRTA gets $93,000

Approval of a $93,000 job re-entry under the Canadian Jobs Strategy program in the area has been approved for the Battle River Tourist Association (BRTA).

Re-entry is a training program aimed at preparing women with either no, or antiquated, job skills to enter a competitive 'job market' by teaching and upgrading their skills in several different areas.

Twenty women will receive 33 weeks of training with local employers in the areas of clerical, retail, banking, and non-traditional opportunities. Classroom training will focus on life skills, communication, public relations, computer literacy, typing and management.

Terse Verse for Election Day in D.V. October 16, 1989

The things I see, in Tom McGee:

What this town needs -
A little more faith, and new devotion,
A little less envy and less emotion.

A lot more tenderness towards plights of our old.

A lot less doubt, because our youth are more bold.

Promote the good that we have, and be part of our blessing.

A little more Care is all that is missing.
- that's what this town needs!

Evergreen elementary school requisitions extra portables

By Frank Ryan

The principal of the Evergreen elementary school wants another portable classroom.

Chris Kelly has forwarded his request on to the Twin Rivers school board.

However, it appears Evergreen will have to wait. Superintendent Dr. Al Anderson told the trustees last week it was difficult to get a portable at this time of the year.

And, even if one was available, he wasn't sure where Evergreen would place it.

The elementary school is hampered by the fire trail on the west side and a new playground on the south. The two other sides of the school face busy roads.

In a letter to the trustees, Kelly indicated the situation is serious.

Due to high enrolment at our school in the fall of 1988 we had to access an extra classroom. At that time we choose to borrow the French classroom. Our French program was placed on a cart which attempts to navigate its way around all of our home rooms.

"We had hoped this was a temporary situation. We asked for a portable classroom to address this need. Our request was denied despite our over-demanding school utilization percentage."

"Because we have yet to obtain a portable we feel our program (French) has suffered and we are concerned that our French teacher resigned last year due in no small measure to this fact. We would like to keep all of our staff working, with the proper facilities necessary," Kelly stated in his request.

A recommendation was made to last week's meeting to apply to Alberta Education for a portable in September 1990.

However vice-chairman Jim Reid had a concern.

He felt if Twin Rivers waited until September of next year, they wouldn't have the portable until 1991.

As a result of the urgency suggested by Kelly, administration was asked to watch for the availability of a portable classroom.

Fall rains 'green up' fallow field

August and September rains that frustrated harvest efforts are also causing 'greening up' of summerfallow fields throughout much of southern Alberta.

"That green growth has made many farmers comment about 'getting behind' in their summerfallowing," says John Timmermans, Alberta Agriculture soil conservation specialist.

"Before they go out to their fields they should stop and consider whether summerfallowing is necessary. There are at least five factors to think over before cultivating summerfallow anymore this year," he says.

Most summerfallow fields don't have a serious perennial weed problem and most of the greening seen now is volunteer crop growth, he says. These volunteer crop plants will be killed by the frost, he adds.

"The volunteer growth is the only protection from wind erosion summerfallow fields have. If the growth is cultivated, protection from wind erosion will be virtually nil," says Timmermans. Last year's crop through much of southern and eastern Alberta yielded lower than normal because of drought conditions, so this year's summerfallow started out with less than even normally low levels of residue cover.

"Recent years have clearly pointed out that if serious wind erosion occurs, the summerfallow acreage suffers the same erosion. That's surely the most critical factor against further tillage at this time," he says.

Many farmers seeded cover crops in their most erodible fields in early August, he says. Rainfall since then will ensure sufficient growth to prevent erosion. Farmers looking at summerfallow fields greening up might consider this a free cover crop," says Timmermans.

Farmers who have annual weed problems, such as stinkweed and flaxweed, should consider killing them with a low rate of 2,4-D rather than sacrificing all the soil cover to control weeds by cultivation, he adds.

Why should Bert Brown be Canada's first elected Senator?

Because Bert Brown's sheer determination over the last seven years has given the people of Alberta the historical opportunity to elect the first Senator in Alberta and in Canada.

Because Bert Brown has a clear vision of the action he would take as Alberta's first elected Senator.

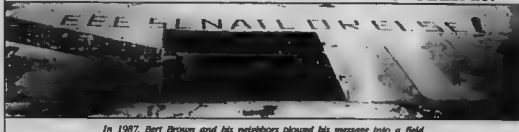

Because Bert Brown started this fight in his living room over seven years ago. He was angry about Federal indifference to agriculture and determined to do something about it. He's waged war for seven years and convinced seven provinces out of ten to commit to a Triple E Senate. The other three provinces, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia, know he will keep on fighting until he has their support too.

Because Bert Brown's track record proves he's the only man truly committed to an elected, equal & effective Senate. A Triple E Senate.

Bert Brown started the fight for an elected Senate. Let him finish it.

Alberta's Senate Election

October 16, 1989

Information For Alberta Voters

A Senatorial Election has never been held before in Alberta or Canada. The following information is being provided to answer some questions which you might have.

When is the Senate Election vote being held?

Alberta's Senate Election will take place on October 16 — the same day as the province-wide municipal elections. Hours of voting are 10:00 a.m. - 8:00 p.m.

Who can vote in the Senatorial Election?

You can vote in the Senate Election being held on October 16 if you are:

- 18 years of age or older;
- a Canadian citizen;
- a resident of Alberta for at least the last six months; and
- ordinarily live in the area where you wish to vote.

Where will I vote?

The vote for the Senate Election will be held at the same location as the municipal election being held in your area. The Returning Officer in your area will be publicizing the location of the voting stations prior to the Election.

Do I have to be enumerated?

No. Enumeration is not required for the Senatorial Election. When you go to your polling station, you will be asked to make a declaration that you are eligible to vote.

The area I live in isn't holding a municipal election.

Can I still vote for a senatorial candidate?

Yes. An agreement between your area and a neighbouring area will have been reached to allow you to vote in the Senatorial Election. Election information will be published in your local papers — if you have not found out where to vote, contact your local Returning Officer.

Will there be separate ballots for the Senate Election?

Yes. Separate Senate ballots will be distributed by the Chief Electoral Officer to each municipality. For the City of Edmonton, the Senate ballot will be part of its automated municipal ballot.

For further information, please check your newspaper for polling locations or contact your local Municipal Returning Officer.

This is a public service message from the Government of Alberta.

Let's all work together

Each year, lives are lost from the ravages of fire, tragedies that often could have been avoided.

A leading cause of fire deaths and injuries in Alberta is fires started by children playing with matches or lighters. In 1988, 387 fires were started by children, killing five persons and injuring 43, with property damage of $3.3 million. Matches and lighters were used in 70 per cent of these fires.

This year's Fire Prevention Week theme, "Big fires start small: keep matches and lighters in the right hands," focuses on the problem of children playing with fire. The theme addresses the need for increased awareness of both adults and children to the dangers presented by matches and lighters.

Children are naturally fascinated by fire. It is this fascination and curiosity that leads them to experiment or play with matches and lighters that are within easy reach. Often such behavior leads to potentially life-threatening fires.

Special week promotes awareness

Every October throughout North America, firefighters and the communities they serve sponsor Fire Prevention Week. By focusing on a leading cause of fire, this special week promotes greater public awareness about the many simple measures individual Albertans may take to prevent fires.

This year's campaign looks at the leading cause of fire death among small children — playing with matches and lighters.

As we all sadly know, each year many homes and lives are lost to flames accidentally ignited by youngsters. By keeping matches and lighters beyond the reach of preschoolers and by teaching their older brothers and sisters proper fire safety skills, parents and caregivers can significantly reduce the incidence of fire. We must always remember that preventing fires is everybody's concern.

Lives and properties can be saved — please take the time to teach your children proper fire safety skills.

Elaine McCoy, Q.C. Minister of Labor

Tom Makey
Fire Commissioner

Reminding adults to keep matches, lighters and other heat sources out of the reach of children is the main objective of this year's Fire Prevention Week campaign. The importance of teaching and training older children good fire safety behavior will also be emphasized.

I hope this year's theme will inspire everyone — parents, teachers, caregivers, community and civic organizations and the media — to better understand the problem and to support this year's Fire Prevention Week activities. Let's all work together to keep fire out of little hands.

Sincerely,
Tom Makey
Fire Commissioner

Children playing with matches 1 fire per day started by children

Destructive fires started by children playing with matches, lighters and other sources of ignition totalled 387 in 1988.

These fires claimed five lives (two men, one woman, two children), injured 43 people and caused property damage of $3.3 million. On the average, one fire per day was started by children, resulting in an average of $6,500 in property damage per fire.

Where do children start fires?

Children start fires both within and outside of homes. In 1988, there were 169 fires started in homes and 218 fires started outside homes.

Fires started in homes caused three deaths, injured 37 people, and caused $2,487,161 in property loss.

Fires started outside the home caused two deaths (two children), six injuries and $800,111 damage.

The following areas or objects were the scene or target of 88 per cent of the fires started outside homes by children: outdoor trash or rubbish (20%), individual trees (15%), sheds (11%), brush, grass or groundcover (10%), barn storage (8%), vacant and outdoor properties (8%), straw/hay stacks (6%), residential garages (5%) and automobiles (4%).

In 70 per cent of all fires started by children last year, matches or lighters were involved.

Other sources of ignition include open camp fires, fireworks, electric lamp bulbs, stoves, water heaters, space heaters, smokers' materials, fireplaces and furnaces.

In most bedroom fires, matches or lighters were used to start fire in bedding and mattresses. In most living room fires, matches and lighters were used to start fire in furniture, paper and paper products. In the majority of kitchen fires, improper use of cooking appliances (stoves, ranges and ovens) started fire in clothing, paper, wood and plastics.

Satisfaction for job done is reward for volunteer firefighters

There is nothing but a verbal commitment by volunteer firefighters to show up and do what is asked, when asked, to save lives and property, but they take the commitment to heart.

"They're all dedicated men to a commitment that they made. Just one super bunch," Drayton Valley fire chief Sheldon Fuson praises.

"I couldn't give an overall answer as to why they do it...I guess it starts out as maybe a curiosity or deep interest, maybe some excitement. They find out it is hard, dirty work.

"It is a second job they do for virtually nothing. Nobody does it for the money."

The rewarding aspect, according to Fuson, is the satisfaction when the job is done.

There is also the comradeship between the men. A bond and friendship forms very quickly after a member joins the department. He has to know and trust the other men, because his life is in their hands, Fuson says.

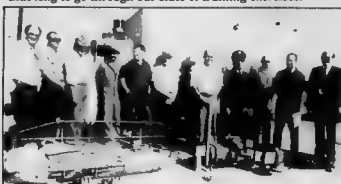

Every Tuesday night is standard routine fire service practice for the 20 firefighters. Fuson says "they are honing the skills we teach them and that they learn at Alberta Fire Training school in Vermilion. They get to put into practice what they've learned in a non-emergency site."

The men also take special training sessions such as a rescue course that covers basic rescue techniques using non-mechanical means in order to be prepared for a building collapse, earthquake, explosion etc.

Fuson, chief for 11 years, says it takes a full 12 months or more to cover all of the perceived evolutionist they could come across in the performance of their duties. "It takes that long to go through our slate of training exercises.

Extensive training is put to use in real emergency situations like motor vehicle accidents.

The Tomahawk department commands a crew of 28 dedicated volunteers.

Tomahawk disaster-proof

The Tomahawk Fire Department began 25 years ago with a modest one-truck operation, but has since grown into a progressive disaster-proof squad.

Beginning in November of 1964 with a single truck the department has now expanded to include a water truck, a rescue van and a new modern fire hall.

The Tomahawk fire hall was built in 1986, and before that the fire department received the rescue van in 1978, and the water truck in 1974.

Fire Chief Ted Bustin has been with the department since 1976 and commands a crew of 28 volunteer firefighters.

Bustin said the Tomahawk Fire Department has progressed "quite well" and now has the capability of dealing with almost any disaster.

Breton firemen continually upgrade

When a fire alarm sounds in the Breton area, approximately 14 devoted men drop whatever they are doing and quickly respond to the call.

Local residents rely on the members of the Breton and Rural Fire Protection Association to save their lives and possessions in emergency situations.

A recent change for the association has been the erection of a brand new 2,400-square-foot fire hall that provides the department with about 1,700 square feet of extra space.

All equipment and trucks are now housed in the building, and it allows plenty of room for instruction in firefighting.

Breton firefighters are continuing to upgrade their training to provide the best protection possible.

Big fires start small: keep matches in right hands

Children are often fascinated by fire — blowing out candles on a birthday cake, roasting marshmallows at a campfire, watching an uncle magically blow smoke rings.

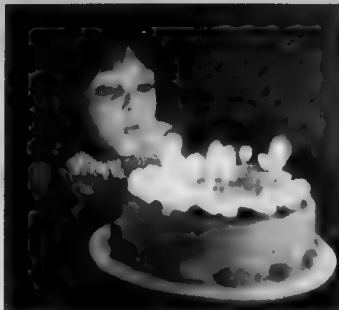

But this fascination with fire can also lead children to play with matches or lighters or other open flames and start fires — often with tragic consequences.

The theme for Fire Prevention Week 1989, Oct. 8-14, is "Big fires start small: keep matches and lighters in the right hands." This year's theme is dedicated to addressing the problem of children playing with fire. The message in the theme is to emphasize that matches and lighters belong in the hands of adults, not children.

Child fireplay is the leading cause of fire deaths among the very young. In Alberta, 45 per cent of child fire victims five years and under, died in fires they started themselves. 1988 fires statistics indicate 70 per of fires started by children involved matches or lighters.

The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) states that: "Many children are faced with the temptation to play with fire every day. Parents who leave matches and lighters within a child's reach are courting tragedy.

Very young children do not have the capacity to understand the consequence

Children need to be taught proper safety skills.

of striking a match or a lighter, and many older children, who do understand, have no idea how quickly a fire can grow out of control."

What can you do?

As a responsible adult (whether you are the parent, grandparent, relative or babysitter) there are a number of things you can do to prevent the tragic consequences of child fireplay.

With younger children (five and under):

- Keep matches and lighters out of sight and out of children's reach.

- Teach children that if they find matches or lighters to take them to an adult. Reward or praise them when they do.

- Supervise children at all times when they are in a room where there is a fireplace, lit candle, space heater or other open flame or hot surface.

- Never use a cigarette lighter as a "toy" to pacify a child who is crying or causing a disturbance.

- Teach children what "hot" means, what objects in the house are hot and what they should stay away from.

- When purchasing children's sleepwear, keep in mind that federal law requires certain types of children's sleepwear to be made of fire retardant materials.

- If a child is seen with matches or a lighter, use an emphatic "NO" followed by a simple explanation such as: "No, matches/lighters are hot; they can burn/hurt you."

With older children, teach fire safety as one of the essential survival skills — much like learning to ride a bike or learning to swim.

Remember that teaching children fire safety skills to become competent in using fire is a gradual process that must take place under parental/adult supervision and guidance.

A new pamphlet entitled Fire - It's No Game For Children to Play, provides valuable information on fire safety precautions to take with younger children and on teaching and training fire safety with older children. The pamphlet is available from the Fire Prevention Branch of Alberta Labor and its regional offices.

BIG FIRES START SMALL

KEEP MATCHES AND LIGHTERS IN THE RIGHT HANDS

Fires started by children are a leading cause of fire deaths and injuries in Alberta homes. Eighty per cent of fires started by children involve matches or lighters. Take fire safety precautions with young children - keep matches and lighters out of their reach.

With older children, guide them towards fire safe behavior and encourage participation in normal fire activities under adult supervision.

A message from Alberta Labour
Fire Prevention Branch and Kitchen often a danger zone

The kitchen is a busy area in any home. It is often the centre of activity in a home. But, too often, it is also a danger zone.

During meal preparation, a lot of things go on at the same time in the kitchen — pots on the stove, a roast in the oven, children playing, a telephone being answered. Unattended cooking is an invitation for a fire to start.

Organization is the key to reducing hazards in the kitchen. Like any work place, you need to organize your time and space, plan your activities, be alert, and remove clutter. Try unplugging your phone to reduce distractions while you're cooking.

Kitchen safety tips

- As a rule, don't allow anyone to put grocery bags on the stove.
- Don't cook if you're drowsy or under the influence of medication or alcohol.
- Wear short or tight-fitting sleeves when cooking. Loose garments can brush against a burner and burst into flames.
- Do not store frequently-used items in cupboards directly above the stove.
- Turn off appliances immediately after use. Have appliances repaired or replaced if they aren't working properly.
- Keep young children at a safe distance from hot surfaces and hot liquids.

- Keep pot handles turned in so they cannot be pulled off by a child. Whenever possible, use the rear burners.

Cooking oil/grease fires

When oil or grease is heated above 200 C (400 F), hot vapors are formed, which can catch fire spontaneously.

To put out a cooking oil fire, switch off the heat and cover the pot with a tight-fitting lid. Never throw water on an oil fire, and never attempt to carry the burning pot — this will only fan the flames and cause further fires if the liquid spills. If the exhaust fan is on, switch it off to stop the air flow which can feed the flames.

● The kitchen was the primary source of fire origin in Alberta in 1988 with 742 fires. Most of them (60%) involved cooking oil or grease and started in pans or pots heated on stoves or in ovens. Kitchen fires took three lives, caused the largest number of injuries (69) and accounted for property losses of $4.7 million.

Special Olympics gives mentally handicapped athletes a chance to succeed

For many years individuals with a mental handicap did not have an opportunity to participate in sports programs. Special Olympics gives mentally handicapped athletes a chance to succeed in sports...and in life.

Here in Drayton Valley we have found a need for Special Olympics and during the last four years we have tried to provide programs to cover this need.

Since 1984 we have had:

Floor Hockey Team

At one point they went to Toronto to participate in the NHL SPECIAL FLOOR HOCKEY. One of the Athletes received an NHL Hockey Ring for Best Player.

NOTE: We have not had a Floor Hockey team for the past two years as we did not have enough athletes to continue.

Pee Wee Swim Club

and

Pee Wee Athletic Club

Both of these programs help teach young children PRE-ATHLETIC SKILLS and provides good social contact with others.

An Adult Swim Club

The Swim Club has been our most successful program every year. We have had athletes participate in the Alberta Summer Games each year.

In the last set of games held in June in Grand Prairie our Athletes brought home:

Florence Church	Bronze	50 m Freestyle
Dana Lindsey	Gold	25 m
Dale Howatt	Bronze	25 m
Syd Howatt	Bronze	50 m
	Gold	25 m
Rainer Brown	Gold	25 m
	Silver	25 m
	Bronze	25 m
Rainer, Syd	Relay Bronze	Gerry, Lavern, Florence
		Relay Bronze

The coaches were Pam Champagne, Candice Henry & David Malone. Congratulations Athletes!

Syd Howatt, Dale Howatt and Lavern Madison

Florence Church

We are now beginning our 5th year of operation in Drayton Valley. This year we will be offering the Pee Wee Swim Club and also be starting an Adult Athletic Club. This will be a year round club which will involve many different sports such as floor hockey, soccer and it will also cover a general overall fitness program. We will be unable to have the Adult Swim Club and Pee Wee Athletic Club this year because we no longer have coaches for these two programs. (If you are interested in helping out with any of these programs please attend our general meeting October 12, 1989.)

Special Olympics provide ongoing physical recreation, sports training and competitive opportunities for individuals with mental handicaps.

Please remember that in order for us to do this we need your volunteer support: be it coaching, helping on the board or through donations.

If you have any INTEREST or QUESTIONS about Special Olympics please attend our general meeting October-12, 8:00 p.m., room 24 Eldorado School.

In the event of a gas odor...

1. Do not turn electric switches on or off, light matches or do anything that could ignite gas.

2. Immediately get all people out of dwelling, vehicle, trailer, etc.

3. Close cylinder or tank supply valves. Do not turn on valves or re-enter dwelling,

Safety tips for users of small propane cylinders

- Never use or store cylinders indoors. Always keep cylinders upright.
- Keep cylinder valve closed when not in use or when empty.
- Always position cylinder so that connection between valve and regulator will not cause sharp bends in hose or tubing.

- The POL connector(s) on the regulator screws into the valve outlet by turning left (or counter clockwise) only.
- Make sure this connector is free from scratches or nicks which can cause leaks.

Critical safety points

- If your gas control has been subjected to a flooding condition or immersed in water, it must be replaced immediately by a trained gas service technician. Water can lead to damage of the internal safety mechanism in the gas control and can create a hazardous condition.

- Never tamper with or use force or tools on the gas control system. If the gas control knob will not operate by hand, the control must be replaced. Replacement of any gas control must be made only by a trained gas service technician.

'A sound you can live with'

"Smoke alarms in every home on every level save lives," says Fire Commissioner Tom Makey, "but only if they are working properly."

Countless reports from across North America show the early warning sound from smoke alarms has saved many people from death and injury in destructive home fires. Makey notes smoke alarms are inexpensive, life-saving devices every home should have.

However, he cautions that getting people to install smoke alarms is only half the battle. "It's no longer enough to discuss the need to install smoke alarms; most people are well aware of their importance. We must now educate the public on the need for routine smoke alarm testing and proper maintenance and battery replacement."

Although smoke alarms have been around for more than 10 years, many people still ask similar questions about them.

Why are smoke alarms important?

Smoke alarms act as an early warning system. Home fire statistics show most fatal fires occur at night, while victims are asleep. Most of these fires occur between 10 a.m. and 8 a.m. Smoke and toxic gases from fires kill victims before they have a chance to wake up, smell the smoke and escape.

Even if you are awake, killer gases — primarily carbon monoxide — can deaden your senses and may slow your reaction time. An early warning system, in the form of smoke alarms, can warn you early enough to take survival action.

Fire Prevention Branch statistics indicate that during the 10-year period 1978-87, 88 per cent of homes that had fatal fires had no smoke alarm protection.

'Fire Power' October 14

An award winning film that highlights the tremendous speed and destructive force of fire will be broadcast across Alberta on the ACCESS-TV Network on Saturday, Oct. 14 at 6 p.m.

The 17-minute film, 'Fire Power', marks the end of the 1989 Fire Prevention Week awareness campaign which runs from Oct. 8-14.

With exciting live footage, Fire Power presents a vivid account of how quickly a small fire in the living room develops into full fire involvement throughout the house. Special test instruments measure the temperature and air quality as the fire progresses and reveal how the smoke and intense heat travel even faster than the flames. When the footage is rolled back, audiences are shown the effects of an identical fire in a house that has a residential sprinkler system.

Fire Power was produced by the National Fire Protection Association, an American-based, non-profit organization dedicated to promoting fire safety. The film won a Silver Hugo award at the Intercom Film Festival in 1987.

How to tell if you've caught a (STD) disease

(The Alberta government has launched a sexually transmitted disease awareness campaign, running from Sept. 4 to Nov. 4. This is the second of a three-part series.)

There was a time when the mere mention of syphilis or herpes sent a hush around the room. Sexually transmitted diseases (STD) were considered "dirty" diseases, and infected individuals often chose to suffer in silence rather than face the humiliation and treatment.

Today, there are still remnants of fear and shame surrounding STD, but there is also more awareness, more discussion and more prevention. There has to be: in 1988 alone, nearly 20,000 Albertans became infected with STD.

How can you tell if you've become infected with STD? There are several common warning signs:

- discharge of pus from the genitals or urinary openings,
- burning sensation during urination,
- itching or burning in and around genitals,
- sores on or around the genitals,
- in women, pain in the lower abdomen.

However, some people do not show any outward symptoms, thus STD can go unnoticed for months or years.

While most STD are treatable and often curable, some untreated diseases can last for 40 years or more. Untreated STD can cause permanent damage to the body, including sterility, blindness, paralysis, brain disease and heart disease. And some diseases, AIDS in particular, can be fatal.

The easiest way to avoid the pain and discomfort of STD is to prevent STD germs from entering the body. This means using a latex condom during every sexual encounter, and choosing sexual partners carefully. The most reliable way to prevent STD infection is by saying "no" to sex.

For more information on the symptoms, diagnosis and treatment, contact your local physician or STD clinic (located in Edmonton, Calgary and Fort McMurray).

And there's no reason to feel embarrassed about visiting an STD clinic. The visit is completely confidential and free of charge, and there are countless other Albertans who have been there themselves.

• Fireplaces were the source of ignition in 118 fires in Alberta in 1988 which caused property damage of $1,339,751. One-fourth of these fires were the result of design, construction or installation deficiency and half were due to ignorance of hazard, primarily related to ignition of tar or creosote, carpets and wood/paper products.

Being thankful can never be said often enough

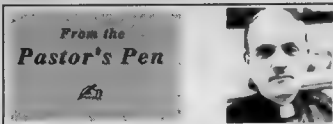

By Father Bob Cornell
St. Anthony
Catholic Church

Well, I am the "new guy" on the block and this is my first article as the new parish priest of St. Anthony's.

I want first of all to state that I am happy to be here in Drayton Valley. The area is beautiful and the welcome afforded me by everyone thus far has been nothing short of "awesome."

I realize the Thanksgiving holiday will have passed by the time you read this article but being thankful can never be said often enough or ever really be too late.

We are a most fortunate people, as Canadians. God has certainly blessed us with a truly beautiful country, with much affluence and with peaceful times.

If you might have forgotten to say thanks to your God-Creator in the privacy of your hearts and homes and also publicly in your faith-community church, maybe you can do so during the coming week. God will certainly be there to hear the appreciation of your many blessings and your church will welcome you as friends. Rev. T.J. Dove, c.s.p., wrote the following which I have taken the liberty of editing:

Thanksgiving, Canada has set aside Oct. 9 as our national day to give thanks as a country. It seems fitting. We celebrate practically everything else, so why not a day to give thanks.

Heritage. It gives one an opportunity to recall the past — and give thanks: freedoms obtained; life, love and happiness shared; families and friends, health and food, all the "good things of life," which we so often take for granted. We give thanks.

Affirmation. We affirm this country has been good to us. Along with the government, we satisfy our consciences by designating one day a year to give our patriotic thanks. But Thanksgiving for a Christian should mean more than that.

Nostalgia. Thanksgiving is a family day. Friends and relatives come together to break bread and to recount stories of life and love. The church family does likewise. We come together to share the Word and break the bread and recount the Biblical stories of our God's love for us and of our Saviour's great sacrifice of love.

Knowledge. To the Christian, we have so much to be thankful for. Life has taken on a new meaning for the Christian because Christ has "Christed" our world. We are truly freed and alive in the Spirit.

Salvation is ours. And we give thanks for this; not just one day a year, but we celebrate and proclaim God's love for us, His supreme creation, every day of our lives.

Have a great and thankful week.

Lodge expansion on schedule

Even though weather was not ideal for construction this year, the $2,100,000 Shangri-La Lodge expansion is on schedule, according to a spokesman for the general contractor.

Project manager for Tarad Industries Ltd. Brian Heacock said the project will be done in two phases, the first of which will be complete in about six weeks, and the second by March of 1990.

Heacock said the residents will be moving into the first phase, after which the old part of the building (phase two) is to be renovated.

"I was kind of envious myself," said Heacock. "It's like having a first class hotel room."

The second phase of the project will make room for about 40 more residents and will be like new, Heacock said.

The kitchen poses a slight problem for the contractor because it will still be in use during the renovation, but Heacock said the men would be getting around that by working in late evening when it is not in use.

Eliminating meat from diet may be unhealthy

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
Canadians are on a "health binge," looking for ways to live longer, stay healthier and keep more physically fit. Unfortunately, in our zeal to become healthy, many adopted some unhealthy eating habits.

One of these, in response to the hypothesis that animal foods are high in fat, saturated fat, calories and cholesterol, is to reduce or eliminate meat from their diet.

Recent research has shown the composition of red meats falls well within healthful eating guidelines. Fat, saturated fat, cholesterol and calories are much lower than most food composition tables show.

Meat is such a nutritious food that when less is eaten or when it's eliminated from the diet, certain groups may be risking their nutritional status. These include young children, adolescents, pregnant and lactating women, athletes, dieters and the elderly.

Getting enough energy can be a problem as a diet based on plant food tends to be bulky, high in fibre and filling. A feeling of fullness is reached before nutrient needs are met.

Protein needs could be compromised. When cereal grains and legumes are used as protein sources, sufficient high quality protein may not be available for proper growth and development. Meat protein matches human requirements.

Iron, necessary for healthy blood, is the "heme" form in meats which means it is better absorbed than the "non-heme" form found in plant foods. For example, only two per cent of the iron in spinach is absorbed compared to 25 to 35 per cent for meat. As well, meat enhances the absorption of iron from plant sources.

Zinc, important for energy metabolism and tissue formation, is also more readily absorbed from animal rather than vegetable sources.

B12, necessary for healthy blood and to prevent pernicious anemia, is available only from animal sources.

Overall, one serving of meat supplies, for a woman 25-49 years, over 80 per cent of her B12 requirements, over half her protein, niacin and zinc needs and significant quantities of iron, phosphorus, riboflavin, B6 and thiamin—all for under 200 calories.

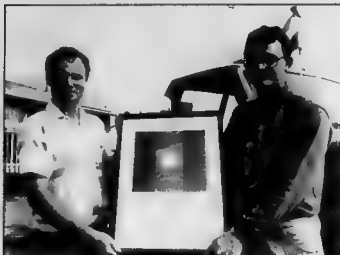

Eating meat makes nutritional sense. For further information give me a call at 542-5368 and ask for the publication 'Lookin' Good Feelin' Good With Beef.'

Awareness week promotes animal role in our lives

The fifth annual national Animal Health Week will run from Oct. 16-22.

The awareness week celebrates the role animals play in our lives and the importance of good animal health. It has become an established part of the veterinary profession's public education efforts through the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Dave Chapman didn't know the Drayton Valley fire department was a volunteer force until another member convinced him to join two years ago.

"It's a complete change from my occupation and you also get the feeling that you are providing a community service," Chapman says.

The most rewarding part of volunteer firefighting for Chapman is "when you can actually help somebody; if they're trapped — to get them out, if it's a fire — to save something for them."

"A good crowd of guys" is another of the reasons Chapman enjoys the job.

It can be a little embarrassing at times though, Chapman admits, especially if you're in a restaurant when the pager goes off.

Renovations need careful planning

By Samia Vallemand
Consumers' Association

Demand for home renovation services is expected to hit record highs this year as more homeowners choose to improve their older homes rather than brave the high-priced housing market.

Canadians will spend $21 billion on renovations in 1989. Improvements to older homes are, in fact, forming the bulk of many small contractors' businesses.

Whether the project's a new bathroom, a full addition or improved wiring and insulation, it is a process that requires time, money and careful planning. Budgeting for work on your home and choosing the pros to do it can be quite a challenge.

Experts agree that increasing your enjoyment on a house is a good reason to renovate. They caution against extensive projects to boost the house's value. Future profits on the resale market are too unpredictable.

Using the reference route to choose a contractor is really the best bet. Some contractors may use door-to-door sales to solicit your

You can save your car from a rusty fate

Remember the Tin Man in The Wizard of Oz? He was brought back from a rusty fate in the course of the movie.

Unfortunately, real life doesn't work that way. Once rust has gained a toe-hold on your car, it takes a lot of work to keep it from spreading.

The Alberta Motor Association consumer information department recommends you follow these tips to help prevent your car from facing a rusty fate:

● Inspect your car frequently to locate any trouble spots. The quicker trouble areas are located and corrected, the better your chances of preventing permanent damage.

● Wash your car frequently and thoroughly hose down the underside at least twice a year. Also be sure to give it a good wax job twice a year.

● Touch up chipped paint as soon as possible.

● Keep the inside of your car dry. Moisture often becomes trapped under the floor or trunk mats where, it can corrode and weaken the floor and trunk panels.

There's no "Yellow Brick Road" to follow when it comes to rustproofing, so follow your own path — shop around.

Leasing arrangements vary

By Elaine Ryl
District Agriculturist
Pasture leasing arrangements are variable. The terms and conditions of the lease, the productivity of the pasture, and the type of livestock being pastured will all have a bearing on the rental fee.

Because circumstances are unique whenever two parties enter into a lease agreement, it is necessary to negotiate a fee rather than relying on the going rate.

Negotiating a pasture rental agreement involves the following areas of consideration:

A clear understanding of what is being provided by the landowner and thus what the renter is paying for.

Sod turned for new library

Culture Minister Doug Main turned the first sod for construction of the new Yellowhead Regional Library headquarters last month in Spruce Grove.

Construction for the new headquarters, which will serve the largest of Alberta's five library systems, is funded by a capital grant of $1,461,500 from the Western Canada lottery fund. This grant was part of a $7.3 million capital grants program announced in March 1988, to establish or enhance library headquarters across the province.

The Yellowhead Regional Library system will increase programs and services through the new headquarters to meet the

The landowner must analyze his costs of providing what the agreement calls for. It will be useful for the landowner to categorize his costs into 'cash costs' (i.e. costs that must be covered by the agreement, such as fertilizer expenses, taxes) and 'non-cash costs' (i.e. economic costs that need to be covered in the long run, but may be foregone for the short run). This will help the landowner get a good idea of a 'must get' and a 'would like to get' figure.

A renter must analyze his expected returns and costs for the specific cattle venture being considered. This will give the renter an idea of what he can afford to pay. It will also be useful for the renter to categorize his costs into cash costs and non-cash costs. This will give a better idea of the maximum and minimum the cattle venture will support.

A negotiating process involving a bid and accept process, hopefully with some flexibility by both parties. The rental fee agreed to thus is based on a clear understanding (preferably written) of the terms and conditions of the agreement; on the ability of the renter to pay (based on the economics of the specific cattle venture in question) and, on the landowner receiving a reasonable return for services provided (based on his costs and/or alternate uses for the land in question).

For those interested, there will be an electric fencing seminar and demonstration at Stony Plain Oct. 19.

For further information on pasture leasing or the electric fencing seminar, please give us a call at 542-5368 or stop by the office.

Boy Scouts gearing up for new season

Breton News

Darcy Lee graduated as a registered nursing assistant Sept. 22. She was honored to be chosen as class historian. Lee will be employed in the Stony Plain area following her Nov. 4 wedding.

Gunnar Hanson is home following recent surgery.

Breton Boy Scouts

The Boy Scouts are gearing up for the new year. Boy Scouts include Beavers (five to eight years of age), Cubs (eight to 11), Scouts (12-15), Venturers (16-17) and Rovers (17 and up).

Over the years, with help from several leaders, support from the community and sponsorship from the Breton Elks, the boys have participated in local camps planned by the leaders and joined with other groups in the district to attend camps.

Cubs camp out at Funerama one weekend of the year and Beavers attend a similar indoor camp called Camporee. In the early spring, Scouts, Venturers and Rovers participate in the annual Devon Challenge Camp.

Younger boys take part in Cub Kar Races. They are provided with a kit which includes a block of wood, a set of wheels and regulations. Their imagination takes over from there. Meets are held with other groups in the area, with ribbons and trophies up for grabs.

Kite Days is another annual event on the district level the boys look forward to.

Breton Boy Scouts host an annual family toboggan party on a local hill. Hay rides, bowling and swimming are some of the other fun things the boys enjoy.

And the list goes on. The Breton Boy Scouts invite families and interested parties to attend a winter roast Saturday, Oct. 14 at 2 p.m. in the park (downtown). Any boys wishing to register for the 1989-90 year may do so at that time.

In Memoriam

MACLEAN, HUGH
In remembrance of our beloved Hugh, born May 23, 1903, passed away, October 11, 1989. There is a place that haunts us ever, And a voice which brought us cheer, And a smile we'll forever remember, When in silence we cry every tear. We think of him in silence, Of the name we call in prayer, There is nothing left to answer, But his picture on the wall. God took him home, it was His will, But in our hearts we love him still; His memory is as dear to us all, As in the hour he passed away. We often sit and think of him, When we are all alone, For memory is the only friend That God can call on his own. What would we give to clasp his hand, His happy face to see, To hear his voice and see his smile, That meant so much to me. We dream of you, dear loved one, And see your smiling face, And know that you are happy in our Father's chosen place. Those whom we love go out of sight, But never out of mind. They are cherished in the hearts, Of those they leave behind. Loving and kind in all his ways, Upright and true in all his days; Steadfast and true in heart and mind, Beautiful memories be left behind. Nothing can ever take away, The love our hearts hold dear. Fond memories linger every day, Remembrance keeps him near. From the Family

McGee mania sweeps through Drayton Valley

By Susan Moscona
and Paul Cudla

The popping of champagne marks the landslide victory of Tom McGee over Bob Mayhew Monday night.

McGee claimed an overwhelming 1,603 votes out of 2,278 ballots cast (a record 60 per cent voter turnout), with Mayhew getting a mere 675 in comparison.

"The people have made a decision and the mandate is for change and change is what they'll get," McGee promised.

More than 100 people crowded into the lounge to celebrate and toast the new mayor of Drayton Valley.

"Up to 70 people worked on my campaign," said McGee. "They are the people that created an election."

The mayor elect started campaigning Sept. 23. "I knocked on every apartment, every trailer and every door." He said he missed only two apartment buildings because he couldn't gain access.

"I had an excellent response." Although he walked away from some doors knowing he didn't have a vote, he said the respect was still there.

Some change in store for the town is the restructuring of committees, according to McGee.

There will be an organizational meeting within the next two weeks, at which time the committees the council members sit on will be established.

"We need input from the public at large — utilizing the public more on these committees, said the man whose political platform was approachability.

"I would like to have the public involved in all aspects of council.

Williams threatening lawsuit

By Paul Cudla

Former St. Anthony school principal Ron Williams is threatening to sue the separate school board for wrongful dismissal.

Williams, who has been principal for six years, received a 30-day suspension with pay, and notice of termination Friday, Oct. 6. The suspension and notice of termination were served to Williams after a Thursday night special meeting held with the board and the ex-principal.

Williams said he was given six reasons for his impending dismissal "which I regard as being insignificant and untrue, and that's why we're going to court."

By seeking council with the Alberta Teacher's Association (ATA), Williams has been appointed legal counsel and will be attempting to set a court date.

The suspended principal said one of the grounds for the suit will be "that the board has not behaved in a fair and reasonable way."

communicate with the town."

McGee has no immediate plans for major changes and said all plans will have to be discussed with his council.

He was immensely pleased with voter turnout at the polls and with election results. "I felt there was a majority of people that wanted a change but certainly not the percentage that's been shown. It certainly adds to the mandate that it's time for that change."

Joan Anderson, school board chairperson, said the termination of Williams was a "personnel matter."

"We're trying to do the best possible thing for education," Anderson said.

According to the minutes from the Oct. 5 special board meeting the six reasons for Williams' termination are:

1. rude and disrespectful treatment of parents.
2. improper conduct toward board members and the superintendent of schools on Sept. 23, 1987.
3. poor leadership and lack of discipline in the school.
4. failure to promote Christian attitudes among administrators, teachers, and students.

Election results unofficial

All the results in the Drayton Valley municipal election are unofficial.

Returning officer Robin Wenbourne was still working on the final tabulations at 5 a.m. Tuesday morning.

The delay in getting the results out was due to the tremendous turnout at the polls.

A record 60 per cent of the 3,448 eligible voters cast their ballots in the municipal election.

Local News Briefs

What a difference a year makes.

Last year Drayton Valley area cowboy Clayton Hines was the top saddle bronc rider in Canada. It earned him a trip to the national finals in Edmonton.

This year Hines failed to qualify (to do this he had to make the top 10).

The first scheduled meeting for members of the new town council is Nov. 2.

The town has placed a new sign leading to the sanitary landfill. It replaces a sign that was the target of recent vandalism (paint spree).

A hearing is scheduled for today (Wednesday) on the temporary hoarding at Valley Concrete.

Town council wants the structure moved. It's currently tied up in legal hands.

Twenty pressure-reducing valves have already been installed in town in an attempt to regulate water pressure.

Expansion to the sewage treatment facility is expected to be completed next summer.

Renovations to the town's shop are expected to be finished by the end of October.

New festive lights will be ordered by the town next month.

Water mains are currently being flushed in town. This project is expected to be completed in another week.

The arena parking lot is scheduled to be paved next year.

"I'm proud of what has been accomplished these past three years," Councillor Dave Lundberg said during last Thursday's council meeting.

Lundberg did not seek re-election after serving on council for the past three years.

Mayhew praises campaign workers

Bob Mayhew

Bob Mayhew says he doesn't have any political plans. Drayton Valley's mayor of the past nine years made those comments early Tuesday morning.

At that time (approximately 2 a.m.) Mayhew unofficially had 675 votes compared to 1,603 for Tom McGee. Thirty-six ballots were reportedly ruined.

He praised the people who assisted him on his campaign and stood by him over the years.

"I had a lot of good people and I appreciate all of them. I'll never forget them," he said.

He also praised the contributions made to the town by the four incumbents — Jean Saunders, Charlie Miner, Howard Olsen and Alex Salfi.

"They're dedicated people. I thank them so much," Mayhew commented.

During his campaign that included knocking on every door in town, Mayhew said he met a lot of nice people.

He hopes the new administration will provide a much needed facility for the skateboarders.

"I don't apologize for what I've done," Mayhew stated. While she was undoubtedly unhappy about the results, the mayor's wife (Lil) said, "Their loss is my gain."

Planning to stay active

'Bear' Werscher

Garth 'Bear' Werscher is getting used to the bridesmaid's role.

On Monday night he finished 64 votes behind incumbent Wallace Wilson in the County of Wetaskiwin's Division 7.

Wilson led the three-man race with 247 votes followed by Werscher with 183 and Paul Jensen was third with 124.

Earlier this year Werscher, the Liberal candidate, lost out to MLA Tom Thurber in the provincial election.

"I hope to change the score some day," he said following his defeat to Wilson.

Werscher said he had won Alder Flats but Wilson took Buck Lake.

While defeat was hard to swallow, Werscher said he called Wilson after the results were final, and offered his congratulations.

Regarding his future political plans, Werscher says he plans to stay active in local affairs.

Incumbent Gordon Sellwood won Division 6 with 246 votes followed by Bob Blackmore with 143 and Ken Fung placed third with 112.

'I gave it my best shot'

Wayne Gent gave incumbent Geoff Hampton a scare in the County of Parkland's Division 7.

Hampton edged out Gent, the Tomahawk farmer, by a mere 39 votes.

The incumbent chalked up 264 votes followed by Gent with 225, Lila Fahlman 152, Sandy McNamee 107, Ben Richter 87 and Johnny Krasowski 47.

"I gave it my best shot and the people decided," Gent said following the election.

"I did a good job. I have no regrets," he added. Gent, who lost out in the Drayton Valley/Devon PC race earlier this year, is undecided about his political future.

Waters wins senate race

By Shaun Polczer

There will be several, new faces when Evansburg, Wildwood and Entwistle village councils meet in the coming weeks.

In Evansburg, Julien Smith, a rookie, topped the polls with 172 votes, followed by incumbent Margaret Conley, who had 144.

The other three positions were filled by incumbents Ron Nelson and Jerry Dick who had 122 and 108 votes respectively.

Doug Brown took the last vacancy with 102 votes.

Voter turnout was down from 1986. Only 231 residents cast ballots as compared to 240 three years ago.

In the school trustee election, Rosanne Kremnuk, an Entwistle teacher, romped over her only opponent Fred Fausak 273 votes to 145.

According to village administrator Lynn Bowers, council will hold its organizational meeting Oct. 24.

In Wildwood, four of five vacancies will be filled with newcomers.

In that race Cindy Bankosky led the way with 63 votes compared to James Brouse's 57.

George Reynolds finished next with 51 votes. He was the only incumbent running in this election.

David Patterson and Katherine Kors were neck in neck for the final positions, finishing with 45 and 40 votes respectively.

In the school board election, Kathy Havig was elected with 130 votes compared to 118 for Barbara Madden.

Stan Waters

Bud Dash won the ID election with 66 votes followed by Walter Gatske with 36, Pat Deoley 35 and Brent Winfield 19.

In Entwistle Jack Smith, Tim Yahasz, Harry Semenyina, Norman Hanson, and Dave Gylander were elected to the five vacancies on council. Final tally results were not available.

Monika Capps defeated Dave Gylander in the County of Parkland school board race.

In the senate election, Reformer Stan Waters led the polls in both Evansburg and Wildwood, with 60 and 106 points respectively. Senate results in Entwistle were not available.

Bill Code was second in Evansburg with 45 followed by Bert Brown with 43. In Wildwood, Brown was second with 53 and Code third with 42.

Results for all of the elections in all areas were unofficial at press time and may be subject to change.

Saunders leads council poll

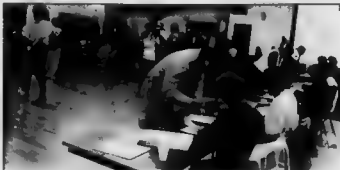

All four incumbents on town council were returned to office in Monday's municipal election.

Jean Saunders unofficially led the polls with 925 votes followed by newcomer Natalie Gibson with 825.

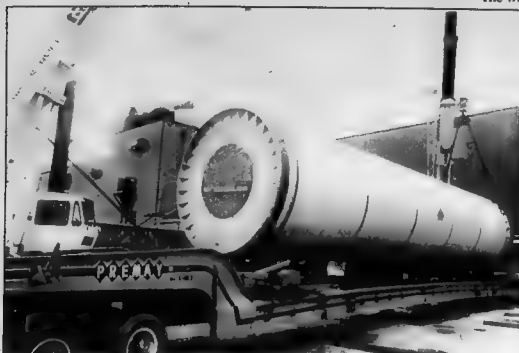

Alex Salfi finished third with 709 votes with Charlie Miner fourth at 698.

Mohammed Hamden, another newcomer, was fifth with 668 votes followed by Howard Olsen in the sixth and final councillor's seat with 656 votes.

The unsuccessful councillors were Terry Kilborn who received 592 votes, Grant Monsour 506 and Erich Wagner 362.

A record number of voters exercised their suffrage at the Elks Hall.

The third dryer being lowered into place.

Dryer to 'debottleneck process' at mill

By Paul Cudla

The Pelican Mills installed a third dryer which will improve production and cut down on particulate emissions.

The 124,000-pound dryer was installed with two cranes Oct. 11 and is planned to be fully operational by April.

Arden Engen, assistant engineer at Pelican Mills, said the dryer will help "debottleneck the process" at the mill.

"The dryers, at present, are taxed pretty heavily.

"The dryers tend to have down time and if there's dryer down time then the rest of the plant has to wait," Engen said.

Engen added the third dryer eliminates the overflow of wood flakes when another dryer is down.

The purpose of a dryer is to dry wet wood flakes at the second major step in the oriented-strandboard process before resin can be applied.

An additional improvement to the mill a third dryer provides is the reduction of particulate emissions.

"It does reduce the emission level because right now we're running the dryers hard.

"A third dryer will cut back on the workload on each dryer and thereby emissions will be reduced," Engen said.

Two injured in accident

By Susan Mosecicki

Two Blackfoot residents were injured in what RCMP Const. Greg Fedor termed "a very bad accident" about 60 kms west on Elk River Road Oct. 9.

Peter, 66, and Thelma Warman, 53, were westbound on Elk River road when their 1986 Chevrolet half-ton apparently caught the soft shoulder and rolled three times.

Thelma was thrown from the vehicle and was found on the road approximately 30 feet from where the vehicle stopped. She was transported by ambulance to Drayton Valley hospital and transferred to the University hospital in Edmonton. She received broken bones in the leg or hip area.

Peter was trapped behind the seat of the vehicle and was taken to Drayton Valley hospital and later released. He sustained superficial cuts and bruises.

"I just felt that that could have been a double fatality," Fedor said. "God was on their side."

Alcohol was not a contributing factor and no charges have been laid.

The vehicle is a total write-off.

Poor turnout at Breton

Voter turnout for the senate election was low in Breton.

Stan Walters of the Reform Party led the way with 36 votes followed by the PC's Bert Brown with 12, the Liberal's Bill Code was third with seven; independents Ken Paproski and Tom Sindlinger had one vote each and Gladys Taylor, also an independent candidate, didn't garner any votes in Breton.

There was no election for village council in Breton as everyone got in by acclamation.

The successful candidates include Colleen Lee, Jack Hilker, Ted Woods, Ben Rudolphsen and Randy Ezelyk.

Walter Wynnyk was also elected by acclamation to the Breton hospital board.

Ng petition not forgotten

By Susan Mosecicki

The 7,000-signature Ng petition submitted to the federal government by Don Regenwetter of Drayton Valley is not forgotten.

The petition requested that Charles Ng, accused of several murders in the United States, be extradited to the U.S. and that extradition laws be changed.

"Canada becomes a haven. We protect the guilty more than the innocent," said Regenwetter.

Canada will not extradite anyone that is facing certain death, he said. "We must know then that realistically he is guilty."

"Why should the Canadian taxpayer have to pay for that? Over a million dollars defending a criminal." He said the money would be better spent to reduce the national deficit.

Ng is accused of "many horrendous crimes in the States," he added. "Let them handle it."

"We should have extradition proceedings to expedite this thing."

Nothing can be done about extraditing Ng (for a two-month period) until the beginning of November because of a stay in proceedings, Regenwetter said, but he is at the last court of appeal.

"If anything is at fault here, it is our court system. To me it's like a two-month holiday (for Ng)."

A letter addressed to Regenwetter Sept. 22, 1989, from MP Joe Clark, stated, "As a senior minister of government, an injudicious statement on my part could be seen by the courts as influencing the case against Mr. Ng. I had — and continue to have — a peculiar obligation to keep my remarks to a minimum, and carefully worded, so as not to derail the court proceedings, which, of course, would be opposite to what you and many others would like."

"That's crap," said Regenwetter. "He should have an obligation, or at least a right, to tell his constituents. Why should your member of parliament not be able to have an opinion?"

Incumbents returned to board

All five incumbents have been returned in the Drayton Valley separate school board race.

They include Tim Kjoirein, Joan Anderson, Marilyn Buchan, Dennis Mellett and Lorne Pinkoski.

The board will hold its organizational meeting and official swearing-in next Thursday. The chairman and the committees will also be decided at that meeting.

Council and chamber: working together are strong voices in the community

The municipal election is over. Now we can get on with life.

Have you noticed how things often seem to come to a standstill when there's a municipal election or an important international hockey game?

Whatever the reason, the '89 municipal election is over and it's time to mend the fences and get on with life.

This election saw an apparent difference of opinion between some of the candidates and the chamber. That has to be patched up.

There's no stronger voice in a community than council and the chamber. Working together as one, can accomplish a lot. Working in opposite directions, won't accomplish a thing.

A lot of promises were made during the election. In many elections, whether federal, provincial or municipal, it's just talk.

But the candidates in Drayton Valley's municipal election came up with a lot of good ideas. Hopefully, some of these will be carried out.

The end of the municipal election also brings an end to some individuals' political careers. They were either defeated or retired.

The community owes these departing politicians a debt of gratitude for giving of their own time to make their community a better place to live.

Before we look to the future, we should reflect upon the past and the contributions of retiring politicians and take the time to say "THANKS."

Merwins made moving to strange town easier

"It was New Year's Day 1985 that I arrived in Drayton Valley.

A new job, a new town and because of a shortage of places to rent, I had to take a room in a modern country home.

That's how it was described in The Western Review's 'rooms for rent' section.

While my family waited in Red Deer until adequate rental accommodation could be found, it was back to partial room and board for me.

I consider myself awful lucky to get accommodation at June and Jerry Merwin's just south of town.

We hit it off that very first day, when it became known that we had both lived in Dawson Creek, B.C. Would you believe at the same time?

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

That first day we sat in the kitchen and talked for hours about the old days in Dawson Creek.

It was the start of a tremendous relationship. Not the same as some room and board situations I've found myself in over the years.

The Merwins had a warm and friendly home, as I'm sure most of the boarders who have stayed there will testify to. They treated most of us just like family.

That was just fine with me, as four months passed before we finally decided to buy a home in Drayton Valley because there just wasn't any accommodation at a reasonable price for a family of five.

I'll never forget the Merwins, and like many people, I'll sure miss them.

After 14 years in the Violet Grove area June and Jerry have moved to Armstrong, B.C.

I was scared that New Year's Day back in '85, coming to a new job in a new town. But June and Jerry Merwin made things a whole lot easier with a home away from home.

Government sales tax bad for economy and pocketbook

By Shaun Polczer

There comes a time in every party politician's career when the interests of constituents come into conflict with those of the association.

In cases such as these, an ultimatum is usually delivered to toe the line, or face the ultimate penalty of the group — censure.

It is a price too few are willing to pay in order to represent their constituents. And it is the government, in theory at least, which is supposed to serve the people, not the other way around.

The trials of the David Kilgour saga in the PC ranks are a case in point.

Here is a man who is trying to tell his party, the governing party, that his constituents are not in favor of a general sales tax, and he is being turned on deaf ears and told to express his views elsewhere.

Dissension in the ranks, it appears, will not be tolerated.

For a sports team or an army, this is to be expected; but for an elected government this is not only disgraceful, but downright anti-democratic.

The fact is, we need more elected representatives to express their constituents' views on vital issues such as the sales tax.

If the western MPs were being totally honest, they would be telling you this GST will be bad for our economy, and your pocketbook.

It is claimed the proceeds generated from the tax will go directly into deficit reduction.

Do not believe this for a minute! They said the same thing in 1917 when income taxes were only to be used to pay for the war effort, and then repealed.

Be assured that any revenues generated will be squandered needlessly and inefficiently.

In reality, over a billion dollars will have to be committed to pay for new collection and administration efforts in a mega-hiring boom of bureaucrats.

Comment

In addition, more enforcement will be required in an attempt to collect lost revenue from the huge black, untaxed market that will spring up as Canadians begin to realize it really will be cheaper and easier to pay straight cash for almost everything, conveniently forgetting about written receipts and invoices.

Where's the savings? The government will not be getting smaller, as is claimed, but bigger.

The best way to cut deficits is to cut spending, something the Mulroney Tories seem unwilling to do.

Meanwhile, Canadians are becoming some of the most taxed people on the planet, and for what?

In the middle of it all are our elected officials who are being told through scapegoats like Kilgour, to put up with it, or keep quiet.

It will be this Trudeauesque lust for power at all costs, ignoring people at the grass roots that will cost the Tories in Alberta come election time.

Joe, are you listening?

AADAC helps teens build on strengths

Dear Editor,

Regarding the article 'Report shows lack of teen activities' (Sept. 26), AADAC may be able to help.

AADAC is committed to helping teens build on their strengths and add to the abilities they already have. Community Projects is a program we have to assist teens in accomplishing this. It is intended to encourage teens to become involved in challenging experiences in their community. Seed money is available to get new activities off the ground.

Projects the Drayton Valley area office has supported include a computer club, peer support, a skipping club and a pipes and drum band. I would be more than happy to sit down with the teens or interested adults in exploring options available to them through Community Projects.

Sewer expansion will accommodate 9,000 residents.

Town accommodates sewage needs

By Paul Cudla

The town of Drayton Valley is expanding its sewage plant to accommodate sewage needs for the 1990s.

Manjeet Saran, town engineer, said the expansion would cost $1.6 million in total and would provide service for 9,000 residences.

The current two-cell plant operation services about 6,000 homes in the Drayton Valley area.

"The population is increasing," Saran said, adding the expanded plant is "a plan in advance" which intends to meet the sewage needs of the rising population.

The expanded sewage treatment plant, which will add two more cells to become a four-cell plant, is hoped to be finished in the summer of 1990. The land for the expansion was acquired in 1988.

A four-cell sewage operation will increase biological treatment and settling of waste and therefore improve the quality of effluent.

"Environment standards are always going up," Saran said.

Effluent from the Drayton Valley sewage plant runs into the North Saskatchewan river.

The sewage plant expansion requires earthwork of about 120,000 cubic metres, installation of 600 metres of sanitary piping, and placement of seven control structure manholes.

MD approves new ag. lease

MD Brazeau council approved an agricultural lease for municipal reserves policy last week.

The MD may issue permits (hay and crop production) for public reserve land to control vegetation, maintain the area and maximize use.

The policy will set out the procedure to govern leasing of municipal park reserves for agricultural purposes.

Central Alberta abductions spark awareness locally

The recent abductions and attempted abductions of children from the Innisfail, Red Deer, Lacombe areas are a reminder that children are vulnerable.

RCMP Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey says education of children with respect to strangers is important.

"When approached by a stranger, you go the other way. If necessary, run in the other direction," he says.

"You do not get in a strange car for any reason."

"It's fortunate we haven't had that problem to deal with," says Humphrey. "We're always conscious of it."

He says parent/child education is necessary as well as education provided by the police through school presentations, coloring books, etc.

"We wait for the request or invitation (to the schools).

"It's geared toward the younger children (kindergarten to Grade 6 or 7)," Humphrey says, adding older children are more street-wise and realize they shouldn't be going with strangers.

Martha Grove pushes her classroom through the halls of Evergreen school.

Pushcart for classroom

Some schools teach French in classrooms, but at Evergreen elementary a large pushcart is the French classroom.

Due to increased enrolments at the school in the past two years, classroom space has become scarce, necessitating the need for such mobile classes as the French cart.

For new French teacher Martha Grove, it is a case of making do with whatever she has to work with.

"A classroom would be really great," she says, explaining it would nice to post materials and students' work to enhance the learning environment.

An extra portable classroom has been requested, but none are available at this time.

In the meantime, it will be easy to catch a glimpse of Grove in between periods as she pushes her classroom on wheels to all of the homerooms in search of pupils to teach.

"French is an excellent language to learn. It opens so many doors in a country where it is one of the official languages spoken. Between French and English, you've pretty well got it covered just about anywhere in the world."

Construction will start in spring

The Drayton Valley hospital board has decided to proceed with their chapel plans.

According to hospital administrator Jim Jansen, the budget for the chapel has been increased from $160,000 to $225,000 and the board has scaled down the original plans.

The ladies hospital auxiliary will be contributing $100,000 toward the cost with the balance coming from unused requisition money left over from the original hospital.

Construction on the 1,800-square-foot chapel, to be attached to the southeast corner of the extended care wing, is expected to start next spring.

Tenders are expected to be opened in mid-December.

No changes expected in oil patch employment

A recent trip to Calgary to meet with oil companies has been called a resounding success.

Mayor Bob Mayhew and Councillor Howard Olsen met with executives of Amoco, Mobil and Pembina Resources to discuss recent layoffs in the oil patch and the companies' future plans for the area.

Both Mayhew and Olsen said all three oil companies were impressed the Drayton Valley delegation would show enough interest to meet with them.

"They have a high respect for this area," Mayhew said of the meeting with Amoco.

"I see Amoco being in Drayton Valley for many years without many changes," Olsen added.

Town council was informed during last Thursday's meeting that Mobil is anticipating more drilling in Drayton Valley.

"They have no intention of leaving Drayton Valley," Olsen stated.

"Pembina doesn't anticipate any changes in employment," according to the mayor.

All systems go

Darren Lambert was one of the men working on the new lights being installed at 50 Street and 46 Avenue. After a temporary delay, work is now progressing rapidly on the project.

Gov't red tape delays local food bank

Government red tape is causing havoc with local food bank organizers.

Eva Flanders says the establishment of a food bank in Drayton Valley is being delayed due to provincial government red tape.

Local organizers submitted their name request (Low Income Society) to the government back in July and are still waiting for a reply.

"I never thought it would take this long," Flanders said.

Due to all the red tape involved in trying to establish a society, Flanders says organizers have been talking to a local church about possible involvement.

Flanders said she had five calls last Wednesday from people looking for assistance. Because there's no food bank in place, some of the organizers took care of the pleas for help themselves.

Oil Caps promise to 'surprise a few' this season

By Paul Cudla

Although the Drayton Valley junior B Oil Caps lost all three of their weekend exhibition games, there was reason for optimism amongst the team.

"I was fairly impressed with the team," Grant MacDonald, head coach of the Oil Caps said, "I think we can be competitive with any team in the league."

On Friday night, the Oil Caps played Mayerthorpe and dropped a high-scoring, spirited 8-7 decision. The match not only marked the first game for the Oil Caps, it signified the return of junior 'B' hockey to Drayton Valley after a one-year layoff.

"That was a game we should have won," MacDonald said.

The Oil Caps actually held a 3-1 lead in the first period but Mayerthorpe scored three straight goals to turn the tables and hold a 4-3 lead after one period.

Mayerthorpe, a team which is not in the same division as Drayton Valley, was also playing its first game of the season.

Leading scorers for the Oil Caps were Trevor Fedorus with two goals and Jason Trenchuk with a goal and an assist.

The Lacombe Wranglers paid a visit to the Drayton Sports Centre on Saturday evening and handed the home team a 7-3 loss.

Despite a one-sided final score the game was fairly even.

"The score wasn't a reflection of the play," MacDonald said.

MacDonald added it was a good sign for the Oil Caps to be competitive against Lacombe which is one of the strongest teams in the division.

The Oil Caps completed the home and away series with Lacombe on Sunday afternoon where they were defeated 7-2.

Drayton Valley was hampered by the loss of five players who were unable to make the road trip. The Oil Caps were forced to shorten to two lines and three defencemen during the game.

The gloves drop and the sticks go flying as members from Drayton Valley and Mayerthorpe have a go at each other Friday night.

New general manager Al Fedorus, who replaces Bill Seison, coached the team in Lacombe and said the team "played well with what they had."

"I think we're going to surprise a lot of people this year," Fedorus said.

Fedorus and MacDonald both agreed the Oil Caps need to improve defensively.

"We have to play a little better defensively, coming out of our own end," Fedorus said.

"I'd like to see our defence move the puck a little quicker," MacDonald said.

The Oil Caps had their first experience with what can best be described as 'erratic' refereeing as refs were quite whistle happy Friday and Saturday night, but let the teams play in Lacombe on Sunday.

Bike racers end season with bang

By Paul Cudla

Three local cross-country bike racers ended their bike-racing season Oct. 7 at Smoky Lake by finishing strong in the final race of the Spruce Goose racing series.

Todd Lindahl completed his best year in cross-country racing by winning the Smoky Lake race and capturing the overall Spruce Goose series. Lindahl won the expert over-200cc class at Smoky Lake by a margin of about 20 minutes. He was testing out his new 1990 ATK 406cc bike supplied by Cycle Works.

He called the Smoky Lake course "tight woods and fast with nothing technical."

A total of 56 racers started from a shotgun start and completed four laps of the 22-km course.

For next season, Lindahl, 19, will be moving up to the masters class in cross-country.

"Next year I don't plan on winning masters but I'll be learning lots. I'll be going for consistency," Lindahl said.

Joe Pruden, also from Drayton Valley, took a second overall in the Spruce Goose series by taking a third in the Smoky Lake race. Pruden races in the senior over-200 cc class.

Gerald Mezzo (left), Todd Lindahl (centre) and Joe Pruden (right) display the trophies they won during the '89 season.

"I'll put more commitment into it next year. It was a good year this year, but it wasn't my best," Pruden said.

Pruden will also move up a class next year, as he steps up to the expert over-200cc class.

Gerald Mezzo won the junior over-200cc Spruce

Goose series as he took second place in his class at Smoky Lake.

Mezzo will be moving up next year to the senior over-200cc class where he looks forward to the "new challenge, and new people."

He has set a goal of finishing fifth or higher overall in the senior over-

200cc class next year and promises to "try and do better every time out; strive to excel."

Other Drayton Valley finishers at the Smoky Lake race were: Brian Hagman, Dennis Mezzo, Corey Vig, Yogi Abendroth, Craig Abendroth, and Dick Garant.

Hockey registrants down for '89

By Frank Ryan
The Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association reports that registrations are down. President Kevin Henry says 245 kids have registered compared to 280 last year. Henry isn't sure why their numbers are down this year. Other than it seems to be following a trend set a couple of years ago.

Midget, bantam, atom and novice registrations are all down this year while the pee wee totals are up. Coaches are needed. Henry says several members of the executive have been forced to take coaching jobs due to the shortage. Anyone interested in coaching is asked to contact

Henry. Due to a shortage of ice time, the association has arranged for five hours every Sunday in Evansburg for games and another 90 minutes on Thursdays for practices. They will also be making good use of the outdoor rink when the weather turns colder.

Despite the drop in registration and problems getting enough ice, Henry is extremely pleased with the response from parents signing up to work in the concession.

Two teams per week will share the workload in the concession. "Lots of people want to work extra," Henry says.

The concession will be open from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Friday, 6 a.m. to midnight on Saturdays and 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Sundays throughout the winter.

This is the first winter minor hockey has operated the concession in the sports centre.

Lunch pail hockey

Noon hockey at the sports centre has been attracting several local athletes.

New coach stressing team play

In appreciation:
Volunteer coach
Bob Griffiths

By Paul Cudla
Bob Griffiths is not only getting a start on his teaching career at H. W. Pickup junior high but he is debuting as a volleyball coach. Griffiths, who teaches industrial education, took the vacant coaching position on the girls senior volleyball team. "I think we're going to have a super team. What I'm impressed with is the girls have a super attitude. They're really going to be a good bunch of girls to work with," Griffiths says. Griffiths is a native of North Battleford, Sask. and a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan. The volleyball season started Oct. 16 and Griffiths is optimistic about the team's chances in the Twin Rivers division.

"We have a good team here. We're going to set our goals high and hopefully we'll achieve them," Griffiths said. The senior girls team at H. W. Pickup is hoping to capture the Twin Rivers championship over Lindale and Breton. "I hope we can really learn how to work as a group together and improve our volleyball skills." Griffiths said he has "always been interested in volleyball" and enjoys, "the skill of volleyball." In his first year as coach, Griffiths wants to stress team play. "The girls have as much responsibility as me, it's not just me running them."

Norette Oilers kick off with big win

The Norette Oilers started their 1989-90 hockey season off on the right foot last Saturday with a 10-6 win over the Mayerthorpe Kinsmen.

Daryl Winter, James Jelinski and Todd Janzen had two goals each for the Oilers who are playing in the Pembina Sturgeon league this season.

Greg Thompson, Shelby Jorgensen, Orest Traska and Ken Hutchinson netted single goals for the Oilers. Shane Mortenson picked up three assists.

The Oilers were tagged with 17 penalties while their opponents made nine trips to the sin bin.

On Saturday, the Oilers make the long trip to Athabasca.

A dozen players just weren't enough as Roses Well Services Clippers dropped a pair of weekend midget games on the road.

After jumping into a 1-0 first period lead the Clippers came out on the short end of an 8-2 decision in Edson on Sunday. The night before they lost 8-4 to Hinton.

Kevin Dusterhoft and Richard Black had the Clippers goals in the loss on Sunday.

In that contest the Drayton Valley squad were outshot 66-26.

Shawn St. Louis, Steven Boist, David Luneng and Kevin Dusterhoft had the Clippers goals in the loss to Hinton as they trailed 4-1 after the first period and 8-3 after 40 minutes.

Despite the two lopsided defeats coach Bernie Frost praised the work of goaltender Steven Cuiyefek.

Frost hopes to line up some more players from Evansburg and Warburg.

The Clippers play their first home game on Sunday when they host Onaway in a 6:15 p.m. game.

DV Meter dropped a pair of weekend games on home ice as they kicked off their atom hockey regular season schedule.

They dropped a 4-2 decision to Stony Plain on Sunday after losing a 3-1 heartbreaker to Edson on Saturday.

Loren Plotts and Curtis Carter had DV Meter's goals against Stony Plain while Josh Getzinger was the lone sniper against Edson.

Goaltender Lanny Patten drew a lot of praise from coach Rick LaPointe. In fact the coaching staff was extremely pleased with the team's play, considering most of the players are in their first year of atom hockey.

This weekend DV Meter plays at Edson and Hinton.

In a pee wee 'A' game, the Pile Base Rangers played to a 5-5 tie with Stony Plain.

Poor NHL draft ticket sales disappoints organization

Big Brothers/Big Sisters will net about $1,000 from their NHL hockey draft.

They had hoped to make about $8,000.

But poor ticket sales will mean the Drayton Valley organization will have to go out in the community to get more funds.

Originally they had hoped to sell 500 tickets. Instead they sold only 215.

Despite the decline in ticket sales, the prize money is still $10,000.

"I'm somewhat disappointed that we didn't sell enough tickets," president Marty Prentice said.

However, he thanked all those who did purchase tickets, especially those who came through at the end.

Despite declining ticket sales, Prentice says his group is planning another hockey draft next season.

A similar hockey draft in Red Deer, sponsored by Cosmos Rehabilitation Society also experienced poor ticket sales, selling just 270 of 500.

Grant available to groups

Non-profit community groups and organizations are being invited to submit project applications for part of a $40,000 recreation grant.

Recreation director Paul Nielsen says the grant, available through the provincial government is in the second year of a three-year program.

Any non-profit community group or organization submitting a bid to the town, is required to put up the matching funds.

Nielsen says the money is primarily for capital projects.

He also says several other groups in town have made applications to the government for similar funds.

Respect for Life group provides positive alternatives to abortion

There is a local organization dedicated to teaching respect...Respect for Life.

"It is education to promote respect for life from conception to natural death," said Anne Pinkoski, president.

"The unborn is a person," she said.

The pro-life group does not believe abortion is an option for unwanted pregnancies.

"Everyone should make their own decision but it should be an informed one," Pinkoski said.

Women/girls should be told that a baby's fingernails are formed at only 11 weeks, she said. And she'd like to see it referred to as a "baby" not a "fetus."

A pamphlet distributed by Respect for Life states, "It is no longer a matter of taste to accept or reject the fact that a new life comes into existence following fertilization. We were not tadpoles, indefinable cells, or poorly functioning adults before birth but splendidly functioning babies...growing and developing."

The group tries to promote positive alternatives to abortion and to provide support to women with problem pregnancies or those who wish to, or have given up their babies for adoption.

Pinkoski said the group has made presentations in the local schools and has presented them with informative reading material as well.

A new executive was chosen at a recent general meeting. Pinkoski is the new president, Fran MacLellan is past-president, Muriel Hartley, vice-president; Chris Kreiser is secretary, and treasurer is Norma Fysar.

Public meeting Nov. 1

Residents' concerns about the location of a new transfer station near Lodgepole has prompted the MD to hold a public meeting.

"The old site was a landfill site. This will be a nice, little building with bins, kept clean and tidy," said John Eriksson, manager.

"We're trying to build an attractive site that will be convenient to the hamlet."

The site the MD is considering is at the east end of the hamlet, however in a letter addressed to the MD, some residents asked the location be further from the hamlet.

Eriksson said a meeting about the transfer station site and the area structure plan will be held Nov. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lodgepole community hall.

Fleming named assistant

In a council meeting last week, the MD Brazeau accepted quotations from two local auto dealerships for vehicles for the new assistant director of public works and senior safety officer.

Terry Fleming, former supervisor of land services, will be the new assistant director of public works and the senior safety officer position is expected to be filled within the next two weeks.

A Bronco will be purchased from Sunshine Ford, and a Blazer from Mayhew Motors. Trade-in value helped to determine which vehicles were chosen.

IGA construction behind schedule

The new IGA store won't be ready until early in the new year.

An IGA spokesman says the delay is because the work didn't go as fast as expected.

Now, the new store, being built between Field's and the Westwind Motel Inn, will not open until the end of January or early February. Originally IGA had hoped to be in the store by the end of October.

MD building storage site

Because of the paving of the Lodgepole Road to the Elk River Road, the MD has decided to build a storage site in the hamlet to house salt and sand for roads for winter.

"We needed an alternate source of salt and sand," said manager John Erikson.

He said the site will be located at the west end of Lodgepole.

Best weapon against cancer is positive attitude — CanSurmount

By Shaun Polczer

Having cancer is like facing a huge mountain that seems impossible to get around.

Many would feel this would be the end of the road, that the journey of life had ended.

There is a group in Drayton Valley however, that says cancer can be overcome; that the mountain is just the beginning of a trek over top of it.

Lending an ear, sharing a common experience...

They are CanSurmount, a support group for cancer patients and their families to help people face the intimidating shadow cast upon their lives by this dread disease.

They do this by sharing a common experience, lending ears when needed, and providing the information needed to deal with the situation.

All volunteers are cancer patients themselves.

The group was established in Colorado in 1973 through the Cancer Society, and came to Drayton Valley in 1985. Organizers Debbie Walker, and Sandra Bioletti say the best weapon against cancer is a positive attitude, which CanSurmount tries to help form.

Meetings are a kind of group therapy that help patients and their families meet emotional needs by sharing the fears, frustrations, and anger only people who have experienced cancer can really understand.

Helping people learn more about cancer and its treatment also helps them to deal with it in their everyday lives.

Walker was diagnosed with sarcoma 14 years ago, while Bioletti was diagnosed with liver cancer 13 years ago. Bioletti is now completely cured, while Walker still undergoes chemotherapy.

Both agree that cancer can be beaten.

Another aim of the group is to increase public awareness of the disease. With cancer affecting about one in every three Canadians, either directly or indirectly, there is obviously a need for this type of service in the community.

Ironically, there are only about 14 Drayton Valley area members currently in the group out of a total population of close to 10,000.

Anyone affected by cancer, either by direct diagnosis, or through relation to a family member or friend who would be interested in CanSurmount, is encouraged to contact a volunteer.

For more information, call Debbie Walker at 542-6212, or Sandra Bioletti at 542-3983.

Interagency acts as liason

By Shaun Polczer

The Drayton Valley and area Interagency Group is seeking new members to help coordinate people services in the town.

The group is an informal collection of representatives from other groups or agencies that dispense people services of a social or emotional nature. These agencies can be private, professional, governmental, or charitable in nature.

Together they discuss ways they can work together to provide more effective services in the community, avoiding duplication and filling in any gaps.

For example, last spring they recognized a need for youth-oriented programs and set up a teen conference and organized a suicide prevention workshop and hotline.

In addition, they bring in speakers to discuss various issues and help organize other events and workshops within the community aimed to help people lead a better quality of life.

The Interagency group also acts as a liason between the community and various levels of local government to identify local service needs.

Carolyn Schoeppe, who represents Eldorado school in the group, says she expects an FCS office will be opened in Drayton Valley soon, partly due to the efforts of such organizations as the Interagency group, who have been requesting the service for some time.

Schoeppe also said the membership drive is an attempt to fill some gaps in the group's representation.

"We would really like to see a police officer in the group for example," she said, adding that physicians are also under-represented in the group.

Anyone involved in providing services for people in the community are welcomed to join.

The Interagency group meets on the first Tuesday of every month in the provincial building's AADAC conference room at noon.

Meetings are informal, and those attending can bring their lunch.

Safety in winter avoids tragedy

Perhaps one of the worst things about winter in Alberta is starting the car on cold winter mornings. Most of us just dash out to the car and back into the house as quickly as possible.

St. John Ambulance reminds you to be safety-conscious this winter. Carelessness or laziness could have tragic results.

Not bothering to open the garage door on a cold morning when you start the car can fill the room with deadly carbon monoxide fumes, that go unnoticed until it is too late. Carbon monoxide fumes are both odorless and invisible, making safety precautions even more necessary.

A person suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning will be confused and disoriented. Unconsciousness will follow and, without proper treatment, eventually death.

The victim should be moved into fresh air and artificial respiration started immediately if breathing has stopped.

Before entering a gas-filled room, breathe-in and out several times, then take a deep breath and hold it. Get in and out of the room quickly and keep close to the floor because carbon monoxide is lighter than air. Remember to leave the door open while you are in the room.

When sitting in a stationary vehicle with the motor running, always open a window 2.5 cm (one inch) to ensure ventilation. If you have a station wagon or hatchback, do not open the rear window as this will draw fumes into the car.

For more information on winter safety and first aid, contact your nearest branch of St. John Ambulance, or call the provincial office at 452-6565.

Locals win 4-H honors

Two local 4-H members have been awarded prestigious scholarships for their community involvement, 4-H achievements, future education goals and academic standing.

Lisa Kuhn has been honored with the Petro-Canada scholarship of $1,000. She is attending the University of Alberta.

Molly Davie, also attending the U of A, is the recipient of the Alberta Treasury Branch $1,000 scholarship.

Kuhn is one of four, and Davie one of seven across the province to receive these awards.

In-town

Sewer contract awarded

Video Inspection Services has been awarded a $41,412 contract by the town to complete the in-town sewers. Four quotes were received to complete a video inspection of the town's sanitary sewer system.

The successful tender also includes a complete manhole survey which the town feels will be very useful in determining infiltration problems.

Video Inspection Services' bid was the lowest of the four presented to council last week. In Line Pipe was next with a quote of $48,453 followed by Pressure Vac Surveys at $52,796 and ISI's bid was $62,980.

The earliest completion date as submitted by Video Inspection Services is Dec. 15.

Tourism needs locals

Town council will have to make some major decisions when it meets next month on the tourist action plan committee. At the present time the six-member committee has drafted up a list of 36 proposals.

But according to council representative Jean Saunders, the committee is not all that happy.

Saunders admits that all of the projects on the list are municipal- or chamber-oriented. And quite simply, they need more from the private sector.

Due to a lack of participation on the committee, council will have to deal with a recommendation from the group to expand to 10 or 12 members.

Saunders says what the committee has done to date is fine, but more input from the community is needed.

And, even if council goes along with the committee's recommendations, Saunders says it won't be easy getting people involved.

"I'm finding it hard to get local people involved," she says.

It's time to take fall soil samples

By Elaine Ryl
District Agriculturist
The time for fall soil sampling is here.

Summerfallow fields should be sampled after mid-October or when soil temperatures are below 10 degrees Celsius. Established hay and pasture fields and stubble fields can be sampled any time after mid-September. Sampling later in the fall will provide a more reliable estimate of what levels of nitrogen will be available next spring.

To get accurate soil test results, it is important to collect representative samples and handle and package them carefully.

The following are some things to keep in mind when sampling your field:

- Do not sample water-logged or frozen soil.
- Take samples from representative areas of the field; avoid unusual areas like old fence lines, manure piles, old hay stack areas or eroded knolls.

• Sample at least 15 to 20 random sites throughout the field and mix thoroughly. The labs require at least one pound of dry soil to do the analysis.

• If you notice the distinct differences in crop growth in the field, it may be worthwhile sampling the areas separately to identify reasons for the difference in growth.

• Samples can be taken for the different depths, i.e.: 0-6 inches, 6-12 inches and 12-24 inches. This will provide you with more information on your soil profile and help identify problems.

• Air-dry the samples by spreading them on clean plastic or paper. When the samples are completely dry, package and label each sample and send to the lab of your choice. Soil test fees and services vary with different labs.

• Fill out the information sheets accurately. The information requested by the labs is important for accurate recommendations. Soil sampling kits and information sheets are available at the Alberta Agriculture office (542-3368). The Agricultural Service Board (MD of Braseau) has a new soil sampling program in place for this fall.

They have a truck-mounted soil sampler and will come out to help sample your fields. These samples will be sent to the Alberta Agriculture soils lab for analysis.

The soil test report will provide measurements of available nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, sulfur, PH, salinity and free lime. It will also give fertilizer recommendations for next year's crop.

Town pioneer chronicles history

By Shaun Polczar

A former resident of Drayton Valley and a legitimate town pioneer in his own right has provided some unique insights into the early development of the area in a new book he has written and published.

The Well That Couldn't Be Tamed, by Harry Knight, is a story of the early days in the oil and gas industry, of equipment, and of the boom times that the machinery pulled from the ground.

It is also the story of several local communities Knight lived and worked in between the 1920s and the '70s, including Leduc, Drayton Valley and Wainwright.

The oil and gas industry has, of course, totally changed the way people once lived. In Alberta, revolutionizing almost every facet of everyday life.

In fact, oil and gas has totally revolutionized the world economy and transformed the global political situation as well.

In the middle of it all was Harry Knight, who came out West from Toronto at the age of 15 in 1927 as a laborer, and worked his way through the oil patch to become a rig supervisor and ultimately, an independent driller.

He experienced first hand
Hall looking to expand

The Scout Hall Association is looking at expanding its facility.

President Darlene Van Ember says the association is looking at putting a basement under the Scout Hall or expanding the building to the west.

She says preliminary talks have been held with the town but any final talks will be held with the new council. The town is involved in the talks because they own the land where the Scout Hall is located.

Van Ember says the hall is extremely busy, often double- and triple-booked.

the back-breaking work that built this part of the country, and saw the changes prosperity brought first hand.

It is a fascinating account.

There is a wealth of historical and factual information in his pages, but make no mistake, Knight is first and foremost a top-notch story teller.

Throughout the book, Knight uses a very loose, conversational style that does justice to his animated storytelling ability. There are no points for perfect grammar here, but that is unimportant.

These are, literally, the words from his mouth on the page.

The story he obviously relies most, is the story of the well that couldn't be tamed, the famous blowout of Atlantic #3 at Leduc in 1949.

He was there; he saw the whole thing; he even helped to put it out. It was the classic confrontation between man and his environment, of St. George battling the dragon's fiery breath.

"A blowout well is a monster," Knight crackles, "and it's just like fighting one."

The man Knight worked with to drill the relief well that eventually killed the blowout was known only as Paul Adair, but went on to earn his famous handle "Red" at the Leduc site, launching a career as a famous wildcat well fighter.

In addition to the basic story, Knight also adds several philosophic asides that illuminate his topic further.

"The government takes all and gives nothing back," he says, explaining the boom and bust cycle that seems to accompany resource development. "If it weren't for the big oil companies, there wouldn't be anything. They aren't the bad guys, the government is."

He also laments the passing of the common sense that seemed to accompany the old ways.

"In all the time I worked on the rigs, only one man was ever killed, and we never had any training other than experience. Last year in Alberta alone, there were 19 fatalities."

"You don't learn nothing from books," he says, "only by getting out there and doing it, will you ever learn anything," summing up an attitude that could just about sum up his life.

INVITATION TO TENDER

We invite all interested parties to tender for the slashing, loading and hauling of 17,000 tonnes (more or less) of aspen from our cut areas to Weyerhaeuser of Canada's Drayton Valley plant.

The aspen will be logged to roadside through-out three separate licenses. At this time, approximately 4500 tonnes is logged and ready to slash.

Work can commence immediately and must be completed before March 1, 1990. It is important that the aspen operation keep pace with our tree length coniferous log haul to enable road closures and debris disposal.

Interested parties are asked to please contact Craig Corser at 723-2426 for full details.

Curlers want gas meter

Town council has sent two requests from the curling club back to administration for further investigation and recommendation.

The curlers want permission to install a gas meter in the mechanical room at the sports centre.

According to a letter from curling club representative Dwight Kuzek, this request, if granted by the town, would be a cost-saving measure.

And the curlers are offering the town some dirt, which is available at the sight of their new facility.

Local air cadets salute new season

By Shaun Polczer
The Drayton Valley squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets began its 27th season recently with their first CO's inspection.

The cadets are a youth group with strong ties to the Department of National Defence and the Royal Canadian Legion open to boys and girls 12 to 19 years of age.

It began in 1941 as a peer group for families of airmen in the service during the war with the aim of providing pre-training for eventual new recruits. The Drayton Valley chapter was formed in 1961.

Although the para-military focus has remained since the war, the strongest ties to the armed forces these days are traditional.

New recruits are taught such military formalities and rituals as lining up, marching in step, answering to roll call and inspection.

School division opens house

The Twin Rivers school division will hold an open house this Friday.

It will be held between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. in the Twin Rivers office building on the Industrial Road.

MLA Tom Thurber, members of the Breton, MD and Drayton Valley town councils along with Twin Rivers trustees have been invited to attend.

Displays will be set up for viewing.

The public is invited to attend the open house.

Squadron commanding officer Randy Romanchuk says these help to instill traditional military values that promote good citizenship.

"The three goals of cadets are to teach leadership skills, good citizenship, and personal physical fitness while promoting general interest in aeronautics," he said.

And flying is the main reason kids join cadets, after all.

If they stay in the program, recruits will be eligible to acquire their pilot's licence by age 17.

In addition to glider and plane flights at airbases, cadets also learn survival skills at various camping outings through the year and how to handle firearms at the shooting range.

The group is sponsored officially by the Royal Canadian Legion and co-sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary, while the Department of Defence supplies the uniforms, tours, planes used in flights, as well as the courses cadets eventually take to get their pilot's licences.

The squadron conducts extensive fundraising as well, holding bingos every month, raffling tickets, and selling trees at Christmas time to name a few.

"Considering the support we get, we don't have to go too overboard on the fundraising," explained the CO, "but it does help us out."

After 27 years, Romanchuk can confidently say there is a strong relationship between the cadets and the rest of the community, describing an aura of tradition that surrounds the outfit in Drayton Valley.

And he is equally confident that after 1,500 cadets in all those years, town residents notice the extra qualities they develop.

The squadron numbers 63 this year including 21 from the Evansburg area.

Cadets stomp to attention.

Most local schools report high enrolment figures

Several new attendance levels were reached at Twin Rivers schools this year.

The 651 total enrolment at Eldorado is their best in the last seven years according to school division records.

The total attendance is boosted by 176 kids in kindergarten classes.

But still with 475 (not including the kindergarten total) Eldorado is well above their best in the last seven years.

Last year's student enrolment reached 426.

Eldorado has 182 children in Grade 1 and 149 in Grade 2 which is the highest in the past seven years.

The 418 students registered at Evergreen is just two higher than last year's final attendance figure.

H.W. Pickup junior high has also set a seven-year high with a total of 448 students. This is the first time in seven years they have gone over the 400 mark.

They established a new mark in Grade 7 with 165 compared to the old high of 139 and they have 136 students registered in Grade 8, which is just two better than the old mark.

For the first time in seven years enrolment at Frank Maddock high went over the 500 mark with a September attendance of 510. Their previous high was 478 students in 1987-88.

Their drastic increase in numbers was reflected in Grade 12 with 185 students compared to a previous high of 120.

Breton high recorded its best attendance in seven years with 182 students this year.

Breton elementary registered 180 students which is down from last year's 197. The 180 is their lowest in the past seven years.

Enrolment is also down at Lindale where 94 students registered this year. That's two less than last year.

Overall, Twin Rivers numbers are up drastically.

Attendance at the seven schools total 2,463, which compares with 2,173 last year.

Roadside sign a 'rat-free' reminder

Travellers coming into Alberta on the Yellowhead highway now have a visible reminder they are entering a "rat-free" province.

This spring a roadside sign telling about the Alberta rat control program was erected outside Lloydminster on Highway 16. Alberta Agriculture has selected a number of major highways along the province's eastern border as sites for the signs. They will be part of the education element of the rat control campaign.

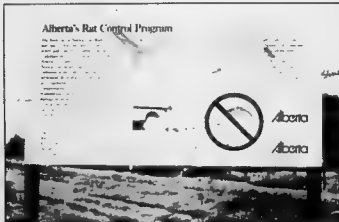

The roadside sign—jointly erected by Alberta Agriculture, Alberta Culture and Multiculturalism and the County of Vermilion River—describes the history of rat control in Alberta and informs passersby of the current program.

Soon after the first report of Norway rats in Alberta was confirmed in the early 1950s, a long-term rat control strategy was put in place. Over the last 38 years Alberta has successfully stemmed the westward migration of the Norway rat through the joint efforts of Alberta Agriculture and municipalities along the province's eastern border.

Norway rats destroy and contaminate food and spread organisms responsible for food poisoning, hepatitis, tularemia and other diseases. They can weaken building foundations, sewer and water lines and city streets by tunneling and can also weaken and deface buildings by gnawing through floors, walls, insulation and supporting structures.

These rats aren't native to North America. They were introduced to the east coast around 1775 and slowly moved westward.

What luck to get a washing machine and just think, no money down and don't pay until 1990.

Gov't funds facility

St. Albert-based Alberta Oats Ltd. recently accepted an offer of federal/provincial assistance totalling $250,000 to establish an oat processing facility in Daugh.

The funds were made available under the agricultural processing and marketing agreement (APMA).

The project, representing a private sector investment of $1.4 million, is expected to generate a minimum of five jobs within a three-year period. Further benefits include increased exports of Alberta products, enhanced market opportunities for farmers, and the creation of positive regional economic development in rural Alberta.

The new facility will produce double re-cleaned oats for animal consumption. In addition to double re-cleaning, the firm will be polishing, grading and groating oats.

Alberta Oats Ltd. will construct a plant and warehouse, as well as purchase and install equipment and storage bins. The company expects to market its oat products in both bagged and bulk form to Canada and the United States.

Leduc area landowners overestimate land values

By Paul Flegel
Leduc Representative
Recently released land-value figures for Leduc County show local landowners overestimated the value of their land by as much as 159 per cent over the past decade.

Dollars-per-acre statistics compiled by the Battle River Regional Planning Commission indicate local landowners overvalued their land at least twice as much as landowners in four neighboring counties.

The average price for an acre of local farmland in 1981 was $543, according to Alberta Agriculture. However, the average estimate by landowners valued the same land at $1,406 per acre.

Figures from 1986 reveal a drop in the percentage of overestimates locally but Leduc County landowners still exceeded their closest counterparts by 32 per cent.

BRRPC officials say the county's proximity to the city of Edmonton may explain the exaggerated figures.

The closer you get to an urban centre the higher the land values," says planner Greg Scerback. "And you may have land speculators driving around, trying to buy land, driving up prices."

The report on agriculture land values states land prices in the region rose faster than crop prices in the '70s. And while barley prices tripled from 1970 to 1981, farm land increased in value over 10 times.

High interest rates killed the boom, suggests the report, as illustrated by the crop yield required to pay just the interest on some land.

In Leduc County for example, the interest cost on an acre of land in 1982 — based on the prime lending rate plus two per cent — was about $100. A farmer would have to take in a 42-bushel barley crop — at the rate of $110 per tonne — to cover just the interest.

Bob Riddett, deputy director with the commission, suggests land values in the Edmonton area are inflated by a combination of forces but notes, "It's a seller's market and you have a lot of good land."

Speculating on the cause of overestimates by Leduc County landowners, he says local property owners may have less of an understanding of land values, as a majority may be non-farmers. On the other hand, a landowner in the county of Flagstaff is more likely to be a farmer and more familiar with land prices.

Yet speculative pressure in the Leduc area may have caused landowners to be very optimistic, says Riddett.

In summarizing the report, appearing in Battle River Trends, he concludes: "Farmers are still overvaluing their land but they have become a lot more realistic."

Labor of love

Jehovah's Witnesses from all over Alberta joined forces to co-struct a new Kingdom Hall in Drayton Valley Oct. 7 and 8. The project took only two days to complete with more than 1,000 volunteers participating. It was the fourth such project in Alberta this summer. Full-course meals were served on site as well as refreshments throughout the weekend. The new building will more than double the available space for the local Jehovah's Witnesses.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

"When Sheldon (Fuson) found out I had firefighting experience (two years in Edson), he drafted me," says Ian Dunn.

"I liked the idea. I had full intentions of joining."

Dunn has been a firefighter in Drayton Valley for the past four years.

"It's still a thrill when the pager goes off," he says. "As depressing as some of the scenes you are at, helping people is something that makes me feel good."

Some of the practice sessions can get a little boring. Some of it's a little mental, I guess, but it has to be done.

The biggest thrill of all is, he jokes, "Once in a while when you're at A&W and the pager goes off, you get to ride in the chief's car."

Twin Rivers students start break Dec. 22

Students attending Twin Rivers schools will break for the traditional Christmas holiday on Dec. 22.

And return to classes on Monday, Jan. 8.

The fact that students will only get out of classes three days before Christmas was raised by trustee Carolyn Strand at the last Twin Rivers school board meeting.

She suggested students should get the week off prior to Christmas because they were often too "hyper" to work.

Lindale principal Dennis Harris, who hosted the board meeting, said he liked the idea of the holiday to follow Christmas.

According to Twin Rivers deputy superintendent Gary Unterschultz, the Christmas holidays are usually decided in conjunction with other school districts in the area.

Unterschultz expects some strain on school attendance due to the late start in the Christmas holidays.

Some students are expected to miss classes, especially if they are travelling out of the area for Christmas.

"There's no easy way around it," admits Unterschultz.

Marketing seminar in Camrose

Showing producers and agribusiness how they can market and not just sell their products is the aim of a two-day seminar in Camrose Nov. 16 and 17.

Seminar speakers will discuss innovative marketing and new or different marketing avenues during the seminar.

Commodities discussed will include wheat, oats, barley, canola, feeder cattle, slaughter cattle, pork and peas and forages. There will also be a session on market information services and the general agreement on tariffs and trade (GATT).

For more information about the seminar, contact the Alberta Agriculture district office in Camrose at 679-1210.

Choking on pen cap can happen

Consumer's Corner

By Samia Vallevand
Consumers' Association

A major pen manufacturer in Britain has found a simple solution to a serious safety hazard. The design of its ballpoint pen caps has been modified by snipping off the end.

This leaves a small hole that could provide an airway if a child accidentally inhaled the cap leaving it lodged in the throat. Since 1970, at least 10 British children have died this way.

One pen manufacturer in Canada has said there are no plans to put holes in the ends of their caps. This was because that company had not heard of any choking incidents in Canada, and only two in the United States.

That doesn't mean it hasn't happened. The product safety branch of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada has had one report of a child who died after choking on a pen cap. Other incidents may have occurred but not been reported to CCAC.

A hole in the end of the cap seems an ingenious way to ensure such accidents can't happen. Chairman of the Canadian Paediatric Society's accident prevention committee, Dr. Richard Stanwick, supports the idea.

If you are aware of other incidents where a small child has choked on a pen cap, write to Canadian Consumer at Box 9300, Ottawa, Ont. K1G 3T9.

You have STD: what now?

(The Alberta government has launched a sexually transmitted disease awareness campaign, running from Sept. 4 to Nov. 4. This is the last of a three-part series.)

The diagnosis is usually hard to take: you've got a sexually transmitted disease (STD). What now?

First comes the questions. Who gave it to me? Who did I spread it to? Why did I get it?

The answers are easy. You almost certainly got it from a sexual partner, either a regular partner or a one-time partner.

You've probably spread it to anyone who has had sexual contact with you. If you're pregnant, you may have spread it to your unborn child as well.

And you probably got it because you or your partner didn't use a latex condom. You may have forgotten that STD germs are invisible, and that you can't tell who is infected and who isn't.

Next comes the treatment. Your physician will probably prescribe medication to treat the disease and ease the symptoms.

Third comes the contact tracing. You'll be asked to notify all recent sexual partners about your infection so they can receive treatment as well. If you're a bit nervous about handling this yourself, the STD clinic staff can help.

Do you understand how and why?

The last step is the prevention counselling. Do you understand how and why you became infected? Do you know how to prevent re-infection?

You'll probably be advised to insist on a latex condom every time you have sex. You'll also be told not to try to guess who's infected and who isn't. Most STD germs are invisible to the naked eye, and it's almost impossible to tell if your partner is infected.

In Alberta in 1988, nearly 20,000 people were diagnosed with STD. Most of them were successfully treated. Some of them contracted AIDS and cannot be cured.

Sometimes best to say no

All of them were given the same advice: use a latex condom every time you have sex. If you have any doubts at all, sometimes it's best to say "no" to sex.

For more information about sexually transmitted diseases, contact your local physician or the STD clinics in Edmonton, Calgary or Fort McMurray.

And remember, using a latex condom is a bit like wearing a seatbelt. You never know when you'll need it, so it's wise to use it every time — just in case.

Diploma results low

Diploma examination results for Twin Rivers high school students are in.

In June students wrote examinations in English 30 and 33, social studies 30, math 30, biology 30, chemistry 30 and physics 30.

Final marks are arrived with a blending of a 50 per cent school mark and a provincial final, also with 50 per cent.

Following are the Twin Rivers examination marks for June with the provincial marks in brackets: English 30 - 62.29 (66.5); English 33 - 55.74 (61.80); social studies 30 - 60.68 (64.2); math 30 - 59.29 (54.2); biology 30 - 70.55 (65.1); chemistry 30 - 65.40 (67.3) and physics 30 - 63.04 (68.6).

"It will be important for us as a jurisdiction to undertake an assessment as to why the results are so low.

"From year to year achievement will fluctuate so that particular subjects will be up and down for various reasons. We will be looking at trends to determine where improvements can be made," states a press release from Twin Rivers.

"It is important for all concerned, students, parents and staff, to search for the ways and means to improve upon student outcomes. The challenge is here for us to work towards improvement and we can be encouraged.

"At the school and jurisdiction level we must search for excellence in terms of program offerings and delivery, planning for and expecting student success," the release also stated.

Not my fault, how was I to know I had married Mr. Clean?

By Chris Krueger

The diagnosis was grim; prognosis - poor.

Unbelievable as it seemed, even as the doctor was talking, I knew in my heart it was true — I was medically proclaimed cleaning impaired.

Fred had seen the symptoms almost daily in our lives. Unmade beds, dust on the furniture and, of course, the much discussed junk drawer. You know the kind...it's where you'll find the deck of cards, felt markers, screws, nails, elastic bands, etc. — all the important stuff.

It drives Fred crazy. He doesn't believe for a minute that every household has one,

Coffee with Chris

although I've tried to convince him otherwise. He refuses any part in it so it's considered my junk drawer. It's not my fault I married Mr. Clean. How was I to know?

And, of course, there is the Tupperware cupboard. It's been the topic of so many 'discussions' we rarely talk about it anymore.

Personally, I don't have a problem with it. Little kids love it. Certainly the cupboard is bulging at the seams, but I have become adept at opening and closing the door swiftly. Fred's not quite as skilled, he needs to work on his speed (not to mention his vocabulary).

My life certainly would have been simpler if Fred hadn't noticed my sister-in-law's house (it sparkles no matter when you drop in). But her cupboards are the worst — Tupperware salesladies become overwhelmed with delight when they open them.

A Tupperware representative actually took a picture of Marilyn's cupboards and passed it around as a model example of neat, orderly, correctly-used Tupperware!

Can you believe it? Of all the eligible men in the world she had to go and marry Fred's brother! And then have the nerve to invite us over. Of course Fred noticed right away. You can be sure nothing comes flying out of her cupboards when she opens them.

As for cleaning windows, Fred is convinced I would sooner replace them than wash them. He's wrong, of course, and is just trying to bug me.

I can hardly wait to tell him the glass company was here this morning. The new picture window looks great!

After I tell him I replaced the window and comment on how really squeaky-clean it is now, I'll probably tell him too, that the window was cracked...but maybe not.

Cleaning impaired or not — I have my pride.

We are the kids from Lindale
We have a very smart mind
If you want to talk to us
We'll take the time
We do our best
Out in the west
And blow off lots of steam
And if you want to beat our school Dream-on Dream
'Cause when we go marching by
All our friends will say Hi
Our school will never rest
'till we are the best
And Lindale school is where we go
To meet our special friends
Who come to see our smiling faces at LIN-DA-LE school.

These children from grades 3, 4 and 5 at the Lindale school composed the words for this song.

Our responsibility to respect, encourage leaders

By Rev. Glen Lonie
DV Alliance Church

As another civic election concludes we are reminded of the great privilege we have to live in a democratic society.

Unrestricted nomination of candidates, free and public debate of issues, and honest counting of ballots: all of these privileges are merely a dream in many countries of the world.

It is easy to forget these privileges require maintenance. Privileges imply responsibility.

Therefore, while it is our privilege to vote it is also our duty to do so.

It is a privilege to select candidates for public office.

Yet it is our responsibility to respect and encourage those who serve as our leaders.

Unfortunately too many people want to enjoy the freedoms of a democratic society but are unprepared to pay the cost of good citizenship.

Daniel Webster once observed: "Whatever makes men good Christians, makes them good citizens." Let me suggest several reasons why Christians ought to be model citizens.

• Christians understand something of the nature of God: His justice, goodness and righteousness. It is from these virtues that all good laws are derived.

• Christians are commanded to love the whole world. Practically speaking, that will be evidenced within one's own community of residence. We love the world by loving the specific community in which we live.

• Christians are to pray for those who govern them (1 Timothy 2:1,2). It would be inconsistent to pray for leaders and then withhold appropriate respect, encouragement and support.

May God grant us the courage to be responsible citizens.

Locals do well at cross-country meet

The Alder Flats Agricultural Society fall beef barbecue and dance will be held Oct. 21, starting at 6 p.m. Tickets are available at local businesses.

The Alder Flats Agricultural Society annual general meeting is Oct. 19, starting at 8 p.m. at the community hall. Volunteers are needed for various community jobs. If you enjoy community events you will enjoy organizing them also. If you have any ideas, beefs or suggestions — come and share them.

The 19th annual Winfield cross-country meet was held Sept. 27, with Alder Flats making a good showing.

Alder Flats By Joan Elmont

Angie Gillard won first place, Jolie Jaworski was second and Shawn Micku won third in their own events.

Gillard, Marette Lee, Leeann Wennerstrom and Jocelyn Maciborski took second place team event. Second place in the team event went to Micku, Che Burnett, Kevin Dodman and Cory Larson.

Jaworski was also awarded second place for the team in her category.

At the New Sarepta championships Angie Gillard placed third and Marette Lee placed eighth in the 200 m. They also took first place for the team event.

The Grade 6 class at Alder Flats school held their own election to coincide with the municipal elections. They invited three candidates for this area to speak to them before casting their ballots.

Fibre — hot nutritional topic

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
Fibre, originally called roughage, is today one of the hottest nutritional topics.

Many claims have been associated with diets high in fibre. It has been implicated in lowering cholesterol levels, controlling diabetes, preventing colon cancer and helping in weight control.

Research is ongoing to separate fact from fiction.
Fibre is not a nutrient. It is the structural component of foods which our bodies are unable to digest. As food moves through the digestive system nutrients are taken out and the remaining material, most of which is fibre, is then excreted.

All fibre is not the same.
Cellulose and hemicellulose, the main fibres in bran and whole grains help maintain regularity and speed up elimination. This prevents constipation. Its role in colon cancer is under investigation.

Other types of fibre such as lignin, pectin and gums have been implicated in lowering blood cholesterol levels and helping control diabetes.

The theory is fibre acts like a sponge by absorbing cholesterol and carrying it out with the wastes. Fibre also causes foods to digest more slowly. Glucose is therefore absorbed at a more constant rate helping diabetics.

Strawberries, mature vegetables, apples, citrus fruits and wheat are good sources of lignin and pectin.
Oat bran and dried peas and beans are good sources of gums.

High fibre diets promote chewing, are filling and thus slow eating. Fibre can therefore be helpful in weight control programs.

There is not a given quantity of fibre that we should have daily. Health and Welfare Canada has concluded that "the adult population should at least double its current intake of fibre." This would suggest we increase our fibre from 15 to 30 grams. This does not mean taking high fibre supplements but getting fibre from a variety of food sources.

Three to five servings of whole grain breads and cereals including one high fibre choice and four to five servings of fruits and vegetables, as suggested in Canada's Food Guide would contain about 30 grams fibre.

The introduction of fibre into the diet should be done gradually, otherwise there will be gas and cramping.
This should be accompanied by lots of fluids — eight to 10 glasses daily.

Canada's Food Guide,

Swearing-in attracts large attendance

By Frank Ryan

Drayton Valley's new town council was officially sworn-in last Thursday night.

A standing-room-only crowd was in attendance for the glamorous affair amid flashing lights and the snapping of pictures in the civic centre council chambers.

Each member of council — Moe Hamdon, Alex Salfi, Jean Saunders, Natalie Gibson, Charlie Miner, Howard Olsen and Mayor Tom McGee took the oath, making their position on town council final.

"I see an exciting three years," McGee told the packed house of town office staff, family and friends.

He thanked his wife Sheila and his mother, Betty McGee, for all their support. And, the people of Drayton Valley for their support.

He also paid tribute to Bob Mayhew, who was Drayton Valley's mayor for nine years before losing out in the Oct. 16 municipal election.

Each councillor also said a few words.

All six indicated they were looking forward to the changes and challenges ahead.

Robin Wenbourne, the Annexation totally denied by Local Authorities Board

By Susan Mosciak

Shock and surprise are some of the reactions that have been expressed following the complete denial of any annexation into the Municipal District of Brazeau by the Local Authorities Board (LAB).

"The board believes the boundaries established for Brazeau as a result of two plebiscites reflect the majority view of residents in the annexation territory. Changes now in response to petitions would not be in the public interest," is stated in the concluding paragraph of the LAB's report.

Roy Myroniuk, manager of

Mayor - Tom McGee

McGee addressed the crowd at the ceremonies.

municipal secretary outlined the procedure for the swearing-in and town manager Manny Deol conducted the swearing-in.

Dave Turner, a town employee, gave the blessing and accompanying prayer.

An official photo of the new council was also taken.

Then council, accompanied by those in attendance, adjourned to another room in the civic centre for refreshments and snacks.

McGee's two sons, Paul and Lucas, also tried out dad's new mayor's chair.

When the mayor arrived back in the council chambers for pictures and saw his two boys in the chair, he was told he "couldn't have to worry about a challenge from them for a term or two."

Lake people wanted very much to be part of the MD.

"Total denial is not what we anticipated," he said.

Alder Flats resident Garth "Bear" Werschler said he was "flabbergasted" by the decision. "The LAB have blown their cover. They're just another pawn of the government," he said.

"I can't believe they sat there and listened to us for two weeks and came up with nothing."

"They don't listen to the people. I just can't believe it."

Werschler said he wanted people in the area to digest the decision before

Family homeless after trailer fire

By Susan Mosciak

A mobile home fire started by a burner left on low under a pan full of oil for french fries left a single parent, her two young children and a friend homeless recently.

"I got all that wasn't replaceable out," said Terry Carrothers. "I got my kids out and that's all that mattered."

The fire was confined mainly to the interior of the trailer located southwest of the new Jehovah's Witness Church.

Mark Edwards, staying with the Carrothers family, had been making homemade french fries on the stove and thought he had shut the burner off, according to Fuson.

"The majority of the fire damage was in the kitchen with the rest of the trailer suffering from heat and smoke damage," said Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson.

"It took only about 10 minutes to get under control and another half hour to extinguish so it wouldn't rekindle," he said.

Carrothers said some of her belongings in the addition can be salvaged but most of the contents of the trailer are too damaged. She had no insurance.

She said she has been getting a lot of support from friends and local organizations.

organizing a meeting to discuss the next steps.

"If we declare war on the LAB and (Tom) Thurber, it has to be one of magnitudes," said Werschler. "If you try and do it gentlemanlike, they classify you as pacifist and bury you."

"We owe the MD a debt of gratitude," he said. "What they did for us was phenomenal — they went out on a limb."

Areas seeking annexation included Alder Flats, Buck Lake, two owners from Leduc, Moon Lake, the south Moose Hill area, and the northern tip of the MD Clearwater.

Local News Briefs

Interviews were carried out last week to fill the vacant mental health therapist's position.

It's been seven months since Kelly Frederickson left Drayton Valley as the full-time mental health therapist.

Trent Pankiewicz is playing hockey this winter with the University of Alaska in Anchorage.

Greg Pankiewicz is wearing the colors of the Regina Pats in the Western Hockey League.

Craig Warren is playing in a midget AAA league with the Leduc Firebirds.

And, Kevin Hutchinson is back with the Red Deer College Kings in the Alberta Colleges Athletic Conference.

The Alberta Teachers Association Local held an introduction night for new teachers last week in the clubhouse at Birchwood Village Greens (Lindale).

About 80 people attended.

John Ericksson, MD municipal manager was pleased with the turnout for the senate election Oct. 16.

Only 601 of 4,700 eligible voters in the MD voted.

"I'm pleased with the turnout. It's much better than I expected," Ericksson stated.

Laurette Setterlund is the new vice-principal at St. Anthony school. She started work Monday.

Setterlund had been teaching at Frank Madcock high school and served as vice-principal when Gary Unterschultz left the school to join the Twin Rivers school division.

In another teacher move, Wayne Tournere, who had been at St. Anthony's, will be joining the staff at FMHS shortly.

Some residents who live on the east side of town were complaining about no water pressure last Monday night.

The town engineer says it was likely about the time (10 p.m.) when crews were flushing out water mains.

Veteran councillor will work with new mayor

By Frank Ryan
Councillor Howard Olsen says he will work with Drayton Valley's new mayor.

Following the public forum Olsen took exception with Tom McGee's comments regarding the placement of the mill and said he would not support him as a councillor if McGee became mayor.

"I don't think he's the man for the job."

"I will and can work with him. I'm not there to bring the whole town down."

"As a person I quite like Tom," Olsen says.

Olsen, who finished sixth amongst the successful councillors at the forum and that bothered me. That's why I took a strip off him," Olsen explained.

things he did during the election.

"He put down his fellow councillors at the forum and that bothered me. That's why I took a strip off him," Olsen explained.

One thing Olsen took exception with, was McGee's statement that the council of the future would have to spend more time to make Drayton Valley work.

"He didn't feel we had put enough effort into it.

"I get a lot of calls at work and at home...," he says.

In regards to the placement of the mill, Olsen says, "He knew as much as the rest of us. He blew the Pelican steering committee out of the water with his comments."

Olsen also says he's having a lot of trouble with McGee's claim that taxes won't increase for three years.

"I'm having a lot of trouble with the whole thing," he admits.

However, the veteran councillor says he will continue to work his butt off for the good of Drayton Valley.

"I will work with him but I don't have to agree with everything," Olsen says.

Senate reform is moving forward slowly

By Shaun Polczer
Senate reform is moving forward, but there is still a long way to go says Canada's first elected senator.

Reformer Stan Waters, who captured last week's senate election, says the vote was "a massive step forward."

"It's the first time in 122 years that anything has been done to reform the senate," Waters said, explaining why he thought last week's vote was so important to the province, and to the West.

"We are establishing our imprint on the Eastern establishment," said the new senator-elect.

At this point, the Gatty government has put forward the results of the election to the prime minister's office, and it will yet to be seen if the choice is put forward.

"We've given them to the end of the month to wait quietly," said Waters. "Democracy delayed is democracy denied."

Reform Party leader Preston Manning said that while the senate election "served the educational and promotional function it was meant to," in promoting the cause of reforming the senate, it was hardly senate reform.

"If you assign 100 points to each E in Triple E, you could say we've only gotten one three hundredth of what we want," said Manning.

And what the Reformers want is "full blown senate reform," via constitutional amendment.

Manning indicated that the party has a completed draft constitutional amendment for reforming the senate they will also try to put forward.

Reformer Preston Manning

When asked if he felt the prime minister would accept Stan Waters as Alberta's choice for the senate vacancy,

Manning replied, "we certainly hope so."

"Politically, the prime minister has nothing to gain and a lot to lose."

Either scenario would be turned to the Reform Party's advantage, he said.

Strategically, Manning says his party will now try to coordinate Waters and Beaver River MP Deborah Grey, who was elected to the House of Commons last November, as dual spokespeople for Western issues in Ottawa.

"Because Stan was elected," said Manning, "it becomes important what he thinks about issues outside the senate arena, such as the GST."

Manning also admits that winning the senate election has been an uplift for the party, which he feels is catching on with Western voters.

"The grass is growing up," he said. "We've got momentum going now."

He also acknowledged the mounting pressure for the party to take a run at the provincial PCs.

"We have to decide whether it will enhance our overall federal goals or deflect us from the main issues we want to concentrate on," said Manning.

Voter turnout pleases MLA Thurber

By Paul Cudla

The selection of a Reform party candidate for senator does not diffuse the Alberta government's purpose for trying to spawn senate reform according to MLA Tom Thurber.

"Our main purpose was not to elect a Conservative senator but was to simply elect a senator," Thurber said.

Stan Waters, Reform party, amassed a province-wide total of 257,523 votes for senate, almost doubling the second-place finisher Bill Coda. Conservative candidate Bert Brown finished third with 127,165 votes.

"They've (the voters) made their choice and we've (the Conservatives) stood by it," Thurber said, adding "he did have the vast majority."

Thurber stressed the Conservative government would stand by the choice made by the Alberta voters and would present Prime Minister Mulroney with Waters' name.

Tom Thurber

"The federal government has always given lip service to reforming the senate and now we're saying 'Alberta is giving you a chance to start senate reform.'"

The Drayton Valley/Devon MLA said he was impressed with the voter turnout for the senate election.

"I was glad to see the participation of the voters. It's something the province of Alberta has promoted."

Fire cont'd

She will be renting another trailer very soon. "We're going to just move in there and start over."

Her two children, B.J., 21/2, and Dennis, 7, touched the hearts of firefighters last week. After losing much of what they owned, they unselfishly sent the department this letter:

To the Fire Fighters
I would like to Thank you for trying to save my home. I will come around to thank you for helping me and my family.

Overwhelming voter turnout causes ballot counting delays

By Frank Ryan

An overwhelming response at the polls caused unexpected delays in getting the results out.

No one was more concerned about the delay than returning officer Robin Wenbourne.

"We knew it was going to be busy. But, the turnout was bigger than we expected," she says.

Approximately 60 per cent of the eligible voters turned out for the municipal election.

As a result, Wenbourne and her staff were faced with the task of counting about 8,000 ballots.

Wenbourne said one thing that didn't help, was that all the ballots had to be unfolded before any count could start.

There has been some question as to why a voter's list wasn't used.

Wenbourne says the town has a bylaw that says a voter's list is not required.

In response to rumors that some people were left standing outside the Elks Hall at the 8 p.m. deadline, the returning officer says that's untrue.

She says an announcement was made five and 10 minutes before the doors closed, and people were told that if they came inside, they would be allowed to vote, even if it was after 8 p.m.

There have also been some comments the long lineups at the Elks Hall included a lot of unfamiliar faces.

Wenbourne says some of that might stem from the fact that some people who voted for the separate school trustees, came from outside the Drayton Valley town limits.

"We never expected such a turnout," explained town manager Manny Deol.

According to Deol, the biggest turnout for a local election ranged between 1,200 and 1,300 while this election drew close to 2,300 voters.

Deol says the decision to operate just one polling station was based on turnouts at previous elections.

Mayor Tom McGee who waited anxiously most of the night for results said, "They (the staff at the polling centre) didn't want to be there at 5 a.m. either."

It was actually 5:25 a.m. when The Western Review received the votes for mayor and town councillors.

Councillor Howard Olsen, who went to bed at 2 a.m. not knowing if he had been elected or not, has a lot of questions he will be seeking answers to when council resumes.

Results were also slow coming in from some of the area communities.

It was 10:30 p.m. before results in Wildwood were known and 12:30 a.m. before tabulations were complete in Evansburg.

Who's the boss?

Could this be our mayor in 2007? Paul McGee, 5, jumped into dad, Tom's, new chair in council chambers after the swearing-in ceremonies last week.

'Mayor of the '80s' will be remembered for his contributions

A political era came to an end in Drayton Valley last week.

It came as Bob Mayhew lost out to Tom McGee in the mayoralty election.

Mayhew should go down in the history books as Drayton Valley's mayor of the 1980s.

He held the position for three terms (1980-83, 1983-86 and 1986-89). On two occasions he edged out an opponent and in '86 won by acclamation.

During his time as a town councillor and later as mayor, Bob Mayhew made a significant contribution to the town.

He will be remembered for a lot of things since his election as mayor in 1980, but none of them will be any more important than his financial restraint.

Jean Saunders, who led all the councillors in last week's municipal election, also saw Mayhew as a man who planned carefully and didn't spend money he didn't have.

"I found him a reasonable man to work for. I learned a lot," Saunders said.

Being mayor of a small rural Alberta town is an extremely tough one.

The Yellowhead MP is often away in Ottawa and the MLA is busy learning provincial politics in Edmonton.

But the mayor of Drayton Valley is just a phone call away. Or, better still, he runs a business just down the street and you can go down and give him or her a blast.

Bob Mayhew may have lost the election but his contributions to Drayton Valley will be remembered for years to come.

Popular feature will continue despite post office ban

Acting on a mere complaint, Canada Post has decided that reporters from The Western Review will not be allowed to ask our weekly Streetbeat questions inside the Drayton Valley post office.

This action was taken in the absence of the regular postmaster, and with no warning whatsoever. In fact Canada Post acted solely on the one complaint, and didn't even bother to research the information to find out if it was correct.

The feedback we got from a Canada Post spokesman in Edmonton, was that our reporters reportedly stuck their microphones in a customer's face inside the post office.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

Just for the record, our reporters don't use microphones to record comments for Streetbeat.

It's apparent to me that Canada Post jumped the gun here. And, it's too bad.

Our reporters didn't harm anyone. And, we don't twist anyone's arm if they don't want to comment.

The reporters would prefer to get their questions answered outside the post office, but so many people ask our people to go inside where it's warm.

Streetbeat has been a popular feature in The Western Review for the past 10 years. And, despite Canada Post's decision that we can't come in out of the cold and get our answers, the feature will continue.

The job of getting the weekly question answered hasn't always been an easy task. One of the stories had a reporter being the victim of a purse attack. Those are the hazards of the job.

Peeved at Canada Post

By Susan Moscioldi

If you want to express your opinion in Streetbeat, you won't be able to do it at the local post office anymore.

Canada Post has prohibited The Western Review from using its premises to ask the question for the weekly opinion column.

Last week, a customer complained of being "harrassed" by reporters. The tale got even taller when it was later stated that reporters shoved microphones in customers' faces.

Notebooks and cameras are all that reporters are "armed" with when they go out to ask the question, and they do not, I assure you, sit on people to get their opinion.

To get five opinions, reporters may spend as much as three-quarters of an hour waiting, snow, rain or shine, for somebody with some spare time or eager to express their opinion to happen along.

Everyone is entitled to, and many do, say 'no'.

For the past 10 years Streetbeat has been a popular addition to our weekly editions, and has been there at the same place.

But our week has changed

Reporter hyperbolic

Dear Editor,
I take exception to Mr. Paul Cudla's opinions expressed in his Oct. 11 Comment "Canadian brand of hockey transcends separatist tendencies."

Perhaps Mr. Cudla was being deliberately hyperbolic, nevertheless, he has exaggerated the importance of hockey to our national identity way out of all proportion.

I am not disputing for a moment and do agree with Mr. Cudla, in part, that hockey has played, plays and always will play a very important part of that nebulous thing we call the collective Canadian consciousness. But to suggest that hockey totally defines our Canadianism is totally absurd. Do the Americans, in turn, solely define their Americanism by their love for their game of baseball?

Now don't misunderstand me. I like hockey — some of my best friends play hockey — my husband, as he'll tell anyone who'll listen, taught Mike Bossy in elementary school — but hockey is not a synonym for Canada to this particular Canadian.

Completely, I am a completely non-sports oriented person and therefore strongly resent Mr. Cudla telling me that "no all that.

The "cornerstone" of this rural community does not welcome reporters anymore.

The meaning of "public building" has changed for the vicious news-seeking soundbites at The Western Review.

If they let us do Streetbeat there, says Lloyd Mildon, Canada Post spokesman, next thing you know, Mary Kay will want to sell their wares there. And religious sects will start crowding in as well.

Reporters do not push their wares, or their beliefs on others; they are only asking for the opinion of the general public.

People's opinions are therefore being stifled because we are not being allowed to ask a question in a public place.

If this continues, it could

Comment

stretch even further, and we could realistically be told we cannot ask a question on the street, in a shopping mall, or any other public place.

Expressing your view is your right, and asking your view is our right, except, of course, according to Canada Post.

Thanks CP, and to the person who noticed our wayward ways and reported us

Violence concerns Oil Caps

Dear Editor:

The executive of the Drayton Valley Oil Capitals is very concerned about the abusive language, intoxicated people, and fighting that occurred in the stands of the arena at the Oil Caps' first exhibition game Oct. 13.

The game itself was very entertaining and we will not allow a few unruly individuals to disrupt or interfere with the enjoyment of our true supporters.

The arena, and our junior 'B' hockey team should be, and will be, a place that people of all ages can attend knowing that they do not have to be subjected to such abuse of our language or disruptions in the stands. We therefore must take appropriate action.

All home games will have designated security people in attendance.

Anyone who creates a disturbance, is caught drinking or being abusive will be removed from the arena and appropriate charges will be laid.

No exceptions will be made. We will not allow a few unruly individuals to mar junior 'B' hockey in Drayton Valley.

We'd like to take this opportunity to thank all the fans for your support and pledge to you that in the future hockey will be enjoyed by one and all.

The Drayton Valley Oil Capitals Executive.

Hockey importance exaggerated - cont'd other aspect of the Canadian culture and lifestyle unifies the country like hockey.

Is that so? Well, then the likes of author Margaret Atwood, scientist David Suzuki, ballerina Karen Kain or film-maker Norman Jewison had better don skates and try out for the NHL.

I, for one, cannot remember where I was at any of "those shining moments of Canadiana" Mr. Cudla mentions: the '72 Henderson goal, the '84 Bossy goal and the '87 Lemieux goal; moments of national pride to be sure.

I can, however, remember exactly where I was during that moment of the 1970 October Crisis — huddled before the television set in my Montreal apartment nervously watching and listening to P.E. Trudeau deliver his now famous "Just watch me..." speech before he invoked the War Measures Act, anxious and worried about what the future held for this country or whether there even was one.

If, as Mr. Cudla suggests, that hockey is "the best and only legitimate argument against separatism," then we, as a nation, are skating on very thin ice indeed.

Man gets 30 days

By Susan Mosicki

Gregory Jonzon, 24, of Drayton Valley, was sentenced in Breton provincial court recently to 30 days in a provincial correction institute for assault of a peace officer.

Breton RCMP report they were called to a disturbance at a residence near Buck Creek in April. During the course of the investigation, Jonzon was arrested for assault of Drayton Valley RCMP Const. Mark Fleming. Jonzon entered a guilty plea in court.

Breton RCMP Const. Peter Clark said Fleming did not suffer lasting injuries.

Earlier this month George Raymond Lillico, 41, of Drayton Valley was convicted of assault of the same police officer in June.

"Actual assault happens infrequently, fortunately. Mark just happened to be on duty at the time," said Drayton Valley RCMP Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey.

Base limits set for FCSS funds

By Susan Mosicki
Municipal District of Brazeau Councillor Bob Booth's concern over being fair to playschools prompted council to set a $600 base for funds allotted from FCSS.

Money allotted is based on number of rural students in the playschool and about $1,000 in total (ie: 25 per cent rural students, 25 per cent of $1,000 = $250).

Henceforth, Breton playschool with 14 rural students (82 per cent) out of 17 total, was to receive $800, while Drayton Valley Preschool Society with 20 rural students (20 per cent) out of 100 total would receive $200.

Booth felt this was unfair. He went on to say because Drayton Valley has two classes, there would be more overhead, more teachers, etc.

FCSS coordinator Lorna Martin explained there is more hardship in the rural playschools and she had tried to come up with a fair formula for allotting funds.

Municipal manager John Eriksson suggested there be a $600 base. This would allow a fair number of dollars for most, and would not limit the playschools with greater hardship from getting over and above the base.

Council agreed this would be a fair system for all concerned.

Drayton Valley will receive $800, Breton will receive $600, and $600 each has been allotted to Buck Creek, Easyford, Lindale and Lodgepole playschools.

The MD Brazeau will also pay approximately $370 per year for insurance for the latter four playschools.

Breton's insurance coverage is provided by the village of Breton and Drayton Valley Preschool Society's fire insurance on the building is paid for by Twin Rivers school division. The society pays about $700 per year out of its own budget to insure the children, contents, and vandalism of school property.

Poppies for remembrance

Wreaths and poppies for the Drayton Valley Royal Canadian Legion Branch 269's 1989 campaign are expected to arrive this week.

The Legion expects to sell upwards of 60 wreaths this year.

Poppy sales are held throughout the schools, in local businesses and the air cadets canvass the downtown area. In 1988 the Legion campaign raised $7 million across Canada and at military installations overseas.

Money received is placed in trust accounts and expended only for specific purposes. Last year between four and five million dollars was distributed to help needy veterans, ex-service members, their dependents and to provide community services such as medical facilities and veterans' housing.

The poppy campaign is first and foremost a remembrance program to honor and perpetuate the memory of the 114,000 servicemen and women who died while serving in Canada's armed forces during two world wars and Korea.

Organization gets MD contribution

The Municipal District of Brazeau council agreed to give a financial contribution of $125 to Outdoors Unlimited, sponsors of Pitch-In, last week.

The money goes toward the purchase of garbage bags for the campaign, vests for the workers, etc.

"Anytime we can do anything to help our environment — for $125 worth — I think it's worth looking at," said Councillor Neil Norton.

"One hundred and twenty-five dollars doesn't seem very much," agreed Reeve Henry Rondeau.

One month for impaired driving

A 21-year-old Drayton Valley man was sentenced to 30 days in jail and prohibited from driving for 24 months in provincial court last week.

Alan Campbell pleaded guilty to driving over .08 (80 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood) and operating a motor vehicle while disqualified.

He received a 30-day concurrent and 12-month licence prohibition consecutive on each charge.

Henry Rondeau takes his oath to serve a third term. Right - Jeff Wardlow, director of administration.

MD Brazeau councillors sworn in Henry Rondeau was sworn in as Municipal District of Brazeau reeve for his third term in little more than a year at an organizational meeting last week.

"Thank-you all for your confidence," Rondeau told council. "We are now taking our place in the community of municipalities."

He thanked council members for their cooperation and hard work.

"This coming year is going to be a different year," said Rondeau. He said it is because the MD is now firmly established.

Deputy reeve Bob Booth also took his oath to serve the MD diligently for another term. "If next year is as good in terms of the progress we have made, I think we will have done a tremendous job," he said.

Municipal manager John

Erikson said the reason for the six-month and eight-month term for Rondeau before a traditional one-year term for reeve was because of incorporation and taking of new territory in 1989.

All members of council were appointed to various positions on the numerous boards, committees, authorities and agencies under the jurisdiction of the MD.

Twin Rivers reviews controversial video

The Twin Rivers school division is reviewing a video a Liberal critic says supports the PC's pro-dam, pro-development policies.

Gary Unterschultz, deputy superintendent, says he will be looking at the video entitled Water In Alberta: The Living Flow.

The video has been distributed to some junior and senior high schools by Alberta Environment.

Liberal environmental critic Grant Mitchell says the video should be pulled from the schools.

According to an Edmonton newspaper Mitchell is saying the video is a blatant attempt to garner school children's support for the Tories pro-dam, pro-development policies.

"One opinion may not warrant censure..."

Unterschultz plans to review the video before making any decision on pulling it out of Twin Rivers junior and senior high schools.

He indicated that one man's opinion (Mitchell's) may not warrant pulling the video off school shelves.

Continuity the operative word

Continuity is the operative word for the separate school Board as all five incumbent school board candidates were returned to their trustee positions in the Oct. 16 election.

Joan Anderson, Tim Kjerfve, Marilyn Buchan, Dennis Mallett and Lorne Pinkoski were all returned as trustees by voters and will serve another three-year term on the board. The group was officially sworn-in Oct. 19 and Joan Anderson was appointed by the board to serve as chairperson for the second term.

"We were very pleased the same five got in," Anderson said.

"I think it is important in the terms of continuity. We feel like we have more to offer now that we have served one term."

She added it takes about one term to be able to understand the ins and outs of the school board.

Anderson said the re-election of the school board was a "partial vote of confidence."

Projects which the school board has made 'top priority' are an elementary music program and a half-time councillor.

The three rural trustees elected to the board were: Bev Duperron, Muriel Hartley, and Mike McGee.

Moon Lake trustees are: Reg Hamilton and Bennie Kuhn.

Township district trustees are: Francis Peskunowicz, Ted Busin, and Janina Crawford.

Dan Nero (right) displays his kick-boxing trophy. Instructor Dan Lyver is at his side.

Nero's ring start auspicious

By Paul Cudla

If Dan Nero's first kick-boxing bout is an omen, he is headed for a prosperous ring career.

Nero stepped into a ring for the first time Oct. 14 and defeated his opponent in the first round.

"He wasn't defending himself all that well at the end of the round. I just looked for an opening," Nero said of his kick-boxing win.

A four-man contingent from the Drayton Valley Martial Arts club travelled to Lethbridge to take part in a kick-boxing card which featured 15 bouts and kick-boxers from Spokane, Ontario, Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and B.C.

Nero, a green belt, beat Berry Kenny from Spokane as Kenny failed to answer the second round bell. Kick-boxing matches are scheduled for three, two-minute rounds. It was Nero's first-ever fight, while Kenny had two previous bouts before meeting Nero this season.

'Whole new world'

At age 17, Nero has been a member of the Drayton Valley Martial Arts club for four years but his fight in Lethbridge represented his first-ever fight in a ring.

"There was a lot of adrenalin. It was a whole new world in there," Nero said.

"It puts a lot of pressure on you (being in the ring)."

The 3,500 people in attendance at the Lethbridge Exhibition Pavilion provided evidence that kick-boxing is a growing sport.

"It's a sport a lot of people are curious about," Dan Lyver, head instructor of the local martial arts club, said.

"It (kick-boxing) teaches self-discipline. It's not just going out and hurting people. It's learning an art. Mainly teamwork," Lyver said.

Crossing the cross-country finish line

Cross-country promotes feeling of family unity

The Twin Rivers cross-country hosted by Lindale school promoted a spirit of fun and friendship.

"It was a way for Lindale school to share Lindale countryside. We hope this will contribute to a feeling of family within the Twin Rivers school district," Ross Munro, Lindale teacher, said. The cross-country run was held Oct. 19 at the Lindale school and attracted about 300 runners from five schools.

School trophies were awarded for combined participation and excellence. Lindale took the grade 1-3 category. Evergreen won the grades 4-5 trophy. H.W. Pickup showed best in grades 7-9. Frank Maddock won in grades 10-12.

Results for the individual grades were:

Grade 1: boys - Junior Lehman (Lindale); girls - Brianne Waters (Lindale).

Grade 2: boys - John Ostapowich (Lindale); girls - Chessie Clark (Tomahawk).

Grade 3: boys - John Mayhew (Lindale); girls - Melissa McKenzie (Lindale).

Rec league to split up

In the interest of equalizing the Drayton Valley men's recreational hockey league, the 12 teams may be split into two divisions.

Simon Kelly, co-organizer of the recreation league, said one-sided games are occurring too frequently as the league is getting "really competitive."

"This should equalize it a bit," Kelly said.

The Twisters hockey team dropped out of the recreational league recently, bringing the number of teams down to 12. Kelly said the teams will be split into a top six and a bottom six and hopes to have a new schedule by Nov. 1. A meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 26 for league teams.

The recreational league started Sept. 22 and runs until the end of March during which teams will play 36 games.

A tournament will be hosted by the Drayton Valley league on Feb. 18-19 where four visiting teams will combine with four local clubs.

The DV Clippers midget hockey team was in action Sunday night. See page 11 for minor hockey summaries and scores.

Coach cherishes student-teacher friendships

By Paul Cudla

Karen Kirkwood has coached figure skating for 22 years and has developed strong ties with her students over those years.

"The thing I like the best is the relationships you form with your students over the years. Some of my most cherished friendships are with my former students," Kirkwood says.

The Drayton Valley Figure Skating Club is beginning its 35th year and Kirkwood has been a coach in the club for 18.

"My main goal is to teach the children how to enjoy and love the sport while at the same time teaching the correct techniques.

"They'll work harder if they really like what they're doing," Kirkwood says.

Kirkwood started skating as a six-year-old in Edmonton where she pushed a wooden chair around a hockey rink.

She began taking lessons when she was 10, and moved on to skate for the Gateway and Royal Glenora skating clubs.

Kirkwood says figure skating is a sport which uniquely combines athletic ability and artistic expression.

"I think it develops a lot of self-esteem. It also develops grace and poise."

Developing self-esteem, grace and poise in children is something Kirkwood says she finds "satisfying."

The Drayton Valley Figure Skating Club has about 120 members this year and is currently looking for volunteer parents to help with the club.

Kirkwood and Susan Benson are the two head coaches at the club and are assisted by: (amateur coaches 12 and over): Carolyn Eckert, Sandra Town, and Tammy Townsend.

Helpers (10 and over) are: Michael Elliott, Joanne Kelso, Jenessa Kirkwood, Sherida Nikiforuk, Jamie Lui, Amanda Sabine, and Trina Wilson.

Cropley snags largest pike of derby

The sixth annual Rick's summer fishing derby has ended for another season and five anglers can lay claim to 'best fisherman(woman)' titles.

Chris Cropley, 8, caught the biggest fish overall at the derby — a 15-pound 13-ounce pike snagged at Bear Lake. Cropley's entry barely edged out the second-place pike by one ounce which was caught by Kim Yurchak.

Individual winners in the pike, walleye, perch, trout and whitefish categories win $100. worth of fishing supplies from Rick's Sporting Goods.

In the walleye category, Chris Rowles caught an eight-pound eight-ounce fish at the Brazeau River.

Doraine Ganske pulled a one-pound eight-ounce perch out of Buck Lake to win the perch category.

The winning trout was entered by Marvin and Cathy Dusterhoft who caught a six-pound eight-ounce trout.

There was one entry in the whitefish category and it was caught by Ann Karach.

"This year's went really good," Colin Donovan, fishing derby organizer, said. Donovan said there were about twice as many entries this year as last year.

"We feel like we want to make it bigger and better for next year," Donovan said.

Next year, the derby is planning to offer an overall prize of a fly-in fishing trip to Tapiwingo Lodge at Bisteho Lake.

One entry in four categories (perch, pike, trout and walleye) will be accepted to determine the overall 'best fisherman'.

Rick's winter fishing derby will begin Nov. 1.

Power plants producing 'record-book' fish

Focus on Fishing

By Colin Donovan
Without a doubt, the most asked question I hear is "Where are the big fish at?"

Being a true blue fisherman, the last thing I want to do is tell a stranger my hot spots, or even worse, a friend. At least a stranger doesn't know anyone to tell! I'm going to break that rule once, in the hope of raising some awareness of the potential this area has to offer.

How does pike to 30 pounds, walleye to eight pounds, and whitefish to six pounds sound to you?

To me, it sounds like a nine-hour drive and maybe a float plane ride. Fortunately though, it's only a 40-minute drive on pavement, and you can be home by the same day. Wabaman Lake northeast of town on Highway 16 is just such a spot.

A lot of people have said, "You couldn't pay me to eat a fish out of that lake, not with those power plants warming the water." But those power plants are the very reason the fish get so big. All across the U.S. power plants, dams and reservoirs are producing 'record-book' fish in record numbers.

When a power plant warms the water it stimulates plankton growth which in turn stimulates shrimp growth and so on up the food chain. Where on ordinary lakes it may take seven to eight years to produce a fish of three-four pounds, a lake such as Wabaman can produce the same size in three to four years. Now personally I don't need to eat a 30-pound fish, just catching it is enough.

I'm sure most of you would agree with me on that. However, 30-pound fish are not that common - and for that matter neither is a 20-pound fish, but they could be with a little help from our MLA, our tourism committee and interest groups.

Another body of water also 40 minutes away, sits undeveloped, and over-harvested. I'm referring to the Brazeau Dam, another man-made fishery.

The flooded land created by the dam is an ideal habitat for fish to feed and grow. In the reservoir pike grow to 25 pounds, but fish that size are very few and far between.

The Brazeau has the potential to grow trout to 30 pounds, walleye to 10 pounds, perch to two pounds and pike to 25 pounds. I would like to see that potential reached.

We pay for resource development, so what good is a newly paved highway to upgraded campgrounds when there is nothing to do when you get there?

So urge your MLA, tourism committee or mayor to get behind this development, and maybe we won't have to tell a stranger where to fish, he'll already know.

Wabaman Lake: good to excellent whitefish.

Pigeon Lake: fair to good whitefish.

Lake Isle: fair perch and walleye.

Buck Lake: slow to fair perch and walleye.

Sardine Lake: fair to good rainbows.

Ashland Dam: fair to good rainbows.

North Saskatchewan: good walleye.

Pembina River: fair walleye.

Clippers defeat Onoway

Greg Thompson, Ken Hutchinson and Daryl Winter scored two goals each as the Norette Oilers downed host Athabasca 10-3 in bantam hockey action Saturday.

Chris Enyedy, Shelby Jorgenson, James Jelinski and Bryson Kuzek had the other goals.

Five players shared in the scoring as Roses Well Services Clippers downed visiting Onoway 5-3 Sunday in midjet action.

Brad Beaver, Jason Woods, Kevin Allen, David Luneng and Chris Hutchinson scored for the Clippers.

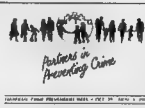

Wardin Well split a pair of novice games on the weekend.

Jeff Miller and Steven Edwards were the goal scorers in a 3-2 loss to Mohawk.

But Wardin bounced back with a 9-4 win over J&A Trucking.

Miller led the charge with a four-goal effort. Ryan Wilkes added three goals and three assists with Nicholas Johnson and Edwards notching singles.

In earlier games this season Wardin defeated J&A Trucking 4-2 and played to a 4-4 tie with Mobil.

Oil Caps set to begin junior season

By Paul Cudla

The Drayton Valley Oil Capitals finished the pre-season with a 4-3 loss in Olds Sunday night.

"I think we outplayed them, we just didn't finish the plays at the net," Grant MacDonald, Oil Caps' head coach, said.

Centre Rob Nein scored all three Oil Cap goals in the losing effort.

MacDonald said he saw a "lot of improvement" in the team at the Olds game" as far as team play."

The Drayton Valley Oil Capitals will kick-off their junior 'B' hockey season Oct. 27 at home against Olds. An official puck-dropping ceremony is planned. Carstairs will visit Drayton Valley Oct. 28.

"Just based on pre-season, it appears that everyone is competitive. It looks like it's going to be a close league," MacDonald said.

Rocky Mountain House recently dropped out of the junior 'B' division leaving Olds, Carstairs, Red Deer, Lacombe, Hobbema and Drayton Valley.

The playoff format has been restructured in the division to allow all six teams into the post-season.

In exhibition play the Oil Caps showed they are a team with speed and some size, but MacDonald would like to see them improve on play in their own end, and their touch around the net.

Town looking at FCSS

Town council took the first step recently toward establishing a Family and Community Support Services (FCSS).

Councillor Jean Saunders, who has been working on the project for several months, expects the new bylaw to undergo some fine-tuning before it's final.

The board will consist of up to seven members. All of the board appointments will be made by council.

The goal of the board will be to develop and implement policies with respect to the FCSS in Drayton Valley. Saunders says there's only four or five communities in the entire province that don't have an FCSS.

Building expansion put on hold for now.

Expansion of the provincial building in Drayton Valley has been put on hold.

Town council has been informed that the serious need for expansion has been explained to Ken Kowalski, minister of Public Works, Supply and Services.

The expansion is still planned according to MLA Tom Thurber.

"As you are aware, the Alberta government already owns the adjoining land (where the curling rink currently sits)," Thurber told town council in a recent letter.

Thurber says funding is not available at the present time to expand the provincial building.

Prevention major part of FCSS

The role of FCSS (Family and Community Support Service) in Drayton Valley will be as a coordinating agency, according to town Councillor Jean Saunders.

"It can be whatever the community needs it to be," she says.

One role she says she sees it playing is a directory of services. "I want to see a lot of liaison between existing groups."

Prevention is also a major role of the program. "Prevention is something that is very difficult to measure," says Saunders. "We'll never know how many crises we've prevented."

Pastor Glen Lonie says, "What we've envisioned it being is an information referral centre."

"I think it will help everyone in the community—primarily newcomers...keep everybody informed," he says.

"One of the real concerns of the past was it wasn't closely enough monitored. We want it closely monitored and responsive to the needs of the community."

"Eighty per cent (of funding) comes from the provincial government and 20 per cent from the town or municipality," says Lonie.

Lonie sees the program as preventative also. "The nature of an FCSS program is basically preventative — to keep the community healthy — not for crises."

Assessments appealed

Several Drayton Valley residents appeared at the Court of Appeal hearings last Wednesday in the council chambers.

The residents — most of them from the Celebrity Estates Drive area located in the southeast corner of town — were in attendance to protest their assessments.

The first step in the appeal procedure was to appear before the town's Court of Revision and then go on to the Court of Appeal.

Mayor Tom McGee was a spectator at the hearing last week.

Now the waiting begins on a decision for the local residents who appeared before the Court of Appeal that included appointed members from Edmonton.

Arrest follows Leduc robbery

Local RCMP arrested a man in Violet Grove last Wednesday in connection with a robbery in Leduc earlier in the day.

A man loitering in a 7-Eleven store in Leduc approached an employee with an open clasp knife and asked for money.

The employee gave him a small amount and the man left.

David Kramer, 19, is facing charges of possession of an offensive weapon and robbery.

Poisonings not a concern

The recent rash of dogs poisoned by strychnine in the Red Deer area is not a concern currently in Drayton Valley according to local veterinarians.

"There has been a real problem in the past," says Dr. Taher Lookmanjee.

He says, though, it has not been a problem in the last few years. Most of the poisonings were in the Poplar Ridge area, Lookmanjee said.

Many of the poisonings were from pure strychnine according to Lookmanjee.

"It's very painful — it's one of the worst methods of poisoning."

He says it causes muscular rigidity.

One of the major concerns when poison is set out for dogs is that a child may get a hold of it.

Lookmanjee says the poison is for a 40-50 pound dog, about the same size as a three- or four-year-old child.

"They often put it (the poison) into a piece of meat or piece of candy," says Dr. Wayne Thiessen. "I'm more worried about a child getting hold of it."

Thiessen also says there have been no poisonings recently. "We go in spurts. Every now and then you get a few."

He says to get an animal that has been poisoned to a veterinarian as fast as possible.

"We generally lavage, wash the stomach with a tea solution." He says he also keeps the animal anesthetized to prevent convulsions and seizure.

"It's a very cruel way to go."
